First Time An FFA Chapter Wins Keystone Pork Bowl

Producers Could Soon See PRRS Vaccine, Says Vet At Pork Congress

ANDY ANDREWS

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — A vaccine for porcine reproductive and respiratory syndrome (PRRS) will be available within the next 18 months. But for now, producers can take steps to ensure the debilitating disease is controlled in their herds.

Three major companies are "feverishly working" on the vaccine, said Dr. Tom Wetzell, South Central Veterinary Associates, from Wells, Minn. On Wednesday, Wetzell told about 100 pork producers at the Keystone Pork Congress that once the vaccine is available, it will have as good an effect on controlling PRRS as the PRV vaccine had on pseudorabies.

Wetzell spoke about the history of PRRS and studies undertaken recently to understand how the virus works and methods producers can use to control it.

Increasingly, Pennsylvania herds are being tested positive for the virus in herds. The incidence of PRRS, which was once called mystery pig disease (MPD), swine infertility and respiratory syndrome (SIRS), and blue ear disease, has steadily increased in the major Midwest and southeast producing states since it was identified in 1987 by researchers in Lelystad, Netherlands. But the disease has been in U.S. herds, based on serological evidence, since 1984.

The disease surged in herds in 1988 until methods of detection and treatment helped decrease the prevalence of the disease in the ensuing years, according to Wetzell.

The disease effects pigs from 3-8 weeks of age. "Naive herds" — those that have never tested positive for the presence of the virus — are most susceptible. In an advanced infection, sows and finishing pigs become off feed and lethargic. They develop fevers ranging from 103-107 degrees. Newborn pigs start "thumping," which is rapid, shallow breathing. There are abortions and early farrowings. Stillbirths and mummification rates rise rapidly — mortali-

Winter Ice Storms Hard On Cattle As Well As People

HOPE HOLLAND
Maryland Correspondent

REISTERSTOWN, Md. — The recent weeks of ice storms in Maryland have had a tragic side effect for dairy and beef cattle farmers in the area. Many of the state's veterinarians have had to spend much of their time destroying cattle that have injured themselves from falls in icy pastures.

During a conversation with Dr. William Rosenberger of the Reisterstown Veterinary Center in northern Baltimore County, he stated that he knows of at least 50 head of beef or dairy cattle that have had to be destroyed as a direct result of the ice storms that have plagued the counties that border the Maryland/Pennsylvania line.

"I've probably spent most of my time these past three weeks just trying to get downed livestock up on their feet and back onto safe ground," he says. "Farmers are trying to use their tractors to help lift the cattle, but even the tractors can't do anything on ice that is sometimes as much as four inches thick in the fields. I had one farmer call me and ask what he could do for five cows that were just laying down out in his field and wouldn't even try to get up. He said that he had gone out to get them with the tractor, but that the tractor had spun around three times on the ice in the field and almost turned over on him! I told him that about all he could do was to put water and hay in reach of each cow and pray for a thaw!"

He went on to say, "I've had to put a few horses down from injuries sustained from falls on the ice, but it's the poor cattle that are getting the worst of it."

Dr. Lee Miller of Woodsboro Veterinary Clinic in Frederick County has much the same thing to say. According to Dr. Miller, "Horses seem to have enough muscle to sustain the shock of these falls, and, from what I've been seeing, they seem to fall on their sides. The cattle fall more awkwardly, or, even worse, do a split when they fall and suffer injuries to their hips and pelvic bones. They seem to either break their femurs, break the socket of their hip joints, or wrench the ball out of the hip socket and dislocate their hips. I'm seeing a lot more

Holstein Association Outlines New Classification Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An expanded animal classification program, among a number of other topics, was outlined last week by leaders of the national Holstein-Friesian Association of America, during a local issues forum at the Sheraton-East in Harrisburg.

The meeting was one of many held across the nation in an effort for members of the board of directors to better gauge member consensus on issues pending board action at the HFAA annual convention, scheduled to be held in Seattle during July.

Despite poor driving conditions because of continued winter storms, about 40 people from around the state attended the all-day forum.

The forum was lead by two national directors representing the state — John Howard, of Willow Street, and Thomas Kelly, of Tyrone — and by HFAA Vice President John Cope.

Among a list of 10 major issues slated for consideration before the

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

INDIANA (Indiana Co.) — In years past, Indiana County dairyman Donald Simpson has helped four other farmers rebuild their barns after they were destroyed by fire.

That experience will benefit him now.

On Saturday, Jan. 29, a flash fire leveled the 98-year-old barn on the Simpson farm — designated three years ago as a Century Farm — about three miles southwest of Indiana.

Even while his barn was still burning, concerned neighbors and other farmers pressed Simpson for a decision.

"What are you going to do?" they asked.

The neighbors realized Simpson and his wife LaRue and two sons did not have the luxury of taking a lot of time to decide what they should do first to start rebuilding the dairy business they have operated since 1968.

In just a few hours, the Simpsons' 60 head of Holsteins would need milked. Approximately 1,700 pounds of milk would need chilled and stored. And almost everything they needed to do that was buried under the smoldering debris of his barn.

Don Simpson made the decision: The cows would have to leave — at least temporarily.

And once that decision was made, dozens of other farmers and friends took over.

Marion Center dairymen Richard and Wayne Black, center and right, offer Don Simpson some wrapped hay to replace some of the hay he lost when his barn burned Jan. 29. A barn on the Black farm burned in 1975.

New York & Philadelphia Frozen Egg Report

Tuesday, February 15, 1994

The market tone was mostly steady. Trading was irregular as weather disrupted normal operations. Raw materials although available were confidently held. Further processors operated desired schedules and usually had sufficient floor stocks to satisfy current dealer interest.

CORRECTION TO MINNEAPOLIS WHEAT DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES REACTED CONTRARY TO SOME RECENTLY RELEASED NEWS INDICATORS. WHEAT LOWER, CORN, SORGHUM AND SOYBEANS HIGHER. WHEAT 4-9 CENTS LOWER. CORN STEADY TO 2 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 1-2 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 2-5 CENTS HIGHER. " F-" GRADE FOR U.S. EXPORTS THIS WEEK. MARKETS NEED JAPAN, CHINA, AND ANY OTHER COUNTRY THEY CAN GARNER TO HOLD PRICES AT CURRENT LEVELS AND LAY PLANS FOR FUTURES TRADES. " A+" FOR SOUTH AMERICAN SOYBEAN PRODUCERS THIS YEAR. WINTER WHEAT KILLS IN DELTA AND SOUTHEAST DUE TO SEVERELY COLD WEATHER THIS WINTER, WITH FREEZING AND THAWING THAT CAUSED ROOT UPHEAVAL AND PLANT DAMAGE. HARD FOR SNOW PACKED POPULATED AREAS EAST OF "THE RIVER" TO BELIEVE THAT MANY PARTS OF THE SOUTHWEST, GREAT PLAIN* 9WESTERN CORNBELT ARE SHORT OF MOISTURE THIS WINTER AND A GOOD SNOW WOULD BE BENEFICIAL. FARMERS KEEP MOVING A SMALL VOLUME OF BEANS AND CORN TO MARKET AT CURRENT RELATIVELY HIGH PRICES, BUT HOLDING SOME BACK FOR USUAL JULY OR AUGUST DROUGHT NEWS THAT PUSHES THE MARKET UP. JULY CORN ON THE BOARD IS OVER 3.00 AND SOYBEANS 6.90. THE PRICE SPREAD BETWEEN CURRENT AND SUMMER QUOTES ARE NOT AS WIDE AS USUAL AND MAY BE NEGATIVE AFTER STORAGE AND INTEREST COSTS ARE FIGURED. The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FEBRUARY 21-27, 1994

FULL SNOW MOON, FEBRUARY 25.

AN ENTERPRISING YOUNG MAN

On February 26, 1829, a baby was born in Buttenheim, Germany, whose name would one day be known around the world. When young Levi Strauss arrived in San Francisco in the 1850s, he sold cotton canvas for tents. But miners' trousers suffered more wear and tear than their tents, so he stitched his sturdy cloth into pants. The fabric, milled in Genoa, Italy, was referred to as "genes." In the 1860s Strauss substituted a softer fabric from Nimes, France, known as serge de Nimes, ("denim" in this country). Strauss dyed the neutral-colored fabric indigo blue to camouflage soil stains, and later added reinforcing rivets at pockets and crotch. The crotch rivet was quickly eliminated when miners complained that squatting too near a campfire resulted in dangerously hot rivets.

The tailor makes the man.

TIP OF THE WEEK

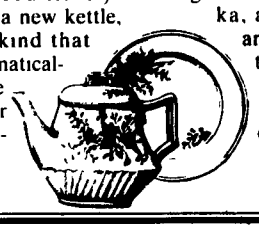
EARTHWISE

A hot cup of tea on a cold winter's afternoon is an old-fashioned comfort. When Polly puts the kettle on, make it an electric kettle, filled with only the amount of water needed. Electric kettles heat water far more efficiently than a pot or kettle on the stove. (Unless it's on the already hot wood stove!) If you're buying a new kettle, look for the kind that shuts off automatically when the water boils for the most energy efficiency.



SKILLET CABBAGE

6 slices bacon
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
¼ cup chopped onion
8 cups shredded cabbage
1¼ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon paprika
½ cup sour cream

In large skillet, cook bacon until crisp and set aside to drain. Reserve 2 tablespoons drippings in the pan. Sauté onion and cabbage in drippings until tender, stirring often. Add salt, paprika, and sour cream, and stir well. Heat through, but do not boil. Crumble one slice bacon over each serving.

Makes 6 servings.

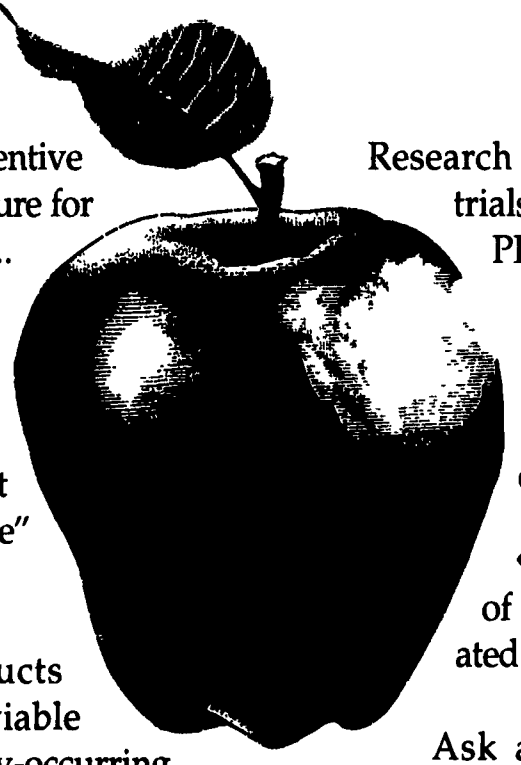
Think of it as "an apple a day" for cows and calves



Experts say "preventive medicine" IS the future for the dairy industry... and dairymen across the country say the line of PROBIOS® brand Microbial Products is the best "preventive medicine" of today.

Research and performance trials have shown that PROBIOS Microbial Products may:

◆ Stimulate appetite in freshening cows

◆ Reduce incidence of scours and associated treatment costs

PROBIOS Products contain selected, viable cultures of naturally-occurring lactic acid-producing bacteria... micro-organisms known for their beneficial activity in the digestive tract of animals. These bacteria are essential for proper digestive tract function and lead to better performance.

Ask about PROBIOS Products and start a prevention program for pennies a day.

OPINION

FFA Week Feb. 19-26

More than 417,000 FFA members will promote FFA, agricultural education and the food and fiber industry during National FFA Week, Feb. 19-26, 1994.

FFA members in 7,545 chapters across the U.S. as well as Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will be organizing events and activities to foster awareness of agricultural education and support for FFA.

This year's theme, "FFA — Leadership for America," will be seen through communities nationwide through promotional efforts of local members. FFA activities and agriculture classes emphasize leadership skills, analytical thinking and the application of both to the industry of agriculture.

Larry Case, national FFA advisor, said today's young people are aware of their responsibilities as agricultural leaders for tomorrow. "Our members realize the world in which we live is growing larger and more interdependent," he said. "These young people will be leading the effort to provide food and fiber for a growing population, as well as to keep America competitive in the global marketplace."

National FFA Week is held each year during the week of George Washington's birthday to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture. Both the National FFA Center and the National FFA Hall of Achievement are located on part of Washington's original Mount Vernon estate near Alexandria, Va.

FFA is a national organization of 417,462 members preparing for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture. FFA's mission is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success. Local, state and national activities and award programs provide opportunities for students to apply knowledge and skills acquired through agricultural education.

Congratulations FFA! Your vision of youth is needed in today's world. And your leadership will take us where we need to go.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Review Insurance Coverage

What does your insurance cover?

If you are like most people, you do not know until you have a claim to file.

The recent record snowfall has caused many farm buildings to collapse. Unfortunately, several farmers have found out their insurance does not cover snow damage.

Now would be a could time to sit down and discuss your insurance coverage with your insurance agent. Discuss with him what your insurance covers and does not cover. Review all the types of things you do or produce on your farm with your insurance agent.

Types of coverages you will want to consider are fire, earthquake, snow, flood, storm, water damage, product liability, general liability, business interruption, and other types recommended by your insurance agent.

If your agent is not familiar with agriculture, you may want to consider finding a company with agriculture experience and types of insurance a farmer needs.

Do not wait for a accident to occur to find out about your insurance coverage. Talk with your agent today and secure the proper coverage.

To Tune-Up Week

A preseason tune-up and calibration preserves environmental quality by ensuring accurate application.

A tune-up includes a check of hardware and plumbing for signs of wear and tear, calibrate and replace worn nozzles, and review safety supplies and procedures.

When checking for wear and tear, look for damage to frame, running gear and tank; check the pump for cracks or leaks; test throttling valves, pressure gauges, hoses and clamps for leaks; check nozzle gaskets for a tight fit; and clean line and tip strainers with fresh water and soft brush.

Calibrate. Make sure nozzle size, flow rate, and spray pattern are uniform across the boom. Replace worn nozzles and keep extra nozzles on hand for spraying season.

Check and use appropriate safety equipment. Basic equipment includes longsleeved shirt, long pants, sturdy shoes or boots, chemical-resistant apron, gloves, and goggles or a face shield.

Be sure to read all labels to identify further safety precautions. And finally, be certain pumping and filling equipment has anti-backflow devices and check values to protect groundwater.

To Secure Pesticide Credits

We are in the heart of the winter meeting season. Now is an excellent time to secure your pesticide re-certification credits.

Do not wait to the last minute to try to secure your credits. In Pennsylvania, you need to renew your pesticide license every three years. It is easier to receive a third of your credits every year than wait and try to receive them all in a short period of time.

Stay current with your credits and secure several this winter.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LOOKING AT NIAGARA
February 20, 1994

Background Scripture:
Luke 22: 1-30
Devotional Reading:
Mark 14: 1, 2, 10-25, 42-45

Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy used to say that seminary graduates ought to start as bishops and then work their way up to parish ministers. I'd like to take that one step further and suggest they start as bishops and end up as lay people! (I think this suggestion was in the same vein as the ancient academy where first-year students were called "wise men", second-year students "philosophers", and third-year student "learners".)

However, I'm afraid the church isn't quite ready for that — yet. All too often, we are back where the original disciples were when Luke wrote: "A dispute also arose among them which of them was to be regarded as the greatest" (22:24). This passage is particularly ironic because just preceding it in the Gospel of Luke is the account of the Last Supper in which Jesus offers them wine and bread as symbols of his body and blood which he will be giving on their — and our — behalf. In the Gospel of John the account of Jesus' last supper with his disciples tells of his washing of the disciples feet (John 13). So, in all four gospels, the story of Jesus' last supper evidences his self-giving love and humble service.

BISHOPS TOO!

How incredible then that, immediately afterward, his disciples would argue over which of them would be the most prominent in the kingdom of God. How could they have sat with him at the table in the upper room and missed the whole point of what he was saying and demonstrating? How, in the presence of his humble love could they be thinking of "which of them was to be regarded as the greatest"?

But it is not as difficult to do as it may seem. Lay people do it. Preachers do it. And bishops do it, too. All of us are pulled and shoved by our egos, by our striving for recognition and acclaim. Ninety percent of the nastiness and heartache I have witnessed in the church could be traced ultimately to both wounded and overinflated egos. I was talking yesterday with a friend who is a member of one of the largest churches of a certain denomination. Knowing the senior minister by reputation, I asked my friend, "What's his greatest asset?" I expected him to mention preaching, pastoring, or church administration. Instead, my friend said somewhat sadly, "He knows how to accumulate and use power." In the conversation that ensued my friend made it clear that the power is used not so much in furthering the gospel, as in advancing the minister himself.

John Trevor Davies tells of a society woman who went to consult a famous psychotherapist. He began their first interview, saying: "Now tell me all about yourself." She did — not only that day but for twice a week for quite a few weeks. Finally, the therapist said to her: "Madam, I can do no more for you now; I advise you to take the first train to Niagara Falls and there take a long lingering look at something bigger than yourself."

SOMETHING BIGGER

Actually, that's what humility is. William L. Sullivan said that "Genuine humility does not arise from the sense of our pitiable kinship with the dust that is unworthy of us but from the realization of our awful nearness to a magnificence of which we are unworthy." Philips Brooks, an Episcopal bishop, said much the same: "The true way to be humble is not to stoop until you are smaller than yourself, but to stand at your real height against some higher nature that will show you what the real smallness of your greatness is." An old adage puts it most simply of all: "A mountain shames a molehill until they are both humbled by the stars."

All too often the church seems to have bought the secular world's concept of greatness. Why don't we turn that around, demonstrating it in our own lives, and selling the secular world on both the teaching and example of Jesus: "Let the greatest among you become as the youngest, and the leader as one who serves" (22:27).

Shaping the Future with the 4-H and FFA

CoreStates Hamilton Bank's Agri-Finance Department is proud to support 4-H and FFA members and their respective programs.

We believe that helping to preserve the family farm is one of the most effective ways to insure a better future for us all. And that involves working with and supporting our young people.

It's important to give them guidance, instill the proper values, and help them acquire the skills they need to be successful farmers.

Once again, CoreStates Hamilton Bank is pleased to support our future farmers.

When You Plant CFS, You're Planting More Than Just Seed.

For every kernel of CFS hybrid corn you plant or every CFS alfalfa or soybean seed you put in the ground...countless CFS hours have been invested in research development, quality assurance and service. Because at Custom Farm Seed, we feel it takes more than just seed to be successful. It takes a sincere commitment to you, our customer, to gain and keep your business.

Custom Farm Seed was founded over 20 years ago with one single goal...to be the best, not necessarily the biggest. Founded on waxy hybrids, CFS has grown to be the recognized leader in waxy corn production for dairy and livestock producers interested in increased feed efficiency.

Complimented by a complete line of soybean, alfalfa and hybrid feed corn, Custom Farm Seed is more than just a seed company.

See your local CFS Seedsman for more information.

Jersey Milk Climbs

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — For the first time in history, the average milk production for Jerseys has leaped to more than 15,000 pounds nationally.

With the increased emphasis on protein in the past few years, Jersey producers are also excelling in keeping up in the marketplace by increasing protein production at a greater rate than fat production.

In 1993, the Jersey breed averaged 15,231 pounds milk, 706 pounds fat, and 564 pounds protein on a mature equivalent basis.

This average is based on a total of 49,318 lactations computed for milk and fat, and 49,251 lactations computed for protein.

The 1993 average production shows a 2.4 percent increase in milk production, a 2 percent increase in protein production, and a 1.6 percent increase in fat production compared to 1992 figures.

Experience Helps Dairy Farmers Recover From Fire

"We'd have been a total loss without them," said LaRue Simpson of the estimated 150 neighbors, relatives, friends, agribusiness leaders, and farmers who converged on the farm even before the firefighters from four local volunteer companies had left.

At one time that day there were so many trucks and livestock trailers parked around the Simpson farm it looked like a fairground, she said.

"It's amazing, even what's going on today," she said two days after the fire, as neighbors dropped off baked goods and friends stopped by to lend a hand in the cleanup operation or just to offer reassurance.

As two friends of the family greeted well-wishers in the kitchen, LaRue sat at the dining room table, fielding telephone calls and trying to keep a record of all the offers of help in a notebook so she could properly thank everyone.

But she realized there was more going on than she was aware of. Undoubtedly she would overlook someone, she said.

LaRue had been in her house about 10:40 a.m. that Saturday when she heard a bang. Something had gone wrong with the tractor running a paper shredder in the barn across the road from the house. It wasn't known immediately exactly where the spark came from, but the shredded newsprint used for the cows' bedding caught fire and the flames spread quickly.

After sounding the alarm to 911, Don and sons Tom and Scott Simpson and hired hand Mike Gahagan tried to fight the fire with an extinguisher kept near the shredder. But it wouldn't work properly. They suspect the extremely cold weather days before the fire may have made the extinguisher less effective.

They abandoned their efforts to fight the fire, and concentrated on saving the 60 milking cows and nearly 100 heifers, calves and dry cows.

Destroyed along with the barn, according to Simpson, was the John Deere tractor and shredder, a silo unloader, a gutter cleaner, a computerized milk pipeline and bulk milk tank, 300 bales of hay, two tons of cattle feed, about $400 worth of medicine, and the cows' breeding records and Dairy Herd Improvement Association records.

Don was able to save the milkers, but not before a burning board fell on his shoulder. Gahagan was treated for smoke inhalation at the scene by local ambulance service paramedics and then was treated and released from the Indiana Hospital.

And that's when the help started arriving.

"I don't know where they all came from so quickly," LaRue said.

One group of volunteers started rounding up the cattle that had been chased from the barn. Trucks with bales of hay arrived. A nearby farmer brought a bulldozer to push the still-burning debris into the center of the fire to protect nearby buildings. Other farmers with livestock trailers stood by to transport the cows away from the fire scene. And food and hot coffee was sent in for the workers.

"People who aren't even farmers — people we don't even know — are offering to help rebuild," LaRue said.

"The word just passed from neighbor to neighbor," said Homer City dairyman Ed Nehrig, one of the first farmers to arrive. When the Simpsons decided the Holsteins had to leave, "some of us just took care of getting it done," he said.

Nehrig took 20 of the cows to his farm. The 40 other Holsteins were trucked to the Nick Patterson farm near Blairsville, where a barn with milking equipment was vacant and available. A load of donated hay arrived there even before the cows did, Nehrig said.

The Simpsons are making the 20-minute trip to the Patterson farm twice a day to feed and milk, then returning to their farm to continue the fire cleanup.

Nehrig uses weigh jars to keep track of the Simpson cows' milk production while they're mixed in with his herd.

"The first night we didn't get much milk from them," Nehrig said, noting the cows had been without food and water part of the day of the fire. "But it's amazing how well they're adapting" to their new surroundings, he said, especially since the Simpson barn had tie-stalls and the Nehrig farm has a milking parlor.

Before the fire the Simpson farm had been shipping about 3,500 pounds of milk per day. The day after the fire, milk production from the dislocated cows was about 700 pounds less — still not too bad, in Simpson's estimation, considering all the excitement and disruptions his cows has been through.

Two days after the fire the offers of help continued.

A dairy farmer at the opposite end of the county volunteered some used lumber to make temporary repairs. Neighbors stopped by to clean up more smoldering embers and to help stretch plastic over the end of a shed that had been attached to the barn. The ministers and members of Graystone Presbyterian Church in Indiana wanted to know if they could sponsor an old-fashioned barn raising.

Chris Nehrig, another neighbor who is an electrical contractor, was busy the Monday after the fire reconnecting electrical service to the fire-damaged shed when Marion Center dairy farmers Richard and Wayne Black stopped by.

In the still-smoldering barnyard, Simpson and Dick Black exchanged a knowing handshake. In 1975, the Blacks experienced a similar setback when their barn burned.

The Blacks offered to contribute some wrapped hay they had, and then the three men chatted about how volunteers at both fires had to work to keep the frightened and confused cattle from running back into their burning barns.

Simpson said he would ask for advice from Black — and from the other farmers he knows whose barns have burned — before he starts any rebuilding plans for his own farm.

He's not surprised at the offers and help he's receiving now.

"It's just the nature of farmers," he said. "They stick together."

"You feel like you're leaning on people," LaRue said, "But that's what neighbors are all about."

The fire is believed to have started in this tractor that was running a paper shredder on the barn's second floor.

Two silos were threatened by the fire that leveled the Simpson's 98-year-old barn on their Indiana County Century Farm.

Council Hires Food Service Manager

CHICAGO, Ill. — Brenda J. Leisy has joined the Beef Industry Council (BIC) as manager of food service programs.

In this position, Leisy serves as the BIC liaison with food service operators, distributors, purveyors, and distributor buying groups. She will implement all nationally developed food service programs and assist state beef councils in the development of state food service marketing programs.

Previously, Leisy was a product manager at Pegler Sysco Food Services Co., Lincoln, Neb. She has also worked as a quality assurance technologist for the Sysco Corporation in Kansas City, Mo. A graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Leisy received a bachelor's in animal science.

The Longer You Wait To Control Quackgrass, The More It Will Cost You.

A wise man once said, "He who hesitates is lost." That's why it makes sense to stop quackgrass early with Roundup® herbicide.

WAITING CAN COST YOU MONEY.

Rescue treatments can cost up to twice as much as Roundup. Even then, they don't deliver the same complete, consistent control.

WAITING CAN COST YOU YIELD.

If you wait until your corn is up to control quackgrass, you've already lost yield. In fact, tests show that waiting to control quackgrass can cost you up to 14 bushels per acre. That's because quackgrass is an aggressive competitor for soil moisture and plant nutrients.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE.

This year, stop quackgrass before it robs you of yield and profit. Ask your dealer for the early, economical control of Roundup herbicide.

Atlantic Breeders Co-operative Considers Merger

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Members of the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative are being asked to consider a merger with two other service-based artificial insemination cooperatives, even though there is no immediate financial need to do so.

During ABC District 4's annual banquet-meeting, held noon Tuesday at Harvest Drive Restaurant in Intercourse, N. Alan Bair, ABC director of member and public relations, told the group about work being done by a committee of the board of directors of Federated Genetics, which is a marketing alliance of cooperatives, including ABC, that formed in 1986.

According to Bair and District 4 Director David Landis, for two years a long-range planning committee has been studying the operations and used a Washington D.C.-based consultant to analyze the current business practices and long term outlook of the cooperatives.

A recommendation from the long range committee is expected by late spring, but it is already known that the most likely recommendation will be for a merger of ABC with two other artificial insemination cooperatives.

Bair said that, while the committee has yet to make an official recommendation to the ABC Board of Directors, it is clear that a merger would reduce duplication of effort, increase member strength, and decrease overall cost of member-services.

Bettering the position of ABC for the future means that it is expected that the trend will continue for declining numbers of cattle. That translates into fewer cattle overall to breed, to use to track and collect sire data, and from which to select new sires.

Since members are the ones who ultimately have to decide the destiny of their cooperative, each of the three cooperatives will have to review and decide on an eventual proposal.

In the meantime, members are being asked to consider the possibility of merging with Eastern Artificial Insemination Cooperative (EAIC), headquartered in Ithaca, N.Y., and with Louisiana Animal Breeders Cooperative (LABC).

The three cooperatives are already aligned with ABC under the marketing organization Federated Genetics. The marketing alliance was created to handle sales of cooperative semen to non-cooperative buyers, including exporting.

The basic premise is that bringing the three organizations together as one cooperative — done while none of the current cooperatives is in financial difficulty — will benefit all members on the short term with continued lower costs, and in the long term as a merged cooperative would be expected to have a competitive advantage against commercial interests, as cow numbers further reduce.

According to Bair, aside from considerations of financial strength, the main reason for the merger proposal between these three cooperatives was because of the similarity of the three cooperatives' operational philosophies.

Bair said each of the cooperatives has an operational philosophy that service to members is the primary purpose of the cooperative's existance, not merely creating volume sales of semen.

He said the reason for creating the cooperative in the first place was so that each member could better afford top cattle genetics.

Therefore, he said ABC spends a great deal of its income on providing service to members. Atlantic's statement of operations for 1993 bears out that the majority of the cooperative's expenses — $4,448,559 — was for providing service to members, and that breeding fees charged members — $4,606,985 — closely reflects that expense, minimizing much overhead.

Many details of a merger were not available because what is being currently proposed is the concept of a merger, not the design of the merger, according to Bair.

In accordance with the merger concept, there are four basic reasons for doing a merger now, while each cooperative is in strong financial position and has a strong, short-term outlook.

Business size has been given as a reason to consider a merger now. It was explained that while ABC has been steadily growing during the past decade, cow numbers have been steadily declining.

This means that with fewer cattle to inseminate, cooperatives most likely will be eventually faced with either increasing unit price to members, or getting a larger percentage of the cattle insemination business, in order to offset member prices.

According to Bair, if a merger would occur, the newly formed cooperative would have a membership of 28,000, which was the membership of ABC when it first formed.

Agronomy Day Set

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — The 1994 Agronomy Day Sponsored by Penn State/Bradford County Cooperative Extension and agribusiness exhibitors will be held on Tuesday, March 15, at the Wysox firehall.

The doors will open at 9 a.m. for registration, coffee, and donuts for visiting exhibitions.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude by 3 p.m. Lunch reservations at $3 per person are due at the Bradford County Cooperative Extension office by Friday, March 4.

Interested agribusinesses that may wish to display their offerings are also encouraged to contact the Bradford County Cooperative Extension office as soon as possible.

The meeting will provide the opportunity to gain update pesticide credits for pesticide license renewal for private and commercial applicators.

The meeting will feature Dr. Doug Beegle, extension agronomist, and Dr. Dennis Calvin, extension entomologist at the Pennsylvania State University.

Beegle's first topic, beginning at 10:45 a.m., will be the use of soil testing reports and records to monitor and ultimately manage soil fertility. In the afternoon, Beegle will discuss management techniques to maximize the agronomic and economic benefits of manure applications to crop fields while minimizing environmental impacts.

At 11:20 a.m., Calvin will discuss plant development and insect injury. Information will focus on corn for grain and silage as will as the forage crops common to this area. His afternoon presentation will involve a more detailed discussion about controlling early season corn pests.

Also on the Agronomy Day agenda is Mark Madden and Tom Maloney, Bradford County agricultural extension agents. They will make presentations during the day regarding pesticide safety, the Chemsweep program, and the Worker Protection Standard, and the worker protection training that some employer producers may need to provide to their employers.

The afternoon session will begin with the five-acre corn crib awards from the 1993 growing season.

Door prizes provided to participating Agronomy Day sponsors will be awarded during the day.

by James Kreider, president of the ABC Board of Directors, published in the cooperative's annual report to stockholder members, "We see four reasons for a need to restructure: maintain size of the business; need for greater efficiency; importance of nonmember business to help finance the cooperative; position ourself to meet the future changes that we see in the dairy industry."

The increased size of a new cooperative membership would obstensibly mean reducing overhead costs by eliminating redundant services provided now by the three different cooperative adminstrations. In other words, the overall cost of running the new cooperative would be less than currently running all three separately.

As a combined cooperative, the strength of a larger stable of sires to offer nonmembers could possibly compete better on the open market with commercial operations.

Bair said that a merger scenario would probably mean having new cooperative headquarters in Ithaca, N.Y., where Eastern has a more modern building than ABC.

But the Lancaster County stud facilities for 200 bulls would continue to be used, as would the 30-animal facility in Louisiana, and Eastern's more than 650 animal facility.

Under the vision of a merger, as it is forming, Bair said there appears to be no reason to change the efficiency of sire sampling; semen collecting would be done at Ithaca; and there would be no interruption in service to members.

Along with the expected elimination of some administrative jobs, a new position would be created. Bair said a person who would work on research and development would be added to the administrative staff.

Among other questions posed by a merger would be determining the size of a board of directors. Currently there are 16 members on ABC's board, 14 sit on Eastern's board, and Louisiana has a 25-member board of directors.

During Tuesday's meeting several people said that a smaller board of directors would probably be better for a merged operation, because of speed with which decisions could be made.

Also up in the air is what the name of a merged cooperative would be. Bair said all suggestions are welcome.

"In reality, at this time, there are more questions than answers," Bair said. "We're talking about ideas, not decisions. We need input and we need more details."

He said leadership is looking to members to help provide this, so that the organization continues to be one that members want and control.

Bair said that members should talk about this among each other and with their elected representatives, directors and resource people. "Don't be afraid to contact these people," he said.

Also Bair said that members should stay in contact with cooperative field staff.

"As information becomes available, we will inform employees," he said. "Please get your information from within the organization."

Bair and other leaders of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative have spent the past two weeks traveling throughout its membership region to hold 42 annual district meetings for stockholder-members. The agenda for each meeting included presenting the possible merge.

In other business, Bair also talked about members choice of semen. He said that they shouldn't fall into the trap of using sires merely because they top the most recent list for predicted transmitting abilities.

Rather, he said that breeders should select sires for what they can do for the member's herd.

Also during the meeting, five area dairymen were honored for having high producing herds this past year. Receiving certificates of merit were J. Ray Ranck, Melody Lawn Farm, Parke Ranck Jr., Clair Landis, Ed Landis.

Awards were presented by local technicians Naaman Stoltzfus, Glen Geib, and George Shoe.

Wayne County Dairy Day Set

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The 1994 Wayne County Dairy Day is to be held Thursday, March 3, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. at the Wayne County Veterans Memorial Armory, located off of Tryon Street in Honesdale.

The Wayne County Dairy Day is conducted each year to recognize the importance of the dairy industry in Wayne County. Dairy Day is also a way to provide area dairymen with the latest dairy industry information in terms of new technology, dairy equipment, feeds and feeding programs, and more.

It is sponsored by the Wayne County Cooperative Extension in cooperation with area dairy supply dealers, financial services and marketing firms, artificial insemination cooperatives, breed organizations and farm organizations.

Some of the educational topics to be presented this year are: "BST and Its Use in Dairy Herds," "Management and Care of Dry Cows," and "Worker Protection Standards — Train-the-Trainers."

Area dairy farmers should mark March 3 on their calendar. Interested commercial exhibitors should contact the Wayne County Cooperative Extension, Courthouse, Honesdale, PA 18431 to secure exhibit details and materials and/or to reserve exhibit space. The telephone number to dial is 253-5970, ext. 239.

Wolff Says Gov. Casey's Budget Good To Ag

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Robert P. Casey's new state budget will improve efforts to protect animal health and food inspection programs, and provides funds to help farmers develop nutrient management plans, according to Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff.

"The governor's budget calls for $207,000 in state funds and $2.4 million in Capitol Budget funding to improve diagnostic services at laboratories at Penn State, University of Pennsylvania and the agriculture department's laboratory," Wolff said.

"This budget gives us the resources to complete the diagnostic improvements initiated by the Animal Health Commission."

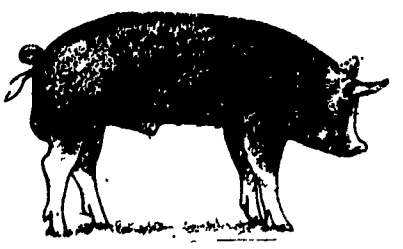
"Wolff praised the governor's proposal to reduce the corporate new income tax from 12.25 to 9.99 percent over the next three years.

"The governor's business tax cuts will benefit farmers and food processors, providing an opportunity for growth at a time when we've been having great success finding new markets here at home and overseas."

Wolff also said the new budget provides a 9.8 percent increase in funding to operate the State Department of Agriculture.

"The governor's spending plan puts up $101,000 to beef up inspection and testing programs that will guarantee continued consumer confidence in the food and milk supply," Wolff said.

"The Departmens will also get the support we need to certify the specialists who will write the plans that will help farmers meet nutrient management requirements."



THE ONLY ENCAPSULATED PREMIX THAT GETS THROUGH RESIDUE

In no-till corn, you only get one shot at season-long weed control. That's why it pays to load up with Bullet® herbicide. Bullet is encapsulated to shoot through heavy crop residue. So while others volatilize off the surface or get tied up in residue, Bullet gets into the soil to stop germinating weeds.

ENCAPSULATED FOR SUPERIOR CROP SAFETY

Instead of releasing its power in a single shot, Bullet meters out its active ingredient throughout the entire growing season. In doing so, it delivers unsurpassed crop safety — especially when your young corn plants are most vulnerable to herbicide stress.

ENCAPSULATED FOR SEASON-LONG GRASS AND BROADLEAF CONTROL

Unlike other atrazine premixes, Bullet is micro-encapsulated for timed-release, season-long control. The kind of control you need to stop tough grasses and broadleaves like foxtails, fall panicum, cocklebur, lambsquarters, pigweed and velvetleaf.

This year, ask your dealer for the no-till premix that combines stopping power with staying power. Bullet herbicide from Monsanto.

Lancaster Dairy Days, Tie-Stall Remodeling Meetings Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County DairyDays are scheduled for Tuesdays, February 22 and March 1, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The theme for this year's Dairy Days is Managing High Producing Cows Profitably. Both days feature dairy consultants and practitioners who have a lot of field experience working with successful farms in New England, New York, Pennsylvania and the Mid-Atlantic states.

On February 22, Dr. Brian L. Perkins and Robert C. Fry will team up to share their experiences and thoughts on managing dairy farms for profit with an emphasis on nutrition, reproduction, and management practices for helping to improve the bottom line.

Dr. Perkins had worked several years in the Lancaster area as a nutritionist before moving to Vermont and starting his own consulting service, Dairy Management Services, Inc. He services herds through out the New England states and upper New York.

After working on his family's large dairy farm in Chestertown, Md., Dr. Robert C. Fry set up his own consulting service and practice, Atlantic Dairy Management Services. He advises a large range of dairy farms, from small family farms to large corporate enterprises.

Are your heifers and dry cows in good enough condition to begin their next lactation with a running start? Will they consume enough dry matter and will their ration be formulated in a manner that will enable them to peak well and sustain high levels of milk production without losing excessive amounts of weight and without developing metabolic problems such as fatty livers, ketosis, DA's, Laminitis, etc.? Will cows breed back well and will they be healthy enough to stay in the herd long enough to reward you with some good offspring, some satisfaction and some profit? That is a tremendous challenge for today's progressive dairy farmers — and for this year's Dairy Days speakers.

On March 1, the focus will be on herd health with an emphasis on: vaccine and cows' immune systems, reducing somatic cell counts, controlling and preventing mastitis and Johne's disease, and Pennsylvania's Johne's certification program.

These health topics will be addressed by a team of practitioners with a lot of field experience. They include: John C. Simms, VMD; New Bolton Veterinarian, Ray Sweeney, Richard Bartholomew and Robert Whitlock; plus Lawrence J. Hutchinson, Professor of Veterinary Science at Penn State. Also sharing their experience and thoughts on Johne's disease will be a panel of local farmers, Larry Harnish from Washington Boro and Axel Linde and Millie Widmann from Oxford.

Tie-Stall Barn Remodeling and Expansion

Many farmers are thinking about remodeling or expanding their tie-stall dairy barns in an effort to become more efficient. To help them with these ideas, a meeting has been scheduled for the purpose of discussing remodeling and expansion ideas for tie-stall barns. It will be held Friday, February 25, 10 a.m. until 12 noon at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university.

Brian Perkins, dairy consultant from New Haven, Vermont, will be one of the featured speakers February 22 at Lancaster Dairy Day. See story for program outline and other scheduled speakers.

National FFA'er Says Japan Trip Was Great Exchange With Positive People

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GREENVILLE, N.Y. — Liam Brody, FFA eastern region vice president, wants all FFA'ers to know that, internationally, Japan holds FFA in high regard.

Despite what is happening on the trade front (with a possible trade war looming in the spring, according to current reports), the message that he took to Japan from the U.S. was positive and reinforced the attitude that two countries can work together.

Brody, 19, son of Pat and Bill Brody, Greenville, is a member of the Greenville FFA. He participated, along with six other national FFA officers, in the National FFA Officer International Experience Program at the end of January.

During their trip to Japan, the group visited a large number of agricultural businesses and historical landmarks in Kyoto and Tokyo.

Brody said some of the Japanese people view our government as "overly aggressive, almost to the point of pushy," regarding working out the trade problems. He said that one of the reasons they feel that way is because, in years past, because of arrangements worked out with the two governments, Japan reduced its rice crop production to help balance the trade deficit. But the past growing season, Japan experienced a drought and must deal with the shortage of crop.

"They hold the U.S. responsible in the long run," said Brody. However, he said the experience was "one of the greatest exchanges with a positive people that hold a reverence for all kinds of people."

As a result of this learning experience, a videotape was prepared that Brody and other tour members will highlight in several speeches across the country in the coming months.

Included will be stops in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and other areas making up about 250,000 miles.

First, Brody travels this week to Washington, D.C. as part of the activities of National FFA Week, which runs from Feb. 19-26. There, he will be visiting U.S. representatives to speak about his experiences abroad.

This year's theme is "FFA — Leadership For America." In a release, the national organization indicated that during FFA Week and throughout the year, "FFA chapters conduct activities that develop the leadership skills of high school students. These experiences will prepare them for important leadership roles in the future."

While in Washington, Brody will be speaking to several news organizations. Brody said that Andrew McCrea, national FFA secretary, is scheduled to be interviewed on NBC's Today Show. Some of the highlights may include segments of the video taken in Japan.

Brody said that his involvement in FFA began when he heard good things about his FFA adviser, William Ransom. Brody said that many people spoke highly of the teacher, who simply made "learning fun."

Brody garnered his project work experience at a horse farm in Greenville and also worked on the Echo Vale Farm, operated by Sarah Hall, also in Greenville. Echo Vale raises about 200 head of registered Montadale and Suffolk sheep.

Brody said the first year he cleaned the stalls and did other tasks that helped him learn a lot about sheep production, including "worming, breeding, clipping, and showing," he said.

He also showed at several local fairs and at the state fair. He helped Hall show at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass.

Brody has served as chapter vice president (1988-1989), district president (1990-1991), state vice president (1991-1992), and regional vice president (1993-1994). He said that FFA continues to grow at a tremendous pace, up from less than 400,000 members three years ago to 417,000 today.

He believes that every FFA member should have a chance to learn about the international importance of agriculture. The career opportunities in ag will be in sales and international agriculture.

Brody said it is important for FFA'ers to increase their perceptions of other cultures to help improve the opportunities for all members and to react positively to all situations.

Water Resource Workshop Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Many rural and urban homeowners throughout Pennsylvania own property which contains a surface water resource. This water resource may be a stream, lake, pond, or a wetland.

"What can I do with this wetland?" This is a question which is commonly asked by property owners. Perhaps the simplest thing to do is to enhance the wetland vegetation to provide diversity, beauty, and wildlife habitat.

Does your property contain a creek or stream? Do you know how to tell if the stream is healthy or if it needs "repair"? Are you plagued by a stream with eroding banks? What permits do I need before I start working?

These questions and many more will be discussed during the Landowner Water Resource Awareness Workshop which will be held on March 8 at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster. The morning sessions will begin at 9 a.m. and cover the topics of wetland ID, stream improvement, and permits. The afternoon sessions will begin at 1:30 and cover the topics of wetland enhancement and stream bank stabilization.

Speakers for the day will be representatives from the Army Corps of Engineers, Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission, and the Lancaster County Conservation District. Representatives from private industry have been invited to display and promote their services.

For more information, contact the Lancaster County Conservation District at (717) 299-5261.

injuries to beef cattle than to dairy cattle, though. The dairy cows seem content to hang around the barnyard where it's relatively safe, but the beef cattle are used to ranging out into the fields and they get out onto the worst of the ice."

Dr. Miller concurs that the price that the northern Maryland counties will have paid in destroyed livestock is likely to be much higher than anyone could have foreseen. He says that he knows of at least another 50 or more head of cattle that have been destroyed in his end of the state, bringing the total to over a hundred head in just those two areas alone.

Dr. Miller, as well as Dr. Rosenberger, cites the amount of man hours spent on just trying to save the cattle. He has a number of stories from the "Ice Age", some tragic, some wryly humorous.

He tells of himself and a group of men who spent some two or three hours on one poor cow alone which had gotten down on the ice and, though apparently uninjured, seemed unable to move at all. They finally put bands around her and pulled her out of the field with a tractor. "We fought for what seemed like forever for this cow, and we'd get maybe six inches or so nearer the barn for each period of struggle," he says. "The cow just laid there, so much dead weight and didn't do much of anything. Finally we got her up to where her front hooves were just touching the barnyard where there was good footing... and after all that struggle, you know that darn old cow just got up out of the harness and walked right past us! Wouldn't even look at us."

Mike Krome of Westminster had to use his tractor to get to stranded Angus cows.

"Another farm wasn't as lucky, though," Dr. Miller continues, "They had three cows down, and when we examined the first two, they were in bad shape and we just had to put them down. The third cow looked just as bad. She was all splayed out on the ice, with her hind legs just spread out to each side and one front leg bent back underneath her. I was so sure that she had a least one broken leg, if not more, that I just walked back to the truck to get some more stuff to put her out with before I even tried to examine her. When I turned around and started back toward her, I'll be darned if she didn't look right at me, stand up, and start walking! I guess she was more scared of me than she was of the footing, and right about then she had good reason!"

The cattle that had fallen on the ice were not the only concern that Maryland farmers had. There were herds of cows, many of them bred, who could not get out of wooded areas where they had gone to shelter from the weather to get to feed, hay or water. Neighbors of Mike and Carolyn Krome whose Persimmon Tree Farm is in Westminster had thirty or more head of bred cows stranded on a ridge above their farm. They couldn't get up the hill to the cattle with even their heaviest equipment, and the cows were not about to move at all, being content to stand where they were and eat a little of the seven inches of snow that had fallen on top of the 3 or 4 inches of glare ice on the ridge. After two days of this, and with no break in the icy weather in sight, the neighbors asked if they could take hay to feed their cows from one of the Krome's barns which was on the same ridge as the cows. Mike loaded hay into his farm wagon and took it as far across the icy ridge as his tractor would safely go, and the young men carried it through the fields, bale by bale to the stranded cattle.

Carolyn says, "It took most of one day just to get enough hay to that many hungry cows, because as soon as the boys got a bale over the fence, it just disappeared! I felt so sorry for the boys... I think they fell down with those bales as much as they stood up, but they just kept on going until all those cows were fed. They were really dedicated."

The weather reports for the next week are calling for clear skies with temperatures in the upper 40's to low 50's for the Maryland area. It may just give the beleaguered farmers of the northern counties a much needed respite to dig out and assess their losses, which right now appear to be severe

Dr. William Rosenberger of Reisterstown Veterinary Center returns from a day that started with emergencies before dawn.

Crops Experts Advise On Plant Planning

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The common element in talks given by crop experts Tuesday during the 33rd Lancaster County Crops and Soils Day was "management."

Sponsored by the Lancaster County Extension Service and supported by Lancaster Farm Credit Association, Hamilton Bank, and other agribusinesses, about 200 people attended the event held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, despite snowfall predictions of up to several inches.

Speakers included Penn State University crop experts Dr. Dennis Calvin, Dr. Greg Roth, and Dr. Douglas Beegle, and Lancaster County Extension Agent Robert Anderson.

Calvin discussed management for corn rootworms and considerations for early season pest management, focussing on the stage of development from seed through sprouting, to the fourth-leave stage of development.

According to Calvin, corn rootworms can be managed using testing and a system of checking for levels of the pest before applying a pesticide. Rotational strategies can also keep pest population levels below that which would impact financial returns.

In addition to rootworm, Calvin also talked about spring pests and said that it needs to be understood that insect pests are not present in a field without reason; that there are characteristics about fields which serve to attract pests.

He said that in order to understand management for pests, an understanding of the pest and its behavior and nature is essential.

With knowing what attracts pests, what they prefer to feed on, and the basics of the life cycles, a cropman can better "read" his fields for potential problems and better be aware of when he has a problem.

And, it should be understood that during the early phase in development — emergence to 4th leave stage — the plant is primarily depending on energy stored within the seed. Any damage to emerging roots or stalk can be fatal to the plant, because it can't make up the difference in energy.

Damage in the pre-4th leave stage can also show up in reduced yields, in the long run.

When seeds are planted they absorb water and begin respiration, producing carbon dioxide.

The carbon dioxide is also an attractant to insects such as wireworms, white grubs and seedcorn maggots, he said.

This is important to understand because a decision can be made with respect to pests and whether to use a soil insecticide, or a seed treatment, depending on which pest is in a field, and whether it may be there in a level high enough to damage yields.

Calvin presented several scenarios in which a producer could take justifiable preventative action.

For example, in the case of the seedcorn maggot, Calvin said the adults are first drawn to a field because of decomposing vegetative matter, which produces volatile organic chemicals that attract them.

Such obvious fields are those in which no-till planting and surface residue is significant, or in which a lot of manure has been applied.

The eggs are hatched and the larvae then migrate toward the carbon dioxide in the seedling.

The cure would be to use treated seed, Calvin said.

Another example of the benefit of knowing about insects pest behavior involves wireworm, which can decimate corn.

Calvin said that wireworm is more of a feeder of grass roots, particularly blue grass. In a field that has been converted from grass within the past five years, wireworms can be a problem, because unlike most of the corn crop pests, wireworms have a 2- to 3-year life cycle.

Thus they can remain a pest to crops planted in the soil for years after conversion from grass.

Calvin said that a seed treatment can helps, as well as can a soil treatment, but that they can be difficult to control because they will move through the substrate with the varying levels of moisture and can actually escape coming into contact with a pesticide until after the chemical breaks down and is no longer effective.

The black cutworm is probably the second most common problem in Pennsylvania, according to Calvin. He said normally by the time that a problem is visually noticed, it is too late to prevent serious damage.

However, control of the black cutworm can be done through management of winter annual weeds, such as common chickweed.

What frequently happens is that the migratory moth of the black cutworm flies north and lays eggs on weeds such as common chickweed, he said.

In the spring, a chemical burndown removes the cutworm infested chickweed, but doesn't injur the cutworm larvae. They migrate to the corn plant.

Other weeds which attract cutworm are Shepherd's Purse and varieties of the wild mustard.

A stand of alfalfa can host them also and damage can occur to corn planted against alfalfa, he said.

According to Calvin, if the farmer can get into the field to burn down the chickweed from 10 to 14 days ahead of planting, then the cutworm larvae die from lack of nurishment, before they can opportunize the corn.

Calvin also reviewed the sod webworm, slug, common stalk borer, billbug (Which depends on yellow nutsedge, a plant associated more with wetlands, for its lifecycle.), and the army worm, even though it is usually associated with crop damage during a later stage in development, such as mid- to late-June.

The army worm, for example, lays its eggs in rye, and then when the rye is removed, the larvae migrate to the corn.

In other business, Dr. Greg Roth discussed producing quality silage and managing corn for profit.

Roth said that 70 to 75 percent of the dairymen surveyed were found to be growing corn silage because of its consistency as a forage, the mechanical aspects of it, reduced labor, and its volume of harvest, which is important especially in areas where season length limits haymaking.

In attempting to produce quality corn silage, he said most producers take either a defensive or an offensive approach.

A defensive approach to making silage is to select a limited amount of acreage for corn, and depending on the result of the season, decide at harvest time how much is going to go toward silage.

Roth said that for some areas of Pennsylvania, especially those in which soil and weather conditions present a more upredictable crop, such a strategy is good, because of its flexibility.

A defensive strategy to silage production would incorporate a similar management as for grain, modest plant population levels, medium length maturity, soil fertility based on grains, in addition to silage fields being selected at harvest.

However, in other areas of the state, especially for large dairy operations, an offensive approach is preferable because it can reduce risk of coming up short with forage.

An offensive strategy would be characterized as management being based on the crop's end use, higher plant populations, a longer maturity, fertility based on the crop's use as silage (Potash is lost from soil more rapidly with silage than with grain corn because of the removal of the whole plant, rather than a portion of it.), and with silage fields being selected before planting.

The first step in planning the crop is to determine how much is needed. Roth said that for every pound of silage fed, an additional 18 percent is needed because of expected losses. Other crops can require planting as much as 50 percent more than anticipated need, he said.

The expectation is that a quality silage should result more frequently from a program directed at producing silage, than in a program that treats silage as an option.

According to Roth, offensive-style planting rates would be from 25,000 to 30,000 plants per acre (ppa), at least 2,000 to 4,000 more ppa than with grain plantings.

He said some people are now looking at planting even higher rates with 15-inch rows and harvesting it with modified equipment so that row direction in harvest is not a strong factor — the harvester can operate equally well in any direction.

And while he said research into that technique looks promising, substantiating research is still being performed and a lot of questions still need to be answered.

Soil tests on silage ground are recommended, because of the use of potash, and also to ensure that the resulting crop has enough protein content from adequate nitrogen levels.

Hybrid selection is also a factor in managing for quality silage.

Roth said that selecting for maturity is very important, and that longer maturities help — there is a correlation between length of maturity and yield.

However, he said that potential harvesting problems (such as whether a producer can normally get into a field at certain time of the year), livestock feeding requirements, silo filling time, and the adaptability of the hybrid should all be considered.

He talked about his work growing tropical varities of corn in Pennsylvania, as an example of adaptation. He said while the 12- to 13-foot high stalks initially appear as though they should produce more silage, the quality isn't as high because it doesn't resist pests as well and he wasn't able to get grain development to levels that justified using the plant.

He said he also did work with "open pollinated" seed and his results showed that this resulted in even poorer silage, because of variation within the field and in plants.

He said that yield data should be used whenever possible in selecting a hybrid. The differences in yield can be great, he said, and while other considerations are important, yield data is the best information.

Stress tolerance should be considered as well as the particular nature of the field and local environment in which a hybrid is being considered for planting.

He said yield is probably the most important factor, while stress tolerance is probably the second most important.

Energy content in silage has caused a lot of confusion in the past couple of years, according to Roth.

He said that field reports are showing some range in apparent effectiveness, though laboratory tests indicate nutrient values about equal.

Differences in lignin content, which is a nondigestable fiber in the plant, is higher in some varieties and it also increases with age of plant. The lignin is used by the plant as a structural component and apparently is protecting some nutrients and energy in silage from the digestive action in the cow.

So while silage tests may be equal, the feed value may well be significantly different because of the lignin component.

Crimping is being tried, but no studies yet support the theory that crimping corn fodder before ensiling allows better digestability of the end product.

Rolling silage prior to mixing in a totally mixed ration (TMR), in order to crack open reserves of nutrients is also apparently largely untried.

The differences in lignin content are considered to be significant enough that research is being directed at it, he said.

The most digestible corn silage comes from plants harvested early, while the milk line is still high in the seed. Roth said that though some people may have had trouble with seeping from too young silage, he said that a larger, courser cut should prevent some of that.

He said that seed companies are starting to do more work with hybrids selected for ensiling, but in the meantime, he said to select a hybrid for maturity, high yield, quality, digestibility and protein content.

Anti-quality factors include weed growth, late harvest and cloudy weather. Weed growth and late harvest are management issues.

Roth also talked briefly about "stay-green" corn varieties, but said that his research has shown negligable differences in moisture content at harvest between plants retaining its green and those showing the normal brown.

"But I still think something is there, from talking to farmers," he said.

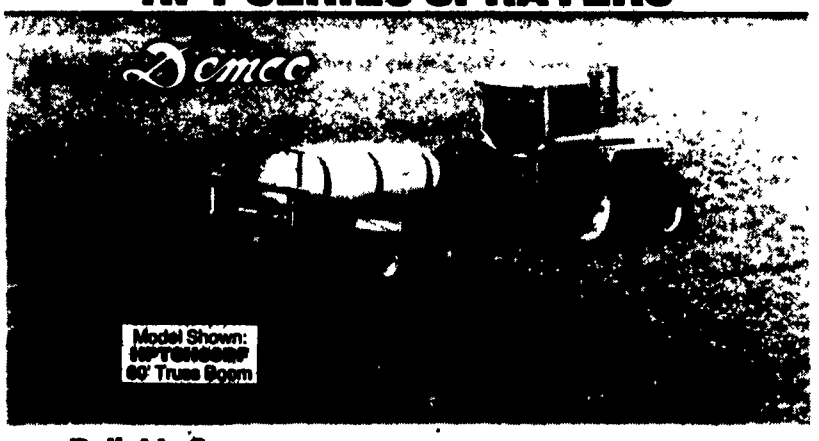
Also important in making quality silage is to make sure to get a good pack and a good seal. He said to try to eliminate air, delays in filling and variability in the silo.

He said that after harvest, producers should be thinking about soil conditions and using cover crops.

Students Prepare Display For Builder's Show

A series of vocational school demonstrations will be part of the 1994 Builders Show February 26 to March 6 at the Farm Show Complex. FFA Chapters and 4-H Clubs will be participating, along with other vocational organizations. Two-hundred students will be helping with displays and demonstrations. The "Wonderful Wetlands" display shown above has been prepared for the show by the FFA Chapter at Dover High School. Presenting the display are from left, Brian Smyser, a senior, and Mike Boyer, Jon Bish, and Harry Border, all juniors.

500 and 600 gallon TANDEM AXLE HPT SERIES SPRAYERS



Reliable Sprayers

- 500 or 600 gallon elliptical polyethylene tank with baffle and deep sump for complete drainage.
- Jet agitation for thorough mixing and excellent chemical suspension.
- Large 16" fillwell with 4" center cap.
- Adjustable wheel spacings of 60", 70", or 80" centers. (120" optional)
- Walking tandem axle trailer with ground clearance settings of 23" or 29", three ton hubs and spindles and 15" x 10" wheels.
- Large front mounted step, platform, and safety rail for easy filling.
- Three section boom control.
- 2½ gal. clean water tank for safety.
- Available with 28', 30', 40', 45' or 60' heavy duty truss booms with boom skids, ¾" boom plumbing, and diaphram check nozzles. DBFT Flotation boom mount is standard on truss booms.
- Available with 60' or 80' wheeled booms with ¾" boom plumbing, diaphragm check nozzles, and 4.80x12" boom carrier wheels with built in suspension.

Pump Packages

- Demco single or double piston pump with electric shut-off.
- Hypro belt driven centrifugal pump.
- Hypro gear driven centrifugal pump.
- Ace hydraulic driven centrifugal pump.

MASCHIO

ROTARY CULTIVATOR

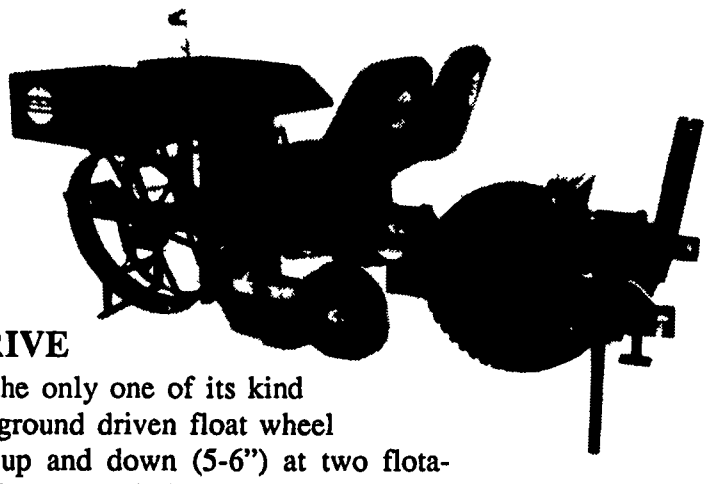
Modern design for today's smaller H.P. tractors. Ideal tiller for large gardens, small acreage farms, orchards, nurseries, and vegetable growers. As with all Maschio tillers, these units feature superior quality and heavy duty construction.

MECHANICAL TRANSPLANTER MODEL 1000

For The Grower That Demands The "VERY FINEST"

The High Performance Model 1000

has increased planting speeds 20 to 30%.



OUR PATENTED FLOAT WHEEL DIRECT DRIVE SYSTEM is the only one of its kind available. This ground driven float wheel moves straight up and down (5-6") at two flotation points. This patented double floating action maintains correct ground contact at all times for both the drive wheel and rear packing wheels letting the units float independently no matter how many rows. No weight of any hitch, toolbar, or water tank is resting on the drive wheel to compact the soil. The wheel just smooths, firms and ideally prepares the soil providing accurate plant placement, proper depth control, and positive spacings from 6" and up in all soil conditions.

Jr. Holstein Members Recongize Outstanding Achievements

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association held its annual convention last week at the Ramada Inn in Gettysburg and, despite winter storm warnings, snow and ice, was well attended.

During the convention a number of awards and recognitions were made and competitions held.

In the dairy bowl contest, senior division a team from Lebanon County won through a double elimination contest besting Cumberland County. The winning team was made up of Karen Lentz, Steve Bollinger, Jen Bashore, and Jeff Hostetter. Their coach was Daune Nolt.

The Cumberland County team was comprised of Matthew Day, David Day, Heath Ocker and John Leib Jr. Their coach was Ann Day.

In the junior division, the winners were a team from Berks County consisting of Jen Neiman, Mike Neiman, Erica Davis, and melissa Werley. Their coach was Charles Seidel.

The second place junior division team was from Lebanon County including Kathy Habecker, Justin Troutman, Todd Getz and Troy Miller. The coach is Michael Kunkle and Dave Lentz.

Sponsored by Pfizer Inc. Animal Health Division, the winners were presented with travel bags and money awards to help with the cost of attending the national contest.

There were two winners of a 30,000-pound cow award, which goes to individual members who have bred and own cows that have produced at least 30,000 pounds of milk in one lactation.

The winners were Belmer Hitchcock, of Russell, in Warren County, who had two winning cows, and Erica Davis, of Kutztown, Berks County.

Also recognized were junior members who have bred a cow that has been evaluated by the Hosltein Association as Excellent.

Those who bred Excellent cows were Charann Foster, of Petersburg, Rachel Tanis, of Centre Hall, Justin Burdette, of Mercersburg, Stephanie Wagner, of Myerstown, and Dianne Glock, of Mifflin.

This year saw the most entries in the Junior Holstein Production contest, with 111 entries in the 2-year-old class; 72 in the 3-year-olds; 55 in the 4-year-olds; and 73 5-year-olds entered.

The class winners in milk production were Christopher Shultz, 2-year-old with 29,759 pounds of milk, 837 pounds protein; Greta Braund, 3-year-old with 30,883 pounds of milk, 902 pounds of protein; Jamie Shultz, 4-year-old with 36,637 pounds of milk, 1,088 pounds of protein; and Nichol Bozlinski, aged cow with 33,309 pounds of milk, 999 pounds of protein.

In the fat production contest, Matthew Day had the top producing 2-year-old with 1,086 pounds; Thad Sturgeon had the top 3-year-old with 1,083 pounds; Matthew Pease had the top 4-year-old with 1,384 pounds, and Aaron Sheeley had the top 5-year-old with 1,273 pounds of fat.

In the protein production contest, Nicholas Hunsberger had the top 2-year-old with 914 pounds; Matthew Pease had the top 3-year-old with 971 pounds; Jamie Shultz had the best 4-year-old with 1,088 pounds; and Nichol Bozlinski had the best aged cow with 999 pounds.

Junior Progressive Breeders awards were presented to Stephanie Wagner, of Myerstown, Craig Walton of Carlisle, Belmer Hitchcock, of Russell, and Amy Packard, of Troy.

The awards are made to those who have bred five or more registered Holsteins which have been classified and scored a minimum which correlates to age, and have DHIA recorded milk production above a certain minimum.

Those with less than five animals were also recognized.

The 1993 Junior All-Pennsylvania Show awards were also presented during the convention with 15 classes recognized. The contest is a picture and placing contest with three judges evaluating and placing each class.

Elizabeth Walton, of Carlisle, and Justin Burdette, of Mercersburg, each received two awards, while Danielle Sparling, of Troy, received one Junior All-Pennsylvania awards and one reserve junior award. There were 35 others who were recognized in the contest with 79 entries in all.

Jr. Holstein Members Recognize Outstanding Achievements

Three individuals received a $750 Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Scholarship which are made based on work with Holsteins, community involvement, school activities and leadership abilities.

Recipients were Dan Geissinger, of Mifflintown, son of Ray and Linda Geissinger, who said he intends to use the money for improving the breeding and quality of the dairy herd; Chad Linamen, son of Jack and Ellen Linamen, of Valencia, who is to start college this fall; and Rachel Tanis, daugther of Jacob and Sallianne Tanis, of Centre Hall, who is a student at Bloomsburg University.

Also recognized during the convention were the association's Distinguished Junior Members.

Senior-age division winner were Kara Tussey, daugther of Raymond and Susan Tussey, of Huntingdon; and Thad Sturgeon, son of Tim and Kathy Sturgeon, of Fombell.

Finalists included Dan Geissinger, of Mifflintown and Belmer Hitchcock.

In the intermediate-age division, DJM winners were Angela Werley, daughter of Philip and Donna Werley, of Hamburg, and Justin Burdette, son of James and Nina Burdette, of Mercersburg.

Other finalists included Matthew Day, Shippensburg, Erica Davis, Kutztown, Adam Dean, of New Castle, and Dainne Glock, of Mifflin.

In the junior-age division, DJM winners were Amanda Martin, daughter of Eugene and Kathleen Martin, of Lebanon, and Kyle Burdette, also the son of James and Nina Burdette.

Other finalists recognized were Denise Bollinger, of Manheim, Gregory Davis, of Kutztown, and Shannon Holtzinger, of East Berlin.

Holstein Association Outlines

board of directors was an announcement of a new classification program that is to go into effect August 1.

The association's classification program has been under consideration for change to better meet member needs. In this effort, a pilot program was introduced in April 1992 called the Flexible Participation Options which allow several classification options to meet special needs.

The pilot program resulted from changes within the industry, from the historic Holstein breeder operation to the high population centers which still use registered Holsteins and classify.

The program recognizes different classification needs and uses, while retaining the integrity of the program.

Specifically at issue was removing the requirement to have members pay for the classification of animals which have already been classified several times and aren't about to change. It is argued that the value of the information on these animals is nebulous and a burden on the breeders.

The goals of the new program are to get more animals evaluated, eliminate the requirement to score dry cows unless desired, and to make it feasible for large herd owners to classify a portion of the herd frequently rather than the whole herd infrequently.

There are to now be six classification programs available to breeders.

The Classic Program is for those desiring all cows evaluated and included in genetic evaluations. Participation in this program entitles the herd owner to receive and official BAA for the herd and eligibility for herd awards.

The Standard Program is different in that most cows will be evaluated, except dry cows, those fresh more than 10 months, and cows with permanent scores are optional. An official BAA and awards eligibility is also included.

The Basic Program is designed for those interested only in evaluating first and second lactation animals. Those scored at least twice, or those scored at least once in a second or later lactation are optional.

The Limited Program would be for those interested in evaluating primarily first calf heifers. The only other animals required for evaluation would be those never scored that are less than 10 months fresh.

The Introductory Program is for those who have neber classified their animals or who have not had an evaluation within the past five years. First and second lactation cows fresh less than 10 months are the only ones required to be presented for scoring.

The Breeder's Choice Program is geared for those who have special cirumstances, but the user must agree to participate on a regular basis in either the Classic, Standard, or Basic program, in order to qualify for the special evaluation. During a Breeder's Choice evaluation, only those animals the breeder selects for scoring will be scored.

According to officials, the projected use of the programs by Holstein breeders would expand total classification and provide more useful information.

The prices of classification have also changed.

Those who use the Classic Program on a seven-month interval are to be charged a $50 herd fee and $6 per animal scored and $3 per animal checked. Those who use an evaluation interval longer than seven months are to be charged a $50 herd fee, $7 per animal scored and $3.50 per animal checked.

The Standard Program rates are $50/$7/ and $6 per optional animal for a less than seven month interval, and a $50/$8 and $7 per optional animal on an interval greater than seven months.

Basic Program fee structure is $50/$8/$7 and a minimum total charge of $200.

The Limited Program fee structure is $50/$8/$7 and also a minimum of $200.

The Introductory Program rates are $50/$8/$7 and no minimum.

Breeder's Choice Program rates ate $300 for the herd fee and $10 per optional animal with a minimum total of $400. Additional charges in this program include the classifier's travel expenses and a $100 fee for non-area scheduling.

Holstein Association Outlines

Scheduling is also to change as of August 1 and members will get a letter in the mail explaining scheduling changes.

However, the three options are to be Area Scheduling, Non-Area Scheduling, and Special Scheduling. The names are fairly self-explanatory and the costs are associated with the degree of convenience the breeder desires.

Non Area Scheduling is more expensive that regular Area Scheduling and requires that participation in a herd classification program has occured within the past 14 months and will again within the next 14 months. Under this program, the breeder decides when the classification is to occur.

The Special Scheduling however is for those who, for example, are preparing for a herd dispersal and/or don't qualify for entry in the Non-Area Scheduling. It is a one-time deal.

Other topics covered during the forum included animal identification, genetic issues, alternative rating systems, animal care, membership and finance.

Financing of the Holstein Association is becoming critical, according to John Cope.

The association has been basically operating with an annual loss of $270,000, although income from earnings off of the association's reserve fund which has a cash value of $14 million, though a paper value of $16 million.

According to Cope, for the past four to five years, the association began paying some overhead expenses with earnings from the reserve fund. He said that practice has extended to the point that all earnings from the reserve fund are used to pay association operating expenses, above what registration fees and dues and other revenues can cover.

"We have come to a critical stage in the association," Cope said. "We have become used to using earned income from the reserve to the point of using all of it to run the organization."

He said that while the association is not in financial danger, it has come to the point where additional revenues must be generated.

Investments made by the association have been earning well, he said, but a fee increase in registration has been proposed. He said that rental of office space in the new headquarters building in Brattleboro is generating income and an additional 10,000 square feet of space is about to be leased.

Costs for a new computer system and other improvements in the main office will translate into savings, once the equipment is paid for. In the meantime, he said that the annual loss has been averaging about $270,000 in actual cash loss and the association leadership is projecting a similar loss for the current year.

Registrations have been down, along with total cow number numbers. Cope said the percentage of Holsteins being registered hasn't changed, but the real number has declined, because the total number of cattle available for registration has dropped.

Opening up the association's herd book has added some registration numbers, he reported, but he compared 1992 registrations of 360,000 to last year's 340,000. He said only 320,000 are projected for 1994.

Discussion covered what kinds of price increases for registrations might be reasonable, and whether or not a pedigree should be included in that price was also considered.

Cope said that the association shouldn't be quick to give away pedigrees, since the basic value of the organization is in the information it generates through pedigree verification.

Bill Nichol, manager of the Pa. Holstein Association said that he thought an increased registration fee that included a pedigree would be a better way of doing business. He said that since dairymen already pay for all the information gathering systems upon which the Holstein Association depends, then they shouldn't be expected to pay a lot for the pedigree.

Animal identification was reviewed. The Holstein Association has adopted a permanent, two ear-tag system, or the use of an ear tag in one ear and a transponder in the other, for animal identification. The association also has other options for identification, but Cope said that field work done with the tamper-proof ear tags shows a low rate of loss. In the event an ear tag is lost, members will have a certain amount of time to submit for a replacement tag.

Among a number of other items, up for consideration at the national convention are three proposals for change of the association Bylaws.

A name change from the Holstein-Freisian Association of American to Holstein Association of America Inc. has been proposed. Cope said that although the association has adopted a new logo with the name Holstein Association and has pretty well ceased to use the word "Freisian" in any of its literature, it is still the legal name of the association.

Those supporting an official change now have said that in Europe cattle breeders associate the Freisian name as refering to a dual-purpose line of Holstein, rather than the predominately dairy-functional animal that is representative of the breed.

A membership fee increase from the current $10 per year to $25 is also to be considered, as well as a proposal to stop the requirement of actually cancelling registrations of animals after they have died.

For more information, contact a local Holstein leader, or contact the national association at its Brattleboro headquarters.

Pork Congress

ty can rise as high as 50 percent in the farrowing house. Duration of this acute form lasts about 2-4 months.

PRRS is transmitted by pig-to-pig contact through sneezing. The virus is shed effectively through manure. Also, the virus which causes the disease can be readily transmitted through the placenta. The virus can travel by air room to room and barn to barn. Also, the virus can be present in semen.

The virus can attack any size of pig. According to Wetzell, the herds infected include a large portion of Iowa, Minnesota, North Carolina, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and states bordering Pennsylvania, including Ohio, Virginia, and Maryland.

The problem with the disease, according to the veterinarian, is that there are two strains of virus, and it can last for weeks. Also, the virus destroys the lung immune cells — which paves the way for other diseases to take hold with the hogs. This attack on the pig's immunity allows the pig to develop a wide range of other diseases,

Three major companies are "feverishly working" on a PRRS vaccine, said Dr. Tom Wetzell, South Central Veterinary Associates, from Wells, Minn. On Wednesday, Wetzell told about 100 pork producers at the Keystone Pork Congress that once the vaccine is available, it will have as good an effect on controlling PRRS as the PRV vaccine had on pseudorabies.

Virgil E. Gutshall, Jr., Blain, was honored as Pork All-American at the Keystone Pork Congress.

However, not all pigs get the symptoms of the disease, though they can test serologically positive, according to Wetzell. And eventually the herd can recover somewhat. Knowing this, producers need to examine the prevalence of PRRS in the herd and determine whether it is economically feasible to implement a reduction or elimination program.

There is a "glimmer of hope" in controlling PRRS, said Wetzell. He told the producers that if they have strong, healthy pigs, survivability increases and other, less expensive methods of controlling the problem can be used.

Producers need to control the host pig, the agent responsible for PRRS, and look into the environment that makes he pig susceptible.

There are three ways to test a herd for the presence of the PRRS virus:

• Serological tests, which indicates herd exposure to the virus. This includes the IFA test, an accurate, less expensive test. Also included is the more expensive, longer-lasting test, called SN. The serological test with the most promise, ELISA, may soon be available for veterinarians.

• Virus isolation. There are a variety of methods available through blood testing the sows and finishing pigs.

• FA test, a rapid test that is expensive and is difficult to run.

Wetzell said that producers wanting to control the virus need to test, in the farrowing operations, the blood of 30 sows regularly. For finishing barns, 10 animals should be blood tested per barn.

Control must start with the gilt and sire sources. Producers should make sure they have proof from their gilt and AI suppliers that the seedstock tests serologically negative.

Wetzell recommends the following proposed overall management control methods:

• Phase I: producers should examine pig flow, make sure the operation is truly all-in, all-out, and keep the area warm, dry, and draft free. Feed high quality diet and administer proper medications.

• Phase II (to be used if Phase I is ineffective). Leave pigs alone as much as possible (avoid stress) and wean the pigs at an older age. The antibodies the pig picks up from the sow help control PRRS.

• Phase III (if both Phase I and II are ineffective). This includes partial depopulation, moving through testing to another site, and total repopulation.

Toward the year 2000, according to the veterinarian, the incidence of PRRS should stabilize with the introduction of the vaccine and implementing proper herd control management.

Dr. David J. Meisinger, chief operating officer, Fetterman Farms Limited, Paris, Ill., spoke about lessons learned from a Midwest packer about bringing the best carcass to slaughter.

Market Outlook

The 1994 economic year could be one of mixed emotions for hog producers.

While prices for hogs per hundredweight will average $2 more this year than last, because of a reduction in inventory because of bad weather throughout the country last year (floods in the Midwest and drought in the East), feed costs could rise, offsetting any gain in price.

That's the message presented by H. Louis Moore, Penn State professor of ag economics, at the Keystone Pork Congress.

Moore said that there are a number of positive things happening with the national economy. The interest rate for borrowers looks good, with rates the lowest in the three decades. Inflation is only about 3 percent, and food prices will rise less than the rate of inflation. Unemployment stands at 6.4 percent, down from last year's at this time (about 7.1 percent). GATT and NAFTA look to help agriculture in a big way ""across the board," said Moore.

So what's the bad news?

Slow growth in the GNP, the looming question of paying for national health care, and, most of all, the price of corn.

In 1993, according to the Penn State economist, corn inventories stood at 2.1 billion bushels. In 1994, the inventory stood at only 800 million bushels — "a very sharp drop, the lowest since the early 1970s," said Moore. The 1993 crop is projected at 6.34 billion bushels for the U.S., down 33

While most lenders have barely scratched the surface in agriculture, we've gone a bit further.

Fact is, you can explain your needs to some bankers until you're blue in the face and chances are they still won't understand. Farm Credit loan officers, on the other hand, have been through the most comprehensive ag lending training program in the nation. And many have farm backgrounds themselves.

They can approve loans for just about any farm need from land to equipment. And since a committee isn't necessary for most decisions, loan approval is easy and fast.

Nutrient Management for Pennsylvania Pork Producers

Wednesday, March 2, 1994, 9:00 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. Yoder's Restaurant, New Holland.

Environmental issues play a major role in decisions made on farms today. The recent enactment of nutrient management legislation in Pennsylvania will affect your swine operation. It is important for you to know your role in nutrient management planning.

On Wednesday, March 2, The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council and Penn State Cooperative Extension are providing this educational seminar and "hands on" workshop to assist you in your nutrient management planning.

Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council President Abe Fisher says "Nutrient management may be the most important issue facing pork producers during the next five years."

Topics included in the seminar include "Concepts of Nutrient Management," "Nutrient Management and Bill Requirements," and "Alternatives with Nutrient Management."

This work is for you! Bring your calculator to aid you in a simple assessment of your nutrient situation. Mark March 2 on your calendar and call Abe Fisher (717-768-3301) before February 25 to make your registration. A $3.00 fee will cover workshop expenses and entitle you to a delicious lunch!

1994 Animal Housing Expo

The 1994 Animal Housing Expo will be held July 12 and 13 at the Lebanon County Fairgrounds.

This event is conducted by extension agents in southeast and south-central Pennsylvania in cooperation with ag industry. Its purpose is to help farmers in the Northeast become more familiar with housing concepts for livestock, poultry and dairy, and acquaint them with other concerns related to the building, remodeling and expansion of animal housing facilities. It's also an opportunity for farmers to make contact with the people who can provide the products and services they need.

As in past years, the committee is working diligently to schedule topnotch speakers, planning a variety of educational demonstrations and exhibits, and attracting commercial exhibitors.

Speakers already confirmed include: Howard Person, Michigan State - Building Designs for Rodent and Bird Control; David Kohl, VPI - Tools for Financial Planning; Charles Pitts, Penn State - Fly Control in Confinement Housing; Stephen Spencer, Penn State- Milking System Management; Lynn Sammons, VMD - Functional Cattle Treatment Facilities.

We encourage you to include this on your list of agricultural events. For more information about the Expo, contact Dan F. McFarland, general chair, Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402-9041 (telephone: 717-757-9657).

Creep Feeding Lambs

Creep feeding is a means of providing supplemental feed for lambs during the nursing period and is beneficial under certain management systems. It is essential with an early weaning program.

1. It increases gains, especially for lambs from multiple births.
2. Lambs use supplemental feed more efficiently at this time than after weaning.
3. Lambs can be marketed at a younger age.
4. Earlier growth and/or marketing usually means lambs can compete more favorably and receive higher prices than later born lambs.
5. Early lambs are sold without going on pasture, thus permitting more ewes to be stocked on existing pastures.

Lambs begin to nibble at grain and hay very early and at least by the time they are a week old. However, only small amounts of supplemental feed are consumed until lambs are about four weeks old. A creep area should be available by the time lambs are 7-10 days of age.

Creep feeders should be located in areas frequented by lambs. Those for drylot lambs are placed in convenient, dry, well-bedded and protected areas. A light over the creep area helps attract lambs. Creep feeders used in pastures should be located near water tanks, resting areas or salt and supplemental feeders.

Beef Cow Herd Management Tips

Once again, I offer you tips for calving season suggested by Harlan Ritchie, Beef Extension Specialist at Michigan State University. Hope you have a successful spring!

1. Severe winter weather and wind can increase energy requirements 20 to 40 percent. Increase feed accordingly. Provide cattle some protection to reduce energy requirements. A woodlot or cedar tree windbreak is ideal.

2. For some herds, calving season is here. Check the following items:

✔ Calving assistance equipment.
✔ Facilities and equipment to warm chilled calves, such as heat lamps, warming box.
✔ Frozen colostrum.
✔ Oral calf feeder for administering fluids to stressed or dehydrated calves.
✔ Electrolytes for dehydrated calves.
✔ Pharmaceuticals for scours and respiratory problems.
✔ 7 percent iodine for calf's navel.
✔ Ear tags.
✔ Selenium injections if white muscle disease is problem in your region.
✔ Vitamin A injections if forage quality is low.
✔ Castrating materials.
✔ Implants to stimulate growth of non-replacement calves.

3. To ensure early rebreeding, make certain the lactating cow herd is on an adequate plane of nutrition. For herds on harvested feedstuffs, consider the following diets as a guide:

a. Full feed of mixed grass hay-legume hay (30 to 40 lb.) plus grain if necessary.

b. 60 to 80 lb. of corn silage, plus 1 to 2 lb. soybean meal supplement or equivalent.

c. 15 to 20 lb. legume hay, plus 30 to 35 lb. corn silage.

d. Free choice mineral mix containing 8 percent phosphorus.

4. Be sure your cow herd has an adequate water supply. Depending on body size and stage of production, cattle need 5 to 11 gallons per head per day, even in the coldest weather.

Winter Care for Older Horses

If you own older horses, make sure they are in good physical condition this winter.

Twenty years for a horse is equivalent to 70 years for a person. And, like people, older horses need more care in the winter than they did when they were younger.

Older horses are not as efficient as they once were in digesting food. During cold weather, these horses need extra energy to keep warm.

A horse is in good condition if you cannot see its ribs and have to apply slight pressure to feel the ribs as you move your hand over them. Once they get thin, it's hard to return older horses to good condition. Also, thin horses are more likely to get disease and parasites.

When good-quality pasture isn't available, older horses need high-quality, soft hay. Legume hays are better than grass hays because they provide more energy, protein, vitamins and minerals.

If your older horse is not in good condition, feed it three to six percent from the record-setting year of 1992 (at 9.48 billion bushels).

Pennsylvania, suffering through a drought last year, managed only 91 million bushels for an average of 94 bushels per acre (the state's best crop came in 1985, at 151.8 million bushels and 110 bushels/acre).

This could translate into higher feed prices throughout the year. Corn could stand at $3 or more a bushel in the December futures (as of Feb. 14, futures price for December was $2.72 a bushel). He said producers should be watching the corn futures market "like a hawk," because, depending on planting and weather conditions, the corn price could soar.

After a "really strong" first quarter, said Moore, the current hog report indicates that pork supplies should drop almost 2 percent in 1994. The January-June production should be down 3 percent. In the June-August period, production should be the same as in 1993, while output in the final quarter of 1994 will be down 2 percent from the same period in 1993.

Pork as a percentage of the total U.S. meat production in 1993 stood at 25 percent. The biggest chunk went to poultry, at 40 percent. Moore said this trend will continue. Also, more hog contract operations will make Pennsylvania more and more like North Carolina. Of all the farms dropping out of business in the past years, most of them are hog operations. Although the rate of people dropping out of farming has slowed down, said Moore, the dropouts in agriculture are showing mostly in the hog industry.

During the first quarter of 1994, according to Moore, hog prices should average about $46. In the April-August period, prices should average about $50. The final three months of the year should have prices about $47-$48. (As of Feb. 11, hog futures in July this year were at $53.75).

Because of the economy, producers will see a better year than last year. With the inflation and food prices low, the economy should continue on a slow growth pattern in 1995, according to the

Producer Panels

Pork producers can weather the ups and downs of market prices if their operation is under contract and producers strive to be more productive, according to pork producers on a special production contract panel at the Keystone Pork Congress.

Panelists Jerry Hostetter, Swatara Swine, Denver and Alvin Shaffer, Dalmatia, both agreed, however, that a contract helps the producer get "on his feet," while offering protection, economically at least, from a fickle market. But both said they depend on people — the heart of any business.

Krista Byers, 18, daughter of Edgar and Linda Byers, Millerstown, was honored as Outstanding FFA member at the Keystone Pork Congress.

"People are the reason that these units work," said Hostetter. "People are everything. If you don't have quality, smart people, you can't even begin to work on production costs."

But the key to profitability, according to Hostetter, is controlling costs. He said feed is about 60 percent of total production costs. Producers should lock in on corn and soybean meal market price as far in advance as possible to maintain profitability.

Shaffer, who operates a 700-sow farrow-to-feeder operation in Northumberland County, said the farm wanted to expand, but they didn't want to worry "what would happen if individual pig prices went to 36 cents, and whether we would make enough money even to pay the interest," he said, on what was borrowed. They decided to contract. "With our contract, we no longer need to worry about feed, purchasing supplies, or transporting hogs to market — all are included in the contract." This helps remove the worry about market fluctuations.

More and more contracting is taking place, according to the producers, because of the risks involved in getting started or expanding.

Another panel, composed of herd representatives, examined some pointers used in running a more efficient operation in order to meet packer needs. That panel was comprised of Robert Mikesell, White Oak Mills, Elizabethtown, and Dave Heckel, Farm Crest Feeds, Lititz.

Also at the Congress, Dr. David J. Meisinger, chief operating officer, Fetterman Farms Limited, Parkis, Ill., spoke about lessons learned from a Midwest packer about bringing the best carcass to slaughter.

Youth Contests

For the first time in its eight-year history, the Keystone Pork Bowl was won by an FFA chapter.

Mifflinburg FFA members Matt Christ, Lucas Criswell, Daryl Ebersole, and Derrick Moyer clinched first place after beating the second-place Berks County team 125-110. Coach of the team, which placed third in last year's competition, is Dave Woodling.

The competition was neck-and-neck until the last question. The Berks County team is composed of Richard W. Kerper, Jr., Leon Hunter, Pat Hunter (coach), Tim Eschbach, and Jason Manbeck.

Third place went to Lebanon County, with members Jason Shirk, Jon Harnish, Wendy Atkins, and Katie Lefever.

In the youth public speaking contest, 13 participated. All the winners were from Indiana County.

In the 8-11 age group, first place went to Nathan Zack. Nathan, 11, is the son of Laurie and John Zack, Blairsville. According to Nathan, he bested the championship because of his experience in speaking to 150 members of the 6th grade at United Elementary School. Nathan, a member of the Gordon 4-H Livestock Club, spoke about humor in the pigpen.

Nathan's sister, Lisa, 14, won the 12-15 year old category. Lisa attends United Junior/Senior High School. She placed the year before in the competition. She spoke about animal welfare/animal rights, she said, presenting the humorous side. Lisa said she feels confident before a crowd. She is also a member of the Gordon 4-H Livestock Club.

Beth Elkin, 18, won in the senior category. Beth is the daughter of Sam and Paula Elkin, Marion Center, and is in her first year in ag engineering at Penn State. She served as senior class president and believes she capped the award, with her speach about animal welfare/animal rights, from the experience in high school and in speaking to 4-H groups.

Judges for the public speaking contest were Fred Dillner, retired ag teacher from Shippensburg and Millicent Rinehart, Rinehart's Orchards, Lewisberry.

At the banquet, three were honored for contributions to the state's pork industry.

Virgil E. Gutshall, Jr., Beaver Ridge Farm, Blain, was honored as Pork All-American. He is herd manager for a 300-sow farrow-to-finish operation on 225 acres.

Outstanding 4-H member went to Charles Wolfe III, 15, son of Charles Jr. and Lucille Wolfe, Grindstone. The Brownsville Senior High School 11th grader has been a 4-H member for nine years. He plans to attend college and major in veterinary medicine.

Krista Byers, Greenwood FFA, was named Outstanding FFA member. Krista, 18, is the daughter of Edgar and Linda Byers, Millerstown. The Greenwood FFA member, who served as chapter president, is in her first year in ag education at Penn State.

Mifflin Holstein Club Holds Annual Meeting

ALLENSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — BST. Bovine somatotropin. It's something every dairy farmer needs to make up their own mind about.

That was the beginning statement and ending conclusion veterinarians Dr. Anthony Potorti and Dr. Bob Guttross made to members of the Mifflin County Holstein Club at their annual dinner meeting held Thursday, January 25 at the Country Village Restaurant in Allensville.

Slick roads prevented Dairy Farm Nutritional and Management Consultant and featured speaker Tim Kissling from attending the meeting. Dr. Potorti and Guttross, from the Big Valley Animal Hospital near Reedsville, stepped in with timely, simple, in-a-nutshell facts on BST — how it works, how and when to use it, the benefits of BST usage and its possible side effects.

"It is an effective drug," comments Dr. Guttross who helped with research trials on a similar drug at the University of Vermont. But both agreed on the same benefits and drawbacks from BST usage.

"We (as veterinarians) don't gain anything from this," Potorti commented, adding that farmers order the product directly from Monsanto. It is not a prescription. "In fact, it will increase problems for us because of the increase incidence of twins."

How BST works

— The level of this hormone occurring naturally is higher in a higher producing cow, thus the basis for research and desire to use the drug form.

— It increases the blood flow to the udder. With more blood flow, there's more milk.

— It may increase the number of actual glands that produce milk.

— It increases glucose produced by the liver.

— It conserves nitrogen, a building block of protein.

How to use BST

— BST costs $6.60 per dose, direct from Monsanto. Potorti said you can call Federal Express and they show up the next day with your delivery.

— BST comes in a 16-gauge needle and is to be injected under the skin (at base of tail) every six weeks starting from nine weeks after fresh until dryoff. Potorti says there are no benefits from starting sooner. Feed will increase after three to four weeks and the maximum benefits will not be seen until a month after.

Lowell Peachey

Paul Neer

— BST is not to be injected into the muscle.

— Genetics is not a big factor. It works the same for registered cows, grade, high producers, or low producers.

— It is not recommended for cows who will calve bulls for breeding. Not enough is known about the resulting effects on the bull's fertility.

Side effects — good and bad

— Using BST causes about a 15% feed consumption increase.

— BST usage is said to increase milk production from 5-15 pounds of milk per cow.

— It does affect breeding. "About the time you're ready to breed her back, you start BST," Potorti said. Starting BST causes a decrease in energy until the cow gets that extra food needed caused by BST usage. Guttross added, "Nine weeks is about the point where a cow needs to put body weight back on. If you start to use this, their body weight drops back. There is a definite lag there with good energy. You're going to have to try to get your cows to eat."

— BST increases the number of days a cow is open, but doesn't seem to affect the number of services per cow.

— Guttross noted few injection site reactions during the research, little increase in diarrhea, and little incidences of cows going off feed or bloating. Potorti said to read the warning lebel on the product but also said that it isn't as bad as it sounds.

— There is an increase incidence of twins.

— There is an increase incidence of mastitis due to the increased level of production. Generally, mastitis is greater in high producers as compared to low producers.

— This product was banned in Vermont. Wisconsin banned it from their research years ago.

— Monsanto figures farmers can make $67 per cow per year before taxes.

— In-a-nutshell, both Potorti and Guttross felt each dairy farmer should weigh both the good and the bad. One suggestion mentioned was using BST on a partial herd basis, turning borderline producers into high producers.

In other banquet news, Paul Neer, Lowell Peachey, and Lee D. Yoder were elected as board of directors for three-year terms.

Distinguished Service Award went to Kore J. Peachey from Milroy. He received a silver engraved tray for his contributions to the club.

Darren Peachey received the club's high pounds of protein award - 825 lbs. Russell Kline earned the breed age average (BAA) award - 106.9.

Darv Yoder gave the Junior member report. He said several kids attended the Junior Convention this year, attended judging school at Penn State, and many participated in the youth fair. Mifflin County also hosted the District 4-H Dairy Show. Yoder also thanked those who purchased cheese during their sale saying it is their major source of funding for junior member activities.

Dave Spicher thanked the show committee for their help at the Youth and Open shows during the Mifflin County Youth Fair.

Extension Director Dave Filson announced several MAP (Management and Productivity) dairy meetings scheduled for Mifflin, Juniata, and Perry counties. They will be held two consecutive Tuesdays from 9-3 at the Mifflin County Courthouse. They are patterned after Cornell's successful program and management and profitability. The meetings will center on running a dairy operation like a business.

pounds of grain or commercial feed daily. If the horse is too thin, you may need to feed it greater amounts. If you use more than six pounds of grain, feed twice a day.

A pellet feed may help if the horse has a chewing problem. A vitamin-mineral supplement also may help an aged horse. Vitamins are important in various digestive processes. Some studies also indicate a mineral supplement may aid bone mineralization in older horses.

Lancaster Barn Meeting: Noon Monday

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Holstein Club barn meeting is set for this week, Monday, February 21, at the Gary and Robert Bowman farm in Paradise. Starting time is 12:30 p.m. right after noon.

The local committee has especially invited neighbors and friends who may not be members but who have an interest in looking at good cows and learning more about them.

Located along Harristown Road, the Bowmans milk about 65 registered Holsteins in a tie-stall barn.

Clarence Stauffer of Ephrata, a field representative and classifier for the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, will be available for discussion on any subject about the dairy industry. Generally, the topics slated for discussion are herd classification, registration, pedigrees, the qualified herd book, and other Holstein Association programs.

All dairy farmers are invited to attend. To get to the farm take Route 30 east across the Leaman Place railroad bridge to Belmont Road. Turn left (north) on Belmont for a short distance to first right (Harristown Road). Go three quarters of a mile to a group of three houses, turn left between the second and third house into the farm lane.

'Fully Popped' Exhibitors Win Awards

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — "Four-H members are like popcorn kernels. Some never fully pop and others fully explode," said Tracy Bollinger.

As president of the Woolies Club, Bollinger addressed about 250 persons who attended the Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Banquet held February 10 at the Country Table Restaurant in Mount Joy.

One of those members who "fully exploded in leadership and showmanship skills" is Lyndon Reiff of Strasburg who received the Shepherd of the Year award, a $150 savings bond, and a rotating trophy.

When Reiff reflects on his eight-year involvement in the 4-H Woolies Club, he said that the details of the fairs and the championships seem to blur together.

"The things that I do remember are the friendships and the valuable lessons I've learned through my 4-H career," he said.

In recent years, 19-year-old Lyndon won championship after championship with his top quality lambs. During the past show season, his sister, Lisa, showed his lambs while he completed a six-month course at Lifeway Training School in New Zealand.

"Although I did not participate in many 4-H activities, I did call upon the responsibility, leadership skills, and hard work, which were all principles I have learned and refined through my experiences in 4-H," he said.

Lyndon, the son of Lloyd and Laura Reiff, of Strasburg, said that in his travels, he came to the conclusion: "That we are very blessed to have such an organization as 4-H. It not only is fun and exciting but it teaches us skills and values that are applicable to all aspects of life in our community, our country, and our world."

Top 4-H'ers in both the Woolies Club and in the Red Rose Beef Club were recognized for past achievements.

Jay Hess received the Jason L. Weaver Memorial Leadership Award given to the person who best upholds the motto "to make the best better."

Jay, who is also president of the Beef Club, said that during his eight-year involvement with the club, his enthusiasm never dwindled.

"I wouldn't have changed a thing. Even placing near the bottom taught me more than winning ever could. For the simple fact is that life is not one success after another. The dedication and responsibility 4-H taught me, I will call upon every day of my life," he said.

The 19-year-old is the son of Abe and Janie Hess, Conestoga, and is part owner of a hog farm.

The $250 Woolies Club Scholarship provided by the Gerald Engle family went to Mark Tracy. The 18-year-old is a senior at Elizabethtown High School and is headed for Penn State to study animal science.

With nine years of involvement in the 4-H Woolies Club, Tracy said that he would like to continue the legacy his parents, Gerald and Helen Tracy, began by passing on their love for sheep.

The Novice Shepherd Award went to 12-year-old Sarah Zurin, the daughter of Gary and Judy Zurin of Mount Joy. For her dedication and leadership during her three years of 4-H involvement, Sarah received a sheep blanket.

Twelve-year-old Delvin Kropt of New Danville received the Red Rose 4-H Award, a tribute to Max Smith. Delvin, the son of Cindy Kropt, earned the award through his sportsmanship and perseverance.

Best Woolies Club Record Book awards went to Jessica Schmidt and Keith Bollinger. Best beef record book went to Ryan Donough.

A partial listing of other awards includes the following:

Pa. Farm Show: Lisa Reiff, champion lightweight market lamb; Lyndon Reiff, champion middleweight market lamb; and Regina Landis, champion intermediate showman.

Other awards: Tracy Bollinger, Woolies Club President Award; and Sarah Boyd (junior), Keith Bollinger and Jessica Schmidt (senior), Best Woolies Club Record Book.

Junior livestock judging team members, Amy Bollinger, Gerald Boyd, Regina Landis, and Travis Donough were recognized for being on the team placing third in Pennsylvania.

The senior livestock judging team also placed third in the state. Members are Tracy Bollinger, Jay Hess, Dale Livengood, and Lisa Reiff.

"I wouldn't have changed a thing. Even placing near the bottom taught me more than winning ever could. For the simple fact is that life is not one success after another. The dedication and responsibility 4-H taught me, I will call upon every day of my life."

Editor's Note: Fay Strickler is a Penn State Home Economist for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Berks County. Her column replaces "Have You Heard," written by Doris Thomas, who retired recently. Fay will write about similar issues regarding foods, nutrition, health, and consumers' questions. If you have a question, Fay may be contacted at (215) 378-1327.

During February—Heart Month, I generally receive more calls concerning foods that are either high in cholesterol or high in fat.

Consumers see all the publicity and tend to think about eating heart healthy foods. But really, eating low-cholesterol, low-fat (especially saturated fat) foods should be planned as part of your everyday diet, not just in February.

Eating foods high in saturated fat and cholesterol will increase blood cholesterol in most people. However, there are wide variations among people — related to heredity and the way each person's body uses cholesterol.

Some people can consume diets high in saturated fats and cholesterol and still keep normal blood cholesterol levels. Other people, unfortunately, have high blood cholesterol levels even if they eat low-fat, low-cholesterol diets.

On the average, Americans eat a diet in which about 36 percent of the calories come from fat. The Dietary Guidelines suggest a goal of 30 percent or less of total calories from fat. They also suggest limiting saturated fatty acids to less than 10 percent of calories. If you're not sure of your daily calorie intake, here's a rough guide: 1,600 calories a day is about right for many sedentary women (not physically active), many young children, and some older adults; 2,200 is about right for most children, teenage girls, active women, women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, and many sedentary men; 2,800 is about right for teenage boys, many active men, and some very active women. The right level for you depends on your age, sex, body size, and how active you are.

Because children have a special dietary needs during early growing years, a goal of 30 percent or less of total calories from fat is not recommended for children under 2 years old. As young children begin to eat meals prepared for the family, usually at about 2 years of age or older, they should be encouraged to eat foods that are low in fat and saturated fatty acids but which also provide the calories and nutrients they need for normal growth.

Consumers are often confused about which foods have cholesterol and how much is recommended. Cholesterol is present in all animal products we eat — meat, poultry, fish, milk and milk products, and egg yolks. Both the lean parts (muscle) and fat of meat and the meat and skin of poultry contain cholesterol. Cholesterol is not found in foods of plant origin such as fruits, vegetables, grains, nuts, seeds, and dry beans and peas. Quick breads and other baked products may contain some cholesterol if they are made with ingredients such as egg yolk, cheese, milk, butter, or lard.

Cholesterol in the foods you eat (dietary cholesterol) has less effect on blood cholesterol levels than do the saturated fatty acids in the foods you eat. Health authorities suggest that limiting dietary cholesterol intake to an average of less than 300 milligrams a day is best for most people.

These recommendations are not meant to prohibit the use of any specific food item or to prevent you from eating a variety of foods. For example, eggs and organ meats (such as liver) contain cholesterol, but they also contain essential vitamins and minerals, as well as protein. Such items can be eaten in moderation, as long as your over-all cholesterol intake is not excessive.

To avoid too much fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol:

• Choose lean meat, fish, poultry, dry beans and peas as your protein sources.

• Moderate your use of eggs and organ meats (such as liver).

• Limit your intake of butter, cream, hydrogenated margarines, shortenings, and coconut oil, and foods made from such products.

• Trim excess fat off meats, ther broil, bake, or boil rather than fry

Don't Settle For Black Thumb

RUTGERS, N.J. — "Black thumb" is not a permanent condition. "My mother-in-law was sure she was a hopeless case, killing every house plant that came her way, but, with "easy" plants and a minimum of coaching, she became an indoor gardener," said Martha Maletta, horticultural consultant for Hunterdon County Extension.

Healthy green plants add something special to the feeling of a room. Miserable looking specimens are depressing. To change a "black thumb" to "green" try one of the "easy" plants - there are several.

These plants earn their reputation for being "indestructible" because they will tolerate a wide range of conditions. That does not mean they will survive any and all abuse, however. So there are a couple of essentials that need mentioning:

More house plants are probably killed by kindness than neglect. Even the "indestructibles" can't stand overwatering. So make sure the plant container has good drainage holes. When watering, don't be stingy. Give the plant plenty of water until it runs out the bottom, and discard any excess still in the saucer after a few minutes. Then do not water again until the top of the soil feels dry. That may be a day or two or a week or two depending on condition - light and temperature, especially. Better to underwater than overdo it. The plants listed below will tolerate low light, but, to ensure success, place them in a north, east, or west window or near a south window.

Now for the plants. Mother-in law plant (Sansevieria) is available as several varieties, large and small, with variously patterned and colored leaves Cast-iron plant (Aspidistra) and Chinese evergreen (Aglaonema) are also available as several species and varieties. There are 20 species of Arrowhead plant (Syngonium, Nephthytis), vines that can be allowed to trail or climb.

Photos, (Scindapsus), also a vine looks rather like heartleaf philodendron but is available in variegated cultivars. I can attest to this plant's indestructibility. The three specimens now in my home, survived two years in a college dorm. They arrived home last June completely dead, apparently. But, I noticed that the roots looked okay, and, after being cut back completely and summered outdoors in the shade, they have all be resurrected.

Peace lily, (Spathiphyllum) will flower in moderate light and is available in large (24") and small (10") varieties. Parlor palm, (Chamaedorea elgans), stays relatively small (3 ft. - 6 ft); the dwarf C. bella stays about two feet tall. Bamboo palm (Chamaedorea erumpens), can grow very large. They are both attractive as well as "tough".

This short list of plants will do for starters. With experience and success and a developing green thumb they will be only an introduction to the pleasure of indoor gardening.

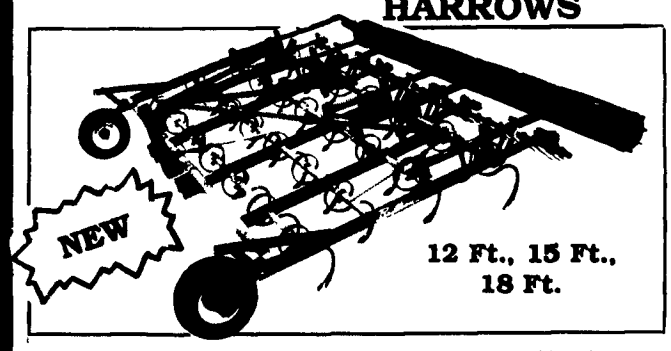
Brillion

Brillion

3 PT. BASKET HARROWS

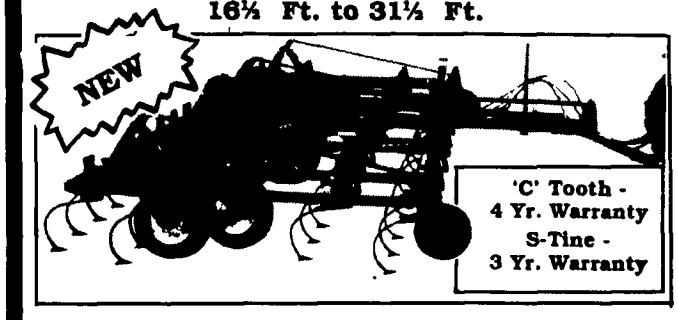


12 Ft., 15 Ft., 18 Ft.

Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable coil tine leveler bar. Gauge wheels are optional.

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS

16½ Ft. to 31½ Ft.



The "heart" of any field cultivator is the shank pivot point. A "bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporates a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pviot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

We've all heart it. Repeatedly. "I'm SICK of winter!"

And, we've all probably said it. Repeatedly. "I'm ready for SPRING!"

Well, hang in there. We are long past the halfway point in the winter solstice. In fact, we're now two-thirds of the way to that March first-day-of-Spring calendar goalpost. (Uh, we just won't even think about what March did to us last year, OK?)

Anyway, on yet another morning of slipping between the house and the barn, another morning of thawing loose those bucket-shaped ice blocks from the calf pens, another morning of running a hose to heifers whose water fountain line might thaw out by about May 15, another day with a cancelled meeting — I decided that I had had it. Enough.

After spreading another round of sunflower seed and corn for the birds and our burgeoning backyard squirrel population — latest count is ten — I made decisive, anti-winter, counter-attack against February.

I marched into the basement storage area and made a beeline for the plastic container in which the garden seeds are stored. The time had come to take inventory and finalize the seed catalog orders. Those catalogs have been kicking around here now for close to two months. But until I knew what was already in hand, page flipping was merely catalog window shopping and now serious write-out-a-check business.

Inventory proved interesting, by gosh. There are seeds there I forgot I'd ever bought. Like the packet of Big Girl tomatoes, with the glow-orange, ten-cent price tag. Obviously acquired at some, close-out, end-of-season sale. Wonder whose?

Two packets of red beet seeds? We ate a few of the red beets planted last year in the garden, before they more or less got forgotten behind all the other fresh things we like even better. Come to think of it, there are still a couple of giant, oversized beets still back in the garden. Well frozen, no doubt. Hey, Mom, need a packet of red beet seed?

Why do I have this brown bag with multiple ounces of radish seed? A little radish seed goes a long way. I pondered that mystery for a couple of hours before the "light bulb" came on in my memory.

The bag of seed was purchased ages ago. I wrote "radish" on it a season or two ago, when I looked in at the tiny, round black seed. But now I remember planting a patch of radishes in the fall of 1992 — and having a wonderful crop of turnips grow there.

Cross turnip seed off the "to order" list. And cross "radish" off the bag.

Into the trash went another small bag containing cucumber seed. Old cucumber seed. The place of its purchase has been out of business for probably five years - and there are two packs of cucumber seed of much newer origin on hand.

Right behind it went another old packet of dill seed. Also purchased at the site long-since out of business. Thinking back, that probably explains why the dill I planted last summer never came up. Gardening is too labor-intensive and harvest precious to me to waste time with questionable seed - especially when seed is a relatively inexpensive part of the whole effort.

Seed inventory complete, I grabbed the pruning shears and slid (literally) across the backyard to the pussywillow. Tips of the furry, white catkins are already pushing through their tight, protective bud covering. In a vase in the warmth of the kitchen, they'll swell out to full, fluffy bloom in a week or two. A branch of forsythia is already in full, yellow bloom on one windowsill.

And in a thumb-your-nose gesture at winter, I'll begin sterilizing soil and taking plant cuttings.

If I can get enough ice chipped away from the greenhouse door to get inside.

Children Study Conservation Tips

NEWARK, Del. — "Turn off the water while you brush your teeth. Turn it on when you are ready to rinse."

"Use a bucket to wash the car. Use the hose only for rinsing."

Hundreds of Delaware school children are learning these and other important water conservation tips, thanks to a University of Delaware Cooperative Extension booklet "Our Water Supply and You."

Under the direction of Extension water quality specialist Tom Williams, Debbie Short, an agriculture-education major, wrote the eight-page booklet.

Geared to students in kindergarten through third grade, the booklet has been used in New Castle County by the 4-H "Ag in the Classroom" program. And in Sussex County, youngsters received the booklet this fall while touring the woodland classroom at the Research and Education Center in Georgetown, reports Extension renewable resources agent Dean Belt. More than 1,200 copies have been distributed since March, when the booklet was printed.

Williams has long seen the need for a booklet of this kind, designed specifically for young children and their families. Short was an able part-time worker, eager to tackle the task fo researching, compiling and writing during the fall '92 semester. She also compiled three booklets that cover drinking water, waste disposal and water conservation for the 4-H program. These booklets are used by 4-H leaders for children ages 9 and up.

"We all need to learn to conserve our water supply, and kids can do their part to help," says Short. "Simple things - like kids turning off the water while they brush their teeth - can make a big difference."

Williams notes that the booklet is very "kid-friendly." It even includes a page of water word games. He also says that the booklet can be used as a stand-alone resource in the classroom or in conjunction with other projects and materials.

Interested parents, teachers or youth group leaders can receive copies of "Our Water Supply and You" by calling Williams at (302) 831-2468.

Program Helps Prisoners Learn To Be Better Parents

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Being a good parent is a tough job, especially from inside a jail cell. But an educational program in Dauphin County aims to help inmates get closer to their children as they learn what it takes to be a good parent.

Parents and Their Children at Home, or PATCH, helps inmates maintain contact with their children while learning parenting skills in the classroom. A joint effort of Penn State Cooperative Extension in Dauphin County and the Dauphin County Prison in Harrisburg, PATCH will be offered three times in the first six months of 1994.

Since it started in 1990, 36 parents and 50 children have completed the program. "These parents need counseling in parenting skills because many don't know what good parenting means," says Mary Laeger-Hagemeister, extension agent and program coordinator.

"In general, they had a bad home life. They may have come from abusive homes or their own parents may have been in jail. Children of incarcerated parents are six times more likely to be incarcerated themselves. By helping prisoners learn to be better parents, we hope to stop this cycle from repeating itself in the next generation."

The program also aims to reinforce the children's sense of continuity and security. "These kids need to know that mommy or daddy still loves them, even if that parent made a mistake," Laeger-Hagemeister says. "PATCH staff will meet with the children as a group throughout the program to teach them skills and try to boost their self-esteem."

The program lasts two months. Parents start by sending their children worksheets or project papers, which the children fill out and return to their parent. The parent writes comments or places a sticker on the page and returns to to the child, boosting the child's self-esteem.

At the same time, parents attend class for two hours a day, five days a week, studying CPR, fire safety, children's literature and toys, discipline, self-esteem, the importance of playing with children, illnesses, and nutrition. The inmates also receive information about family support programs available after release.

Then the parents get to apply what they've learned during two supervised contact visits with their children. "Very few prisoners actually see their children, so this is a rare opportunity for them," Laeger-Hagemeister says. "They usually must communicate by telephone or from behind glass."

The first visit is planned by PATCH program staff and includes practicing skills the parents learned in class. Parents themselves plan the second contact visit, with staff supervision.

Laeger-Hagemeister documented the PATCH program on a videotape, which she has shared with the Pennsylvania Association of Adult Education, Penn State's Celebrate the Family Symposium, the National Association of Extension Home Economists, and the National Association of Correctional Officers. She has received several requests for assistance in establishing similar programs in other communities.

In 1993, Laeger-Hagemeister received one of six national Florence Hall Awards presented by the National Association of Extension Home Economists. The award is granted to home economists who involve people in outstanding programs that address new concerns of families. She also received the DeWitt Wallace Reader's Digest Youth-At-Risk Award, which recognizes extension agents who conduct programs for youth and families at risk. Laeger-Hagemeister was recognized for the PATCH program's impact on children.

Fantastic Cherries That's No Lie

From his birthday in February to his inauguration as our first president in April and on through the Fourth of July, to the British surrender in October and the crossing of the Delaware in December, Americans find a lot of reasons to think about George Washington.

What's more, we tend to think we know all about him. He was born on February 22; he chopped down a cherry tree as a boy but admitted it to his father because he could not tell a lie, he wore wooden teeth; and he threw a dollar across the Potomac, right?

Well, not quite.

Under the Old Style calendar in effect in 1732, his birthday fell on February 11. His teeth, historians say, were truly false, but were of whale bone or ivory, not wood. There's no evidence he ever threw a dollar across the Potomac or any other river. As for the cherry tree, that story was made up by Parson Weems as sort of a modern fable for the edification of the young.

Despite this, Washington has long been associated with cherries. We have him to thank that February is known as National Cherry Month.

Do yourself a favor. Try one of these recipes. You many not know all the facts about George Washington, but you will certainly know that cherries taste fantastic. And, that's no lie.

CHERRY PECAN BREAD DESSERT

¼ cup sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup chopped pecans
10-ounce jar maraschino cherries, drained and chopped
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a large mixer bowl, cream together sugar, butter, and eggs until light and fluffy. Sift together flour, soda, and salt; add to creamed mixture with buttermilk. Beat until blended. Stir in nuts, cherries, and vanilla. Pour batter into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes. Remove from pan; cool. Glaze with confectioners' sugar icing, if desired. Serve with ice cream.

CHERRY DUMP PUDDING

1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder, and sugar. Add butter, milk, and vanilla to dry mixture, and beat 2 minutes. Pour batter into greased 2-quart casserole.

2 cups pitted cherries
¼ -½ cup sugar
1 cup hot cherry juice

Cover batter with cherries. Sprinkle with sugar. Pour hot cherry juice over top. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Serves 6.

CHERRIES IN THE SNOW

1 cup flour
½ cup melted butter
¼ cup light brown sugar
½ cup chopped nuts, optional

Filling:

2 cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
8-ounce package cream cheese
1 package Dream Whip, prepared according to package directions.

Combine first four ingredients and put into 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake for 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool. Break apart with a fork to a crumbly consistency. Filling, beat the softened cream cheese, vanilla, and sugar with a mixer until fluffy. Fold in prepared Dream Whip and spread over crumb mixture. Cover with cherries. Chill. Serves 12.

FROZEN CHERRY SNOWBALLS

1 quart cherry ice cream or frozen yogurt
1 cup coconut, finely flaked
8 maraschino cherries, drained
Whipped cream

Place coconut in shallow pan. Take ½ cup ice cream or yogurt, shape into balls. Work quickly. Roll the ball into coconut and place on tray.

Cover tray, return to freezer for 1 hour. To serve, place on dessert plate, top with whipped cream with a cherry in the middle.

CHERRY-ALMOND UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Topping:

¼ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup slivered almonds
2 cups pitted tart red cherries

Cake:

¼ cup butter, softened
⅔ cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup milk
Whipped cream, if desired
Toasted slivered almonds, if desired

Heat oven to 350 degrees. For topping, place butter in a 9-inch round cake pan. Place in oven to melt butter, about 3 minutes. Remove from oven; stir in brown sugar. Sprinkle with almonds and top with cherries; set aside. For cake, cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla. Add combined dry ingredients and milk. Beat at medium speed 1 minute. Spread batter evenly in prepared pan. Bake until cake is golden brown and wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean, 40 to 45 minutes. Cool on wire rack 10 minutes. Loosen edges of cake with knife. Invert onto serving plate. Serve warm or at room temperature. Garnish with whipped cream and almonds, if desired.

Veal is most popular in upscale casual and white tablecloth restaurants. From this perspective, the Veal Committee, a division of the Beef Industry Council, is targeting these restaurants to increase veal's presence on the menu.

But you don't need to eat in an upscale restaurant to enjoy this tender, succulent meat, try this recipe for at home dining.

SAVORY VEAL STEW WITH ROASTED VEGETABLES

2 pounds veal stew, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 tablespoon olive oil
3 cloves garlic, crushed
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon white pepper
¾ cup ready-to-serve chicken broth
½ cup dry white wine
1½ teaspoons dried thyme leaves
2 tablespoons cornstarch, dissolved in 2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon red wine vinegar
Fresh thyme, optional

Roasted Vegetables:

Vegetable cooking spray
3 small yellow onions, each cut lengthwise into 6 wedges
2 tablespoons olive oil
¼ teaspoon dried thyme leaves
8 ounces brown mushrooms, cut in half
3 large plum tomatoes, cut lengthwise into quarters, seeded

In Dutch oven, heat 1 tablespoon oil over medium heat until hot. Add veal and garlic and brown evenly, stirring occasionally. Season with salt and white pepper. Stir in broth, wine, and 1½ teaspoon dried thyme. Bring to a boil;; reduce heat to low. Cover tigthly and simmer 1¼ hours or until veal is tender.

Meanwhile heat oven to 425. Lightly spray 15x10-inch jelly roll pan with cooking spray. Place onions in pan. In small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons oil and ¼ teaspoon thyme. Brush onions lightly with some of oil mixture. Roast in 425 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add mushrooms and tomatoes to onions; brush with remaining oil mixture. Roast additional 10 to 13 minutes or until mushrooms are tender.

Bring stew to a boil over medium-high heat. Add cornstarch mixture; cook and stir until sauce is thickened and bubbly. Stir in roasted vegetables and vinger, garnish with thyme.

National Dairy Board Approves Programs

ARLINGTON, Va. — After selecting four major business priorities for 1994 at earlier meetings, the dairy farmers serving on the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board met Jan. 18-20 to approve one more priority, export market development, and programs relating to the existing priorities — milk, cheese, milkfat and image of dairy products.

Four factors led National Dairy Board members to make export market development a 1994 priority. Three factors include the larger-than-average increases in dairy- and meat-based Westernized diets as well as population and per capita incomes in countries outside the United States. Finally, long term structural changes in world supply and pricing via various trade agreements are also creating opportunities for U.S. dairy products.

The National Dairy Board will work with the industry to create an integrated export market development plan, identifying appropriate roles and strategies for private and generic programs with the long term objective of increasing sustainable volumes of non-subsidized exports.

Strategies for achieving this objective are to improve industry knowledge and participation in program planning and execution, increase contacts between importer and exporter to increase importers' knowledge of U.S. dairy products, raise the knowledge and appreciation of U.S. dairy products among foreign consumers, assist in the resolution of trade barriers, and obtain and distribute information on suitable markets for U.S. dairy product exporters.

"Many of our (National Dairy Board's) current export activities will continue under the new priority, including trade and consumer promotions for cheese and ice cream in Mexico and Japan," said Steve Hofman, California dairyman and chair of the Board's Export Market Enhancement Committee. "We will seek to continue our work with the entire industry, an absolutely necessary participant in building export markets for U.S. dairy products."

Fluid Milk

National Dairy Board members heard from the newly appointed fluid milk advertising agency, J. Walter Thompson. Scheduled to begin in September, the new fluid milk campaign will aim to create more "milk missions" — the times and situations when people go to the refrigerator with milk in mind. The campaign will target current users, encouraging more use by showing enjoyment and creating an immediate need for milk.

While the current adult fluid milk campaign airs during news and primetime programs, the new campaign will air during a wider variety of programs and time periods in order to build awareness and stimulate milk drinking for different usage occasions throughout the day.

In dairy foods research, the National Dairy Board approved a program to develop a dairy-based novelty sports drink and a dairy-based health beverage. The company conducting the researh has offered to work with the Board in a joint venture on the project by providing 25 percent of the funding for development of the products in return for 3 percent royalty.

"This agreement will serve as good enticement to get the products developed and commercialized quickly for increased sales of dairy products and return to dairy farmers, while stretching the dairy checkoff," said John Peachey, Florida dairy farmer and chair of the Board's Dairy Foods and Nutrition Research Committee.

Cheese

To spread the word among consumers that eating cheese actually helps prevent tooth decay as has been proven in several National Dairy Board-funded research projects, the dairy farmers serving on National Dairy Board approved a continuation and expansion of a current program with the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry.

For the past few years, the dentists have been telling patients and interviewers that chocolate milk is a preferred, nutritious snack. After reviewing the scientific data, they have agreed to do the same for cheese, emphasizing cheese's cavity fighting abilities.

Milkfat

The National Dairy Board approved a program to test four methods used commercially in Europe to fractionate milkfat and vegetable oils which have already been adapted for U.S. vegetable oils. Researchers will evaluate the four methods and find ways to use those technologies for incorporating milkfat into cosmetics and baked goods, specifically shortbreads and pastries, appealing to U.S. consumers.

In another project, researchers will study ways to use milkfat fractions in cookies, crackers, biscuits, fried snacks, cakes/icings and pan frying. The research will be conducted by the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute which will provide one-third of the funds for the project.

Dairy Image

To help in preventing and disarming the likely 'good food/bad food' perception many consumers might develop when new labeling regulations go into effect in May, National Dairy Board members approved funding a program of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention which unites many food industry groups and state health officials. The program complements the Board's Reset-ting the American Table Program which tells consumers that all foods, including dairy foods, fit into a healthy diet.

In other National Dairy Board business, the dairy farmer board approved production and use of a new butter ad aimed at food service operators (i.e., cafeterias and restaurants). The ad emphasizes that using butter in foods provides the taste customers prefer and will begin appearing in magazines like Restaurants & Institutions in April. The ad also features a reply card for food service operators to send in for winning butter recipes from last year's food service contest.

Wool Demonstration

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A program on wool grading and evaluation and a spinning demonstration will be presented at the Heritage House Museum, 43 East High Street, Elizabethtown on Monday, February 28 at 7:00 p.m. by John and Lynn Zerphy, owners of Sheepberry Farms, Halifax. This program is being sponsored by the Spinning and Weaving Committee of the Museum.

There is no charge for the program. Call the museum at (717) 367-4672 or 367-4908 if you plan to attend.

John Zerphey, Halifax, displays several prize-winning fleeces from the 1994 Pennsylvania Farm Show. Zerphey and his wife Lynn, owners of Sheepberry Farms, Halifax, will teach wool grading and evaluation at the Heritage House Museum, Elizabethown on February 28.

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Bette Lawrence, Honesdale, would like a recipe for pear jam or pear jelly that uses green tomatoes as an ingredient.

QUESTION — Mimi Stoltzfus, Lewisburg, would like a recipe for honey-mustard pretzels such as those sold by Snyders.

QUESTION — Ruth Cantello, Somerset, N.J., would like a recipe for apple cider donuts like those served at Apple Cider Mills.

QUESTION — Jane Sauble, Manheim, is looking for a recipe to make red beets with cranberry juice.

QUESTION — Chris Ferri, Stewartsville, N.J., would like a recipe for vanilla fudge.

QUESTION — Gail Hunter, Smithsburg, Md., would like a recipe for Peanut Butter Melt Away Filling and any other great candy fillings.

QUESTION — A New Holland reader would like instructions for smoking turkey. Do you soak them in a brine or only rub with salt? How long should it be smoked? The reader has an old-fashioned smokehouse.

QUESTION — Brenda Breisch, Bloomsburg, writes that it was through this column that she, a former "town kid," learned to cook. "You have no idea how I hate the name "town kid," she writes. She especially appreciated the canning and freezing recipes printed this past year and hopes to see more next season. She would like to know how to can pimento because she uses it as a staple for holiday entertainment and it's expensive to buy in grocery stores. Also, do any readers have interesting ideas for fish other than the standard frying in breadcrumbs?

QUESTION — Lloyd Decker, New Fairfield, Ct., would like a recipe for Penkelwurst, a northern Germany dish that is usually served with kale, smoked ham, and potatoes.

QUESTION — Brice Kinnamon Jr., Cambridge, Md., would like the sourdough starter recipe and recipes to use it. Lauri Lohmann, Durham, Ct., asks how do you store the starter if you don't want to use it on the tenth day.

QUESTION — Miriam Stoltzfus, Myerstown, would like a recipe for French onion soup.

QUESTION — L. Smith of Harrisburg would like a recipe for raspberry angel food cake. It looks like raspberry is swirled through the cake mixture.

QUESTION — Joy Klein, Telford, would like to know how to make wine vinegar from red or white wine. Also, she would like recipes using fresh herbs to make flavored wine vinegar.

QUESTION — It seems on a regular basis, we receive requests for non-cooking questions. People write here in the hopes that a reader will know the answer. Perhaps we should start another column for these questions. Do any readers have a suggestion for a name for a non-cooking column? In the meantime, here is a question from Bill Stock, Plymouth. He would like to buy an incubator to hatch about a dozen eggs for a school project.

QUESTION — Another non-cooking question from Joan Talley, 27 Slicers Mill Rd., Rising Sun, Md. 21911. Family and friends are making squares for a friendship quilt for her daughter who is to be married. She needs someone to piece together the squares and quilt it. Submit your fee directly to Joan at the above address.

ANSWER — Joyce Elaine Shoemaker, Mount Joy, wanted a recipe for Cheese Cherry Delight. Thanks to Deborah Frock, Spring City, for sending a recipe. Also, check the Home On The Range section for more cherry recipes.

Cherry Cheese Delight

1¼ cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ cup sugar
8-ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup confectioners' sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ pint whipped topping
1 can cherry pie filling

Mix crumbs with sugar; toss with butter. Pat crumbs into 9-inch pan. Beat cream cheese with whipped cream and confectioners' sugar until fluffy. Add whipped cream and fold into cream cheese mixture. Pour into crust and top with pie filling. Refrigerate 8 hours.

ANSWER — Mary Winters, Elizabethtown, wanted a recipe for a good moist white cake. Thanks to Joanne Musser, McVeytown, and to Mabel Weaver, East Earl, for sending recipes.

White Cake

2¼ cups flour
1½ cups sugar
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 egg whites

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, shortening, ½ cup milk, and vanilla. Beat 2 minutes, using mixer on medium speed. Add remaining ½ cup milk and egg whites and beat 2 minutes more. For layer cake, bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until done when tested.

Joanne puts a pan of water on bottom rack while baking.

Silver White Cake

2¼ cups cake flour
1½ cups sugar
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup soft shortening
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon flavoring
4 egg whites

Beat together ingredients. Pour batter into layer pans. Bake at 350 degrees until done.

ANSWER — Rose Futrell, Cape May, N.J. wanted a recipe for pumpkin cheese cake that includes cognac. Thanks to Carol Grove, Somerville, Va., for sending a recipe.

Pumpkin Cheesecake With Sour Cream Topping

For the crust:
¾ cup graham cracker crumbs
½ cup finely chopped pecans
¼ cup light brown sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup unsalted butter, melted and cooled

For the filling:
1½ cups solid pack pumpkin
3 large eggs
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
3 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons heavy cream
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon cognac, if desired

For the topping:
2 cups sour cream
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon cognac
16 pecan halves for garnish.

Make the crust: In a bowl combine the cracker crumbs, pecans, sugars, and butter. Press the mixture into the bottom and ½ -inch up the side of a buttered 9-inch springform pan. Chill the crust for 1 hour.

Make the filling: In a bowl whisk together pumpkin, eggs, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger, salt, and brown sugar. In a large bowl with an electric mixer, cream together cream cheese and the granulated sugar, beat in cream, cornstarch, vanilla, cognac, and the pumpkin mixture; beat the filling until smooth.

Pour the filling into the crust, bake the cheesecake in the middle of a preheated 350 degree oven for 50 to 55 minutes, or until the center is just set, and let cool in the pan on a rack for 5 minutes.

Make the topping: In a bowl, whisk together sour cream, sugar, and cognac.

Spread the sour cream mixture over the top of the cheesecake and bake the cheesecake for 5 minutes more. Let the cheesecake cool in the pan on a rack and chill it, covered, overnight. Remove the side of the pan and garnish the top of the cheesecake with pecans.

ANSWER — Debbie Lovenduski, Mansfield, wanted a recipe for coleslaw that excites the taste buds. Thanks to Joanne Musser, McVeytown, for sending a recipe.

Coleslaw

1 medium head cabbage, shredded
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons milk
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar

Shred cabbage. Combine remaining ingredients and stir into cabbage. Refrigerate overnight before serving.

CHERRY PUDDING

2 large packages of instant vanilla pudding
6 cups milk
8-ounces whipped topping
Graham crackers
1 can cherry pie filling

Mix together pudding and milk. Add whipped topping. Cover bottom of 8x13-inch container with whole graham crackers. Pour half of the pudding mixture on graham crackers. Top with another layer of whole graham crackers. Add remaining pudding and top with whole graham crackers. Spread cherry pie filling on top and refrigerate overnight.

CHERRY SALAD

1 large box cherry Jell-O
15-ounce can dark sweet cherries, pitted and halved
Juice from cherries and enough water to make 1½ cups
1½ cups ice water
8 ounces cream cheese, cut in ¼ -inch pieces
1 cup nuts, chopped

Place Jell-O in large bowl. Bring cherry juice and water mixture to a boil, pour over Jell-O powder and stir until dissolved. Add ice water and stir. Refrigerate until slightly thickened.

Remove from refrigerator, add cream cheese slowly, stirring until each piece is coated, stir in cherry halves and nuts.

Transfer to 13x9-inch baking pan, return to refrigerator until set. Cut into 15 servings. Serve on piece of lettuce.

SOUR CHERRY CRUMB PIE

1 quart frozen red sour cherries, thawed
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
Salt
1¼ cups water
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon red food coloring, if desired

Drain juice from cherries, put aside. Add sugar, salt, food coloring, and water to cherry juice to make 1¼ cups liquid. Bring to boiling point, reduce heat, mix cornstarch with ¼ cup water, add slowly to cherry juice, and stir constantly until smooth. Simmer a few minutes. Add the drained cherries. Pour in a 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Put crumbs on top and bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer.

Crumbs:
¾ cup flour
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sugar

Mix above ingredients until crumbly and sprinkle on top of pie.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Even though I'm indoors most of the time in winter, I still find plenty of things to do. My flower plants, that are all over the house, always seem to need water. And, if they are covered with blossoms, eventually they will drop those flowers and I will have to pick them up.

It is a season to invite others to share meals with us. After all a big roast chicken seems like a lot for two people. Likewise, a pig stomach meal is a good excuse to invite a sister for dinner. Then, of course, I must bake a large apple cake for dessert.

Last week I sorted some boxes of books and we put them in the new bookcase. One of the books looked very interesting and so I read it over a period of several days. The embroidered pillowcases that I stamped are almost finished. But, I ran out of a special shade of green thread and will have to try and buy some more.

Occasionally, I'll get our grandchildren for a few hours. When one is three years old and the other two months old, They have different needs. It is very nice when my husband is home and can help me keep them happy.

One son brought us a large plastic playhouse with a slide at Christmas time and we have it in the basement along with a scooter and my old express wagon for the grandchildren. I could not count the number of games and puzzles that fill an old empty television cabinet. Just keeping the pieces where they belong is a job. The story books that our six children used are not in very good condition but they still serve their purpose.

It is nice to have at least two of our eleven grandchildren nearby. Too soon winter will be over and I'll have peas and beans to pick again.

New Holland To Hold Vegetable Day

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Tomatoes, pumpkins, herbs, honey bees tailgate markets, and greenhouses will be just a few of the topics covered at the annual New Holland Vegetable Day sponsored by the Eastern Lancaster County School District Adult Farmer Program. The meeting will be held on February 21, however the location this year has been changed to St. Stephen United Church of Christ on Main Street in New Holland. The program will begin at 9:00 a.m. with coffee and donuts. The program will feature several concurrent sessions that farmers can choose from. Concurrent sessions will include topics on tomato production, greenhouse production, biodegradable mulches, weed and disease management, herb production, vegetable marketing, pumpkin production, and honey bee management. Speakers will include Penn State Extension Specialists, Maureen Rogers of Herbal Connection, Scott Kulp from Landis Supermarkets, and Dan Marini from Zeneca Ag Products.

The program will feature two general sessions, Dr. Alan MacNab from Penn State will discuss his 1993 research on vegetable diseases. Dr. Otho Wells from the University of New Hampshire will discuss High Tunnel Production of Vegetables. High tunnels can produce vegetables earlier and with less disease pressure than conventional production techniques.

Credits toward pesticide recertification will be awarded to those with Private Applicator Licenses. Up to one core and four category credits will be offered. Be sure to bring your current private applicator license with you. A special session for those needing category 21 credits for Soil Fumigation will be held in the afternoon.

Lunch will be available for a nominal cost. The meeting will be held in the education wing of the church. Car parking is available at the church. Farmers with teams can park downtown at the public hitching rails. For more information contact Jeff Stoltzfus at (717) 354-1522.

Kids Learn The Secret For Having A Happy Heart

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — The American Heart Association wants kids to have healthy hearts. To teach kids how to have healthy hearts, the Heart Association sometimes sends speakers to the schools to talk to the children about their hearts.

Exercise is very important and most kids get plenty of exercise by running, jumping rope, or on the playground at school.

One of the things that might make the heart not work properly is a poor diet.

Too much sugar can mean added weight. Too much weight makes the heart worker harder therefore causing it to wear out sooner.

Too much salt can bring extra water into your blood vessels. The fluid presses on the walls of the blood vessels and can cause your blood vessels to thicken. Once this happens, the blood may have a difficult time getting to the heart.

Since the heart pumps your blood throughout your body, it is very important that the arteries remain open and clear.

Too much fat can cause bumps in your arteries. Then, your arteries would look much like a bumpy bicycle path and the blood would again have a hard time getting through to your heart.

Kids can't control a lot of their diets. For instance, our parents or older brothers or sisters usually do the cooking at home. At school, we eat what the cafeteria serves.

However, the cafeteria must serve a balance diet according to the standards set by the government and by the American Heart Association. And, we can tell whoever cooks at home what we learn about a good diet.

Children do often have options when choosing snacks.

Today, most foods that comes in packages or cans have a label on them which tells how much fat, salt which is called sodium, and sugar is in them. Sugar is referred to as carbohydrates.

There are two kinds of carbohydrates. There are simply carbohydrates which include sugar, syrup, honey, molasses, jams and jelly, candy, soda pop, and most sweet desserts.

Simple carbohydrates taste good but are not really good for us. They should be eaten only once in a while.

Complex carbohydrates, on the other hand, are good for us. They are found in bread, cereal, pasta, vegetables, potatoes, fruit, juice, and milk.

Salt or sodium is found in potato chips, cheese curls, pickles, ketchup, lunchmeat, and hot dogs. There is a lot of salt in some fast food hamburgers because they put a lot of salt in the meat as well as in the ketchup and sauces they use on the meats.

Our bodies require only 1000 mg of sodium each day. One hot dog has 450 mg. of salt.

Fat is very high in fried foods, meat, nuts, whole milk, and ice cream. However, we do need some fat and it is best to get it from eating lean meat and dairy products.

We should eat fried foods only once in a while which might be once a week.

Foods that we eat anytime and as much as we like include fruits and vegetables, bread, cereals, low fat milk, cottage cheese, chicken or turkey, fish, tuna, or lean hamburgers.

Foods which we should eat no more than once a day might include salty or sweet crackers, cheese, ice cream, peanut butter, eggs, ham, port, butter, or mayonnaise.

And, food to be eaten no more than once a week might be french fries, potato chips, cheese curls, donuts, cake, cookies, hot dogs, sausage, bacon, or sweet soda pop.

The American Heart Association has suggested some recipes which are easy to make and with only a little help, you could make yourself.

Alice shows a boy how to listen to his own heart.

POPCORN

1 package light microwave popcorn
¼ cup dried apples, peaches, or other dried fruit
½ cup unsalted pretzels
¼ cup unsalted peanuts
¼ cup raisins

Measure 1½ to 2 cups popcorn into a bowl.

With kitchen scissors, cut dried apples, peaches, or other favorite dried fruit into ¼ inch pieces.

Add dried fruit to popcorn.

Add pretzels, peanuts, and raisins to popcorn mixture.

Using wooden spoon, toss to mix. Serve at once.

If you like the new Mexican foods that are very popular, you should try these. They have some good dairy products in them.

Vegetable oil spray
1 9-ounce can bean dip
3 green onions
4 ounces cheddar cheese (grated)
2 to 3 small tomatoes
6 tablespoons light sour cream
Sprigs of parsley

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Spray dish with vegetable oil spray. Open can of bean dip. With rubber spatula, spread dip over bottom of dish.

Rinse and slice green portions of onions. Throw away white part. Measure ¼ cup onion slices into a small bowl. Grate cheese if it is not preshredded. Add grated cheese to green onions and mix well. Sprinkle mixture evenly over bean dip.

Place dish in preheated oven. Bake uncovered for 7 to 10 minutes or until cheese is bubbly.

Eat with unsalted Tortilla Crisps.

If you in a hurry in the morning, you can still get all the nutrition you need for breakfast by using the following recipes.

SHAKE ONE-BANANA

1 cup skim milk
1 ripe banana, peeled and cut in half
⅓ cup low-fat cottage cheese
1½ teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla sugar
3 to 4 ice cubes
Dash of gound nutmeg

Put in the blender, mix, and drink.

Or, you can use the same recipe and use ½ cup frozen unsweetened whole strawberries and ½ ripe banana, peeled, and cut in half. Add a tiny bit of orange juice or some orange flavoring.

Now that you have made these recipes, you can see how easy it is to eat right.

Alice brought along a bottle of cream which she asked the children to shake. After shaking for a long time, the cream turned into butter. By doing this, Alice was able to show the children how fat can form on the inside of our arteries.

Million Dollar Caramel Candy Class

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Million Dollar Caramel Candy class will be held on Saturday, February 26, from 10 - 11:30 a.m. for ages 5-7. Milton Hershey earned his "first million" by manufacturing caramel candy in the city of Lancaster. Youngsters in this class will make and wrap their own special batch of caramel candy to take home and share with others. They'll learn about Mr. Hershey's start in the candy business and how he experimented with recipes until he found one people really liked. $6 musuem members. $9 non-members. Call (717) 534-3439 for information.

Alice Corle, a registered dietitian, and a volunteer for the American Heart Association, talks to a group of boys and girls about the importance of eating a balanced diet. A dietitian is a person who studies how different types of food affect your body.

Delaware 4-H Alumni Win State, National Awards

NEWARK, Del. — Ask any former 4-H'er the best thing about being in 4-H and you'll find it's the people. 4-H has a tradition of honoring its members current and past.

This year, two Delawareans have been honored as outstanding 4-H alumni. Walter Hopkins, a Sussex County dairy farmer, received a state award of recognition. Ruth Ann Minner, lieutenant governor of Delaware, received a national award of recognition.

The alumni-recognition program identifies former 4-H'ers who are role models for young people. Recipients are selected based on citizenship, leadership, career and personal accomplishments.

Minner was the first woman elected to Delaware's house of representatives, as well as the first female lieutenant governor. She still finds time to speak at 4-H meetings and to work with local 4-H groups. She was a member of 4-H for eight years and participated in sewing, foods, animal and leadership projects. Minner is a Democratic national committeewoman and vice-chair of the Democratic National Commitee's Eastern Region.

"The contacts (through 4-H) broadened my view of the community and gave me an appreciation for the power of volunteerism," she says. "4-H helped me set and stick to goals — to meet and interact with other people. And it helped fuel a love of competition and commitment to good sportsmanship that carried over into my political career."

Hopkins was the only son of 10 children to remain on his family's farm. He has held numerous offices in State and county community organizations including the Sussex County and Delaware State Farm Bureaus, the Holstein Association, the Delaware Crop Improvement Association and the Cape Henlopen School Board. As a 4-H'er he won a trip to Chicago on the merit of his dairy project. Hopkins has served as an assistant leader for the local 4-H club. With the support of 4-H'ers and the Sussex County Cooperative Extension staff, Hopkins and his wife host farm tours for school children each May. His three children are actively involved in 4-H.

Hopkins says the 4-H judging in which he participated "helped your mental processes, made you dig deep into your thinking. A teenager needs that kind of training."

"We are proud of the thousands of 4-H alumni," says Joy Sparks, 4-H state program coordinator. "And we're especially pleased with the accomplishments of Lt. Governor Minner and Walter Hopkins. These two individuals serve as excellent role models for Delaware youth."

Home economist Fay Strickler shows off the food that recent studies suggest may may prevent some forms of cancer, heart disease, and strokes, and slow the aging process.

Diet May Prevent Cancer

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Worried about cancer and old age?

Take heart.

Recent evidence suggests that you may reduce the risk of some forms of cancer, heart disease, strokes, and cataracts, as well as slow the aging process.

The secret lies in what you eat and don't eat.

To start with, Fay Strickler, home economist for the Berks County Extension, suggests you concentrate on eating a balanced diet with at least five servings of fruits and vegetables daily.

Strickler researched recent research and the findings of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and planned a seminar on cancer prevention. The seminar was postponed and eventually cancelled because of subsequent snow storms, but Strickler shared her findings with Lancaster Farming since many readers are interested in health and nutrition.

"You can not say that eating this way will definitely prevent cancer but recent findings show that it may reduce the risk," Strickler said.

Humans need oxygen to live, but the side effects of the body's ongoing use of oxygen causes wear and tear on cells that can lead to cancer.

Evidence suggests that vitamins C and E, and beta carotene, a precursor of vitamin A, are antioxidants that permit repair of damaged cells to avert cancer development.

Dietary sources of antioxidants are as follows:

• Vitamin C — broccoli, citrus fruits and juices, red and green peppers, turnip greens, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, kiwi fruit, strawberries, and cantaloupe.

• Vitamin E — brown rice, whole wheat, oats, yeast, and wheat germ.

• Beta-carotene — apricots, carrots, spinach, broccoli, kale, sweet potatoes, cantaloupe, mustard greens, winter squash.

• Selenium — whole grains, brown rice, legumes, fish, liver.

If you have a choice, it is better to eat an orange or tangerine than to drink juice because eating provides fiber.

Fresh and frozen vegetables also contain higher nutrient quality than canned items.

"But if it's a choice between eating canned fruit and vegetables or not eating any, by all means eat the canned food," Fay said.

Research also seems to indicate that it is better to eat foods than take supplements to consume the same amount of vitamins and minerals. The American Cancer Society does not recommend supplements because they believe that as yet unidentified substance in fruits and vegetables may actually be responsible for reduced disease risk.

In a recent study reported by the American Heart Association, women who consumed high amounts of antioxidant-containing foods such as carrots and spinach had a 33 percent lower risk of heart attack and a 71 percent lower risk of stroke, than women who ate few antioxidant-containing foods. The study was based on 1,795 female nurses, each of whom had a history of heart attack, chest pain due to coronary disease or treatment for a blockage in a coronary artery. Those who consumed the most dietary antioxidants had the greatest disease reduction.

For those who are hesitant to make big changes in diet, Fay said, "You don't need to give up the foods you like, but choose more often the foods that may reduce your risks of cancer; choose less often the foods that might increase your risks of cancer."

Here are seven simple guidelines for a healthy diet.

• Eat a variety of foods.

• Maintain desirable weight.

• Avoid too much fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol.

• Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber.

• Avoid too much sugar

• Avoid too much sodium.

• If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

Here are some recommended recipes that may help reduce your risk of cancer and other diseases.

MOCK SAUSAGE PATTIES

1 pound ground turkey or chicken
¼ cup salt-free seasoned bread crumbs
2 tablespoons low-sodium chicken broth
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
1 teapsoon vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon ground sage
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 large egg white

In medium-size bowl, combine all ingredients except egg white. using hands, blend ingredients well. Gently beat egg white with a fork; add to mixture and incorporate with hands or large wooden spoon. Shape into 12 patties. Place on non-stick cookie sheet. Broil 3 to 4 inches from heat source 4 to 5 minutes or until light brown. Turn and broil additional 2 to 3 minutes or until cooked through. Makes 6 servings.

CARROT BREAD

1 cup sugar
¾ cup applesauce
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup shredded raw carrots
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup shelled walnuts
2 eggs

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly coat a loaf pan with butter and dust with flour. Mix sugar and applesauce in bowl. Combine dry ingredients and add to applesauce mixture. Add carrots, vanilla, and nuts. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Mix well. Pour into pan and bake for 50 minutes. Cool 10 minutes in pan, remove and cool on baking rack. Yield 16 slices with 116 calories and 2 grams fat per slice.

Substitutions: 1 cup shredded raw zucchini for carrots; add ½ cup crushed, drained pineapple to batter.

Cumberland Farms, BST Issues Concern ADC

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

Robert M. Dever, secretary and general manager of ADC, reported, at fiscal year ending July 31, 1993, a total net income of $594,259,302 for the cooperative, up $11.77 million from fiscal year 1992. However, there was a drop in net margin of about $2.13 million. The cooperative incurred expenses in cost of sales (money paid to farmers) rise of nearly $14 million. Net assets were about $14 million.

But ADC still must deal with the more than $1.8 million still owed them by the third largest buyer of milk, Cumberland Farms, which as of Dec. 28, 1993 came out of Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

ADC expects to collect from Cumberland Farms, a Northeast oil company which operates a total of 125 convenience stories along the East Coast, the money owed them within the next five years, according to Dever.

"We will get all of our money out of the Cumberland Farms bankruptcy as long as those people continue to operate, and we anticipate that they will," said Dever. "The Cumberland Farms bankruptcy, though, isn't something that we should ignore."

Dever indicated that in ADC's history, they had to deal with two customer bankruptcies, including one in the early 1980s from which they failed to collect. But they remain at the mercy of the marketplace that becomes increasingly international, with many European firms buying out American businesses that were once small with a small client base.

The issue of BST is filled with a "lot of basically unanswered questions," said Robert M. Dever, secretary and general manager of ADC, at the meeting of District 7 last week.

Projections for the remainder of 1994 revolve on what is happening with the M-W price (and production is down 8 percent in Wisconsin and 6 percent in Minnesota, according to the latest figures).

Quail Ridge Press Is Cookin' Up Gumbo

BRANDON, MS. — The Little Gumbo Book has sold thousands of books in numerous printings to people all over the world, and is now being reprinted for the sixth time. Though this new printing boasts a bright new cover design, ardent fans of the book can be assured that the book's contents are unchanged. The recipes, instructions, notes, and stories are as charming and timely as ever.

Author Gwen McKee, a native of Louisiana, admits she has a passion for gumbo. Her purpose in writing the book was to encourage people everywhere to enjoy this wonderfully warming, healthful dish. McKee feels that her book dispells the myths that gumbo is expensive, that it must contain seafood, and that it is difficult to make. "If you can read and stir, and would like to impress your dinner guests for less than 25 cents a bowl, then the art of making good gumbo is right at your fingertips."

McKee, also author of The Little New Orleans Cookbook, has taken the time in The Little Gumbo Book to explain important general aspects of gumbo preparation, emphasizing such critical elements as the preparation of roux and rice, stock and seasoning. Each recipe includes personal notes from the author on the origin of the recipe, making it a fun book to read. There is also a "Step-by-Step to Great Gumbo" recipe that takes you through the whole process with substitution suggestions, special tips, and make-ahead/freeze preparation.

This beautifully designed, hardcover book even gives the feeling of Creole cooking in its appearance: the New Orleans-style borders, the Cajun-kitchen brick background, the two-color text, and the attractive photographs and drawings peppered throughout the book all contribute to its special charm. The new cover design features a drawing by New Orleans artist, Joseph A. Arrigo, of a south Louisiana plantation, Oakley, where it seems someone must surely be dishing up bowls of delicious gumbo inside. The careful selection and testing of these unique, appealing recipes has enabled The Little Gumbo Book: Twenty-Seven Carefully Created Recipes That Will Enable Everyone to Enjoy the Special Experience of Gumbo, to find its own niche in the maze of cookbooks being published. With little publicity since it's 1986 original publication, it remains one of the most popular of all the Quail Ridge Press cookbooks.

The book retails for $8.95, and is available in local book and gift stores, or by calling 1-800-343-1583.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Joanne Weaver, Lancaster, wanted a recipe for a soft, chewy oatmeal cookie with raisins, nuts, and a little bit of spice, such as those served at Weis Markets. Thanks to Carole Hawthorne, Mt. Airy, Md., for sending a recipe that she said gets raves every time she serves the cookies.

Old-Fashioned Oatmeal Cookies

1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup water
¾ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 cups quick oats
½ cup chopped nuts
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2⅓ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves

Simmer raisins and water in a saucepan over low heat until raisins are plump, 20-30 minutes. Drain raisin liquid into measuring cup. Add water to make ½ cup liquid. Heat oven to 400 degrees.

Cream shortening, sugar, eggs, and vanilla. Stir in raisin liquid. Blend flour, baking powder, soda, salt, and spices. Add rolled oats, nuts, and raisins. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls 2-inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet; bake 8-10 minutes.

JOHN DEERE 40- TO 60-HP 5000 SERIES TRACTO

These tractors pack a lot of value

Mowing, hauling, disking, loading, baling. You can't beat the value – or the versatility – of John Deere 5200, 5300, and 5400 Tractors.

Value starts with efficient engine design. The wet-sleeve 3-cylinder diesels deliver 40 to 60 hp with fuel-thrifty, dependable performance.

And unlike other tractors in this horsepower class, you get full rated horsepower at the standard 540-rpm PTO speed. You can pull balers and other PTO implements without worrying about your tractor bucking or stalling. Need top traction in tough going? Add MFWD for extra pull and tight-turning maneuverability.

And with the highest standard hydraulic capacity in their class, 5000 Series Tractors help you lift more, faster. For fast, smooth shifting, choose the optional top-shaft-synchronized (TSS) transmission. Improved shuttle-shift capability makes it perfect for loader work.

Of course an important part of any value is the price. So visit your John Deere dealer and find out how little it takes for you to own a 40-, 50-, or 60-hp 5000 Series Tractor.

The last five weeks, whether because of economic recovery, the soaring real estate market, or simply the bad weather, prices have been good with strong sales "right across the board," he said.

Also, the future of the price of milk and demand for milk products hinges on what happens regarding bovine somatotropin (BST), which is filled with a "lot of basically unanswered questions," said Dever.

"There are some people out there that don't necessarily believe that technological changes are always a plus," he said. "There are people out there that believe certain technological changes are a minus, and that we should do things differently than we are now."

Regarding the use of BST, Dever said ADC realizes "we don't have a biology problem, we don't have a mastitis problem, we don't have a production problem, or a pricing problem. What we have is a marketing problem, and we're still dealing with that."

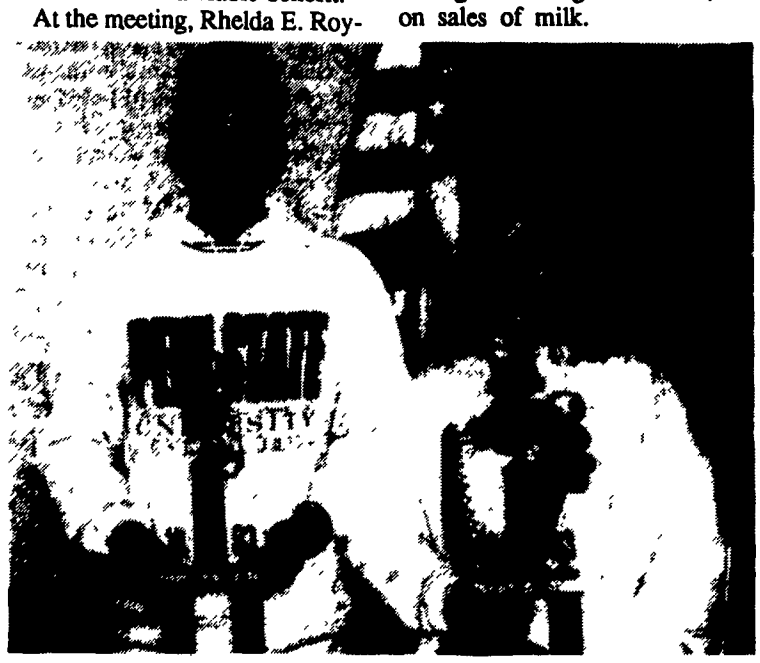
Because of the marketing problem, regarding how BST is considered by the consumer (which is "defined," he said, as a female, age 18-34, with 2.2 children), ADC sent out a letter in April 1993 urging members not to use BST.

The consumer will make the final decision on whether BST will be used.

"If she believes that BST represents technological advancement and has no problem with the product, then I will guarantee that BST will be as common on the farm as artificial insemination," he said. "If she believes that BST, though, is a threat to those 2.2 children, then BST will die on the vine and not be a viable benefit."

At the meeting, Rhelda E. Royer, district director, presented an overview on advertising dollars spent. Also, 51 producers received the quality premium during a 12-month period, and one member received the 20 cent bonus. Two members received a 100-point federal rating.

Members of the ADC averaged 2,761 pounds of milk, an increase of 12 percent over 1992 levels. The average member grossed $122,795 on sales of milk.



Two Dauphin County 4-H'ers who received rewards recently were, from left, Jesse Romberger, Millersburg, and Emily Theurer, Harrisburg.

District 7 elections were held. Of the Donegal local, president-elect is Stephen Hershey and vice president is David Martin. Secretary-treasurer is Jacob Conley. Delegates are Earl Landis and Paul Sauder, and alternates are Homer Hess and David Martin. Hauling representative is Nelson Wenger.

Of the Lititz local, president-elect is Nevin Horning and vice president Darryl Martin. Secretary-treasurer is Marvin Sauder. Delegates are Harry Becker, Jr., Gerald Martin, and Andrew Miller. Alternates are Leonard Martin, Kevin Smoker, and John Wenger. Hauling representative is Nelson Wenger.

Members receiving 25-year awards included Rhelda Royer, Lancaster; David Martin, Manheim; Paul Sauder, Silver Springs; and Mervin Myers, Mount Joy.

Dauphin County 4-H Goat & Rabbit Club

Recently, Dauphin County 4-H Goat & Rabbit Club held its annual banquet at Hoss's Steak & Seafood House in Hummelstown.

Trophies for best of show, Rabbit, and best doe of show, dairy goat were given for the Dauphin Co. 4-H Fair held at the Farm Show building in August.

Jesse Romberger of Millersburg received the trophy for best of show, rabbit, with one of his New Zealand rabbits. This is the second year in a row that Jesse has won this award. He also had best of show, rabbit, at the 1994 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

This was Jesse's last year as a 4-H member and is attending Penn State, Schuylkill Campus.

The trophy for best doe of show, dairy goat, was awarded to Emily Theurer of Harrisburg for her Alpine doe. This is also the second year in a row that Emily received this award.

Emily is in seventh grade at Central Dauphin East Junior High School.

Franklin Extension Directors

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Five direcotrs were elected to the Franklin County Cooperative Extension Association's board of directors. Elected to a three-year term were Jay Meyers, to represent Antrim Township; Alan Ferry, to represent Fannett Township; Jackie Martin, to represent Greene Township; Gary Besecker, to represent Guilford Township; and David Stoner, to represent Hamilton Township.

There were also four directors appointed at large to three-year terms. They were Judy Lebo, Greencastle, Frences Upperman, Janice Burkholder, both of Chambersburg and Dan Brogdon, St. Thomas.

Barn Again Exhibition

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An old red barn in the National Building Museum's Great Hall will be the centerpiece of BARN AGAIN!, an exhibition about the history and symbolism of barns in America. The exhibition, organized in collaboration with the National Trust for Historic Preservation, will open at the museum on March 17.

To introduce visitors to barns, the BARN AGAIN! exhibition will begin by exploring the history and construction of barns across America. The barn in the museum's Great Hall, measuring 30'x44', will serve as the entryway into the exhibition. Inside the exhibit, the visitor will be able to examine barn mythology and nostalgia; how social, political, and economic developments affected barns; the various uses of barns; and the future of traditional barns.

BARN AGAIN! will incorporate models and parts of barns to illustrate how barn construction and design is tied to ethnic heritage and changes in the agricultural industry. Contemporary and historic photographs, plans, and posters will be presented to show how new barn types, construction techniques, and materials were promoted. Examples of farm equipment will be included to illustrate how changing farm practices have had an impact on the form and function of barns. The barn as a cultural icon will be explored through an array of popular objects including advertisements, catalogues, art works, movie stills, toys, video films, and food containers.

The museum's barn, from a farm in Eaton Rapids, Michigan, was scheduled to be torn down by its owners because it was no longer safe or cost effective to maintain it.

The exhibition, which opens during National Agriculture Week (March 14-20), will remain on display through September 11. A variety of public programs will complete the exhibition, including a barn raising in the museum's Great Hall on Saturday, March 12, and Sunday, March 13, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The barn raising will culminate with a traditional barn dance on Sunday, March 13, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Also scheduled to take place throughout the six-month run of the exhibition are workshops where visitors can create such items as weathervanes and hex signs; a day-long bus tour of farms in Lancaster County, lectures; and films.

For additional information call the National Building Museum's Public Affairs Office at (202) 272-2448.

The National Building Museum is an educational institution that presents exhibitions and public programs about all aspects of building. The museum is located at 401 F Street NW, at the Judiciary Square Metro Station (Red Line). Museum hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sundays, noon to 4 p.m.

Prevent Cancer

SPINACH AND RICE CASSEROLE

1 cup white or brown rice
½ cup plain low-fat yogurt
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 clove garlic minced or pressed
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel or juice, optional
1 package frozen chopped spinach (thawed, drained, and squeezed dry)
1 cup cheddar cheese, crumbled
⅓ cup fresh parsley
⅓ cup thinly sliced green onion
½ teaspoon dried oregano

Cook rice according to directions. Once done remove from heat and let stand 10 minutes. Stir in ¼ cup yogurt, egg, garlic, and lemon peel; set aside. While the rice is cooking, combine the squeezed spinach with remaining ¼ cup yogurt, cheese, parsley, green onions, and oregano. Spoon one-half the rice mixture into the bottom of a one and one-half quart casserole which has been sprayed with nonstick cooking spray. Top spinach mixture and cover with the remaining rice. Bake for 45 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

Tip: Cook fresh spinach for only a short time in a very little water to retain nutrients.

CONFETTI SALAD BOWL

16-ounce can golden wax beans, drained
16-ounce can green beans, drained
17-ounce can sweet peas, drained
12-ounce can whole kernel corn with sweet peppers, drained
2½-ounce jar sliced mushrooms, drained
⅔ cup chopped celery
¼ cup sliced pitted black olives
2 tablespoons chopped red onion
Red onion rings
Lettuce

Dressing:
2 teaspoons salt
¼ cup sugar
⅔ cup salad oil
⅔ cup wine vinegar

For salad, combine beans, peas, corn, mushrooms, celery, olives, and chopped onion in large bowl, tossing lightly to mix. Pour dressing evenly over salad mixture. Cover; chill several hours or overnight, stirring occasionally. Serve in lettuce-lined salad bowl. Garnish with onion rings. Add fresh red pepper, chopped for color and texture, if desired.

Dressing: Dissolve salt and sugar in vinegar in small jar with tight-fitting cover. Add salad oil; cover and shake.

Local Leaders Rank Problems Facing Wayne Teens

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — What are the most serious problems facing Wayne County teenagers? According to a cross section of 67 local opinion leaders, alcohol tops the list. Other top ranking concerns included tobacco, sexual activity, pregnancy, and illegal drugs.

These findings emerged from a recent survey conducted by Wayne County Cooperative Extension as part of its new tobacco control and youth iniative. Funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Health, Penn State Cooperative Extension is working in six counties to develop community coalitions dedicated to creating a new generation of tobacco-free youth. This effort reflects Extension's long-standing commitment in its 4-H programs to youth development and health.

Alcohol use was clearly seen as the major problem for local teenagers with 91 percent of respondents listing it as one of the five top problems facing Wayne County teens. By comparison, 54 percent identified use of illegal drugs in their top five and 61 percent identified use of tobacco, cigarettes and/or smokeless products.

Tobacco use among youth doesn't get as much publicity as teenage drinking or drug use, but it's a widespread problem," said Extension Agent Debra Bryant. "Unfortunately, what begins as youthful experimentation can easily turn into a lifetime of addiction to nicotine. Tobacco is often called a gateway drug, because it can lead to other risky behavior."

Statewide, about 47 percent of high school seniors use alcohol (including beer, wine, distilled spirits) at least once a month, 30 percent smoke cigarettes, and 12 percent use smokeless tobacco, according to a 1991 Governors' Drug Policy Council survey.

Why Food Loses Flavor

NEWARK, Del. — The chemicals responsible for fresh flavor in foods are present in minute amounts. How those chemicals interact with packaging materials determines the quality, shelf life, and safety of food products.

"An area only a few atoms thick controls may chemical processes," explains Dr. Robert Keown, a specialist in packaging and polymer chemistry in the University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences. "The chemistry of the bulk of a sheet of polymer film and the chemistry of its surface can be very different. This surface is affected by chemicals in the environment and by the process used to produce the film. If the surface chemicals are reactive, they can use up all the critical flavor molecules in food."

About 300 distinct chemicals make up the flavor of orange juice, for example, but those responsible for freshness may be present in only two parts per million. This is the equivalent of adding a teaspoon of flavorant to a railroad tank car of orange juice. Lose those chemicals, and the juice will taste stale.

Keown, who heads the department of food science, has received a $40,000 grant from Kraft/General Foods, Inc. and $40,000 in matching funds from the Delaware Research Partnership to study the effect food packaging materials have on food flavor. The focus of this research is the chemistry of the membrane on the surface of polymer films.

Keown's findings could lead to the development of packaging treatments that extend shelf life by limiting flavor loss and inhibiting the migration of off-flavors from the polymer into the food. The new information might also be used to develop packaging that indicates shelf life expiration.

Gathering For Antique Needleworkers

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Those interested in quilting and antique needleworking are encouraged to attend a gathering at the Heritage House Museum, 43 E. High St., Elizabethtown, on Tuesday, February 22 at 7 p.m.

It is not necessary to know how to quilt or to do tatting, samplers, bobbin lace, and other antique needleworking as all skill levels will be represented at the gathering. However, those who attend should be willing to become interpreters at the Museum when a level of skill is attained.

There is no charge for the gathering. Please call (717) 367-4908, for more information.

Panoramic Egg Class

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — In the Panoramic Egg Class, participants will make and decorate a keepsake, panoramic egg, a sugar delight that reveals a scene inside the egg. Learn the process of making these treasured eggs from start to finish. The instructor, Nancy Fasolt, is the owner of the Cake and Kandy Emporium, and is a well-known confectioner from Lancaster County who will supply molds and other specialized materials. The class fee is $14 for museum members, $19 for nonmembers. The registration deadline for the class is March 1, 1994. Call (717) 534-3439 for registration information.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 20

Lancaster Farm Women #20 met Thursday, February 3, at the Strasburg Ambulance Building with the hostesses Nancy Axe, Velma Goss and Vivian Trout. Following the refreshments, Velma Goss read the Scripture taken from the book of Isaiah and a poem by Helen Steiner Rice.

For the roll call, the 16 present told the name of the last book they read. The very interesting program was a book review by Mary Racel Hoover. The president, Nancy Axe, presided at the business meeting and during this time Vivian Trout gave a report on the state convention and announced the new state president is Dotti Strickler. February 22 is the date of Herr's Open House when our Society serves the food. The Sunshine Committee reported 3 cards were sent during the month.

The meeting closed by singing "Brighten the Corner", members will meet in March at the Union Presbyterian Church with Valaria and Jane Ferguson entertaining. Members will be sewing cancer pads and will meet in the morning so each one should bring a covered dish.

Berks Society 6

Members of the Berks County Society of Farm Women Group #6 met at the home of Dorothy Wagner, Oley. Members went to Pizza Hut for lunch and returned to Dorothy's home for the meeting.

The By laws + constitution were read by the President Janet Schlegel. Reports were given by those who attended the State Convention.

The group will be collecting food items for the Greater Berks Food Bank, delivery will be March 21. Members will be helping at a Community Pot Pie Dinner.

A donation was given to the Oley Valley Marching Band for a trip. The next meeting will be held at the Oley Legion Diner, Oley, at 12:00 P.M. for lunch.

Dairy Promotion Seeks Communication Intern

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is seeking applicants for a summer internship position. Pennsylvania Dairy hires an intern each year to assist with a variety of communications activities including coordination of summer promotion activities.

"We are looking for someone who wants to gain experience in the field of dairy promotion," says Betsy Dupuis, Pennsylvania Dairy communications director.. "We offer plenty of experience with media interviews, event coordination, press release preparation, and related public relations activities."

The successful applicant should have third-semester standing and have some writing experience. Students studying dairy science, agricultural marketing, communications or similar fields are encouraged to apply for the position. Experience in dairy promotion is desired, but not necessary for the internship.

The 12-week internship will begin in late May and end in July, pending a student's spring semester ending. The intern will be based out of the Pennsylvania Dairy office in Harrisburg and will participate in most staff functions in the office.

Interested students should submit a cover letter, resume and writing samples to Betsy Dupuis, Communications Director, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110. All applications must be received by February 28, 1994, for consideration.

Further details about the internship are available by calling Dupuis at (717) 787-6903.

Farm Tour Seminar

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. — The Maryland Farm Bureau Women are sponsoring a Farm Tour Seminar entitled "Beyond The Hayride." The seminar is being sponsored in cooperation with the Frederick County 4-H Conference Center, Tuesday, February 22, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The seminar is designed to help Maryland farmers learn how to beter work with classrooms and other groups when planning and conducting a farm tour.

The program will feature a session called "Valuable Tools," which will highlight use of the MFB Stewardship Video and Survey; a presentation of the handbook, "Beyond The Hayride," a panel presentation and an informative afternoon session called "Winning Answers for Tough Questions!" presented by Julie Brown of the American Farm Bureau Staff.

The $10 fee includes all materials and lunch. Send reservations to: Maryland Farm Bureau, 8930 Liberty Road, Randallstown, MD 21133, Attn. Field Services or for more information call the Maryland Farm Bureau Field Services Department.

Berks Society 9

The January meeting of Berks County Group 9 Society of Farm Women met in the Home of Winnie Hayik. Kim Casner, president, led the meeting. New program books were passed out. The group is planning a trip to the Weed Barn, Quakertown, to get supplies for making dried arrangements for the Feb. meeting. Members are asked to bring canned food to the meeting for the County Food Bank. Karen Schrierer is a member of the County Convention Committee. The meeting was adjourned for a wine and cheese tasting and a book exchange.

Skiers To Be Served Hot Chocolate

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Pennsylvania's dairy farmers are taking the wintery treat, hot chocolate to Seven Springs Ski Resort to emphasize that only milk makes this beverage a delight. The special promotion will be held on Sunday, March 6, at the resort, just outside of Somerset. It is jointly sponsored by Mid East United Dairy Industry Association/ F.O. 36 Advertising Agency and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

"We want to give samples of real hot chocolate to skiers to let them know how important it is to make hot chocolate with milk," says Nadine Houck, Promotions Specialist with Pennsylvania Dairy. "This is a great event for dairy farmers because they can encourage incremental increases in milk consumption. Consumers will leave knowing that they should only use milk to make hot chocolate."

Hot chocolate samples will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. In addition, the first 2,000 skiers at the resort will receive a free thermo-mug to make their own hot chocolate for the next trip down the slopes.

"This is the perfect opportunity for Pennsylvania skiers to taste the real thing," adds Houck. "We'll be on hand at the event to show them just how easy it is to make hot chocolate with milk I'm sure they'll agree that the small amount of effort is worth the results."

The event is part of dairy promotion programming in Pennsylvania, all designed to promote the state's milk and dairy products. Pennsylvania's dairy industry is the number one agricultural industry and a significant contributor to the state's economy.

Further information about the promotion is available by calling (717) 787-6903.

Lamb Industry Benefits From Cards Program

CHICAGO, Ill. — Determining the price/value relationship of various lamb products just became easier for retailers, thanks to a Lamb Computer Assisted Retail Decision Support (CARDS) program funded by the Lamb Committee of the National Live Stock and Meat Board and the National Lamb Feeders Association (NLFA).

Developed by a team of Texas A&M University and Meat Board researchers, CARDS is a computer management tool that allows retailers to quickly predict product variables — such as trim — and make merchandising decisions based on many in-store meat case scenarios."With CARDS, retailers can see whether it's more cost effective to purchase lamb cuts with cover fat and trim it in the stores, or whether they should purchase leaner products from the packing plants," Savell says. "It will more accurately identify the expense of fat purchased by the store. Ultimately, that information will be communicated all the way back through the packer to the producer, who can manage his production practices accordingly."

CARDS is a macro-based Microsoft® Excel spreadsheet with thousands of data points used to predict yields, labor requirements, prices and profitability of different purchase and selling options. It is the most recent element of a Communicating Cutability project that had the objectives of determining standard yields and time and motion (labor) of various meat products, then creating a system to implement that data for the specific species (beef, pork and lamb).

The Lamb CARDS program was unveiled at the NLFA annual convention in Reno, Nev., Jan. 19. It was made possible through a voluntary checkoff on lamb by lamb feeders and raisers throughout the U.S. Distribution and implementation of the Lamb CARDS program will be carried out through a combined effort of the Meat Board and the merchandising staff of the American Sheep Industry Association.

ADA, Arby's Announce Joint Promotion

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Building on the success of their joint promotions in 1993, American Dairy Association (ADA) and Arby's are continuing their partnership this spring with three promotions designed to build incremental volume of cheese.

Arby's franchises nationwide will participate in the February, March, and April promotions, which will be supported by radio, television, and print advertising. ADA is contributing funds toward the production of point-of-purchase materials that will be available systemwide. The materials will display the REAL® seal and will include the slogan "REAL cheese makes the difference."

The first of the three promotions will begin in February with the Triple Cheese Melt sandwich, which combines roast beef with Swiss, shredded Cheddar and Parmesan cheese sauce. In March, Arby's will feature the Hot Ham 'n Swiss Submarine sandwich. The Chicken Cordon Bleu sandwich, made with a breaded chicken breast fillet, ham and Swiss cheese, will be promoted in April.

In the first six months of 1993, Arby's ran 5 promotions featuring REAL cheese and saw cheese and cheese sauce tonnage increase 49% versus one year ago.

Landscape Clinic

WILKES BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — On March 9 Penn State Cooperative Extension in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Urban and Community Forestry Council, and the Bureau of Forestry will hold a seminar designed for landscape professionals, titled "Landscape Clinic '94." This program provides a combination of proper horticultural and pest control techniques that professionals require in order to stay competitive in today's economy. Pesticide update credits in core and categories 6, 7, 18, 22, and 23 will be awarded.

The workshop will be held at the Holiday Inn in Dunmore. The registration fee is $18 per person, which includes lunch and handout materials. Pre-registration is required before February 25. (No walk-ins will be accepted.) For more information call Luzerne County Cooperative Extension at (717) 825-1701 or (717) 459-0736 ext. 701.

York Honors 4-H Beef Club Members

The York County 4-H Beef Club held their banquet on January 29, at the Seven Valleys Fire Hall. This is an annual event honoring the past year's beef buyers, leaders and members.

Following dinner, members honored leaders and buyers. Roll call awards were presented by John Eaton, Jr., representing Maryln Flaharty of Service Feed and Supply Co., and Norwood "Mac" McGuigan of Manna Pro Corp., who were unable to attend. Senior award winners were Suzanne Bishard, Jason Baer and Jodi Dutrey. First year rookie awards were presented to Beth Baer, Herman Hake, and Katie Myers.

Awards earned at the York Fair were presented by William Dietz, Jr. of W.D. Angus Ranch to Shawn Waltimyer, champion steer; Jennifer Altobelli, champion senior fitter; Tammi Grubb, champion junior fitter; Beth Baer, champion rookie fitter, and Jason Rankin, champion showman.

Humorous Pennsylvania Dutch "stories" by Amy Hartman a retired teacher from Hanover, were enjoyed by all. Wade Myers and Matt Sellers, the 1994 president and vice president presided over the traditional "roast" of Beef Club graduates, Jason Rankin and Jason Stein.

Jack Myers of the South Central PA Cattlemen's Association, presented Steer of Merit awards to Kelly Myers, Jason Baer, Jason Frantz, and Jarrod Schiding. Ad salesmen were recognized with

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when yc irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per ye and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

This watch is available in both men's and women's styles To receive your new work watch, read and complete the coupon below, and send it with your payment to:

Tips For Talking About Money

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — In some families no one talks about money. Why? Because whenever someone mentions money there are always arguments. Someone wants to spend it. Somebody else wants to save it or spend it on something else. No one ever seems to agree, so the family just avoids the subject.

"That's too bad," says Debra Bryant, Wayne County Cooperative Extension Director. "Sitting down together as a family and talking about the family's finances is one of the best ways for members to help each other meet financial goals."

A family is a group of people who often have differing attitudes, values, and ideas about money. The conflict occurs when these individuals don't talk to each other about their goals. If one spouse is saving for a new car and the other is spending money on new stereo equipment there will be problems.

How can a fmaily avoid these money conflicts? Bryant offers these tips: 1. Set a date for the whole family to get together to talk about money without any interruptions. 2. Every family member should have a chance to state their wants, needs, and personal feelings. 3. Just because a person earns the money, doesn't give that person the right to decide how the money should be spent. 4. Listen carefully to what the other persons are saying. 5. Stick to the topic at hand. Don't drag other things into the discussion. 6. Each person should be willing to give a little to reach a compromise. Everyone should feel like they were able to get something. There should not be winners and losers or else the losers will feel bitter and may try to sabotage the plan.

For more information on talking about money, contact Debra Bryant at Wayne County Cooperative Extension, 925 Court St., Honesdale, PA 18431 (717-253-5970 ext 239) or your nearest Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

Watercolor Class

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Art of Watercolor is a class designed for students of a variety of levels and abilities and covers the main elements of watercolor painting. Under the direction of Robert Nisley, students will discover the pleasures of this satisfying medium. Nisley is a Hummelstown artist and charter member of the Pennsylvania Watercolor Society who has taught for many years in both public schools and privately. His work can be seen in shows throughout central Pennsylvania and in 1989 he received the Judge's Choice Award for his watercolor painting in the WITF Channel 33 Art Show and Auction. He was commissioned by the Hummelstown Arts Festival Committee to design the limited edition poster for the 1933 festival. The class runs for eight sessions and meets Thursdays from February 17 through April 7, 1994, 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Cost for the class is $30 for museum members, $35 for non-members. For registration information call (717) 534-3439.

OTSS Broker-Bonnie's Tull Top Show

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Once again, the Limousin show at the National Western Stock Show in Denver January 14 lived up to its billing as one of the breed's premier shows of the year.

Randy Daniels of Colbert, Georgia evaluated 145 females and 61 bulls which comprised one of the deepest quality sets of Limousin ever paraded in Denver. Mike McGuire of Alabama served as the associate judge.

By the end of the show, spectators also had a chance to see just how widespread breed quality is from both a genetic and an exhibitor standpoint. Of the 16 division champions and reserve champions, 21 different owners were represented and 12 different sires.

For grand champion bull honors the judges went with their Division III champion, OTSS Broker 2124B. The 4/1/92 son of YKCC Top Line 180X is out of YKCL Miss Virginian R103V and is owned by Stewman Ranches of Maryneal, Texas. Broker made history with this win, becoming only the third Limousin bull in history to win the breed's prestigious Triple Crown, collecting grand championships at the All American Limousin Futurity, Louisville and Denver.

Four Bears PQ 86B was named Division III reserve champion and reserve grand champion bull overall at the halter of Lookout Limousin, Timber Lake, S.D. and MCM Limousin of Calgary, Alberta. Four Bears is a black 6/1/92 son of LKCC Tomahawk's Touchdown out of Lookout Billie 220R.

In the female show, Bonnie's Tull 202B, a 3/5/92 WRC Punch daughter out of TEXS Star Mercy was named Division III and grand champion female. Exhibitors were JCL Cattle Company of Welch, Okla.; H&L Limousin, Lebanon, Mo.; and Tullis Limousin Farm, Welch, Okla.

Sullivan Limousin of Dunlap, Iowa and Sennett Cattle Company of Waynetown, Ind. teamed up to show the Division I champion and reserve grand champion female overall with SLVL Sugar Cookie, a 3/8/93 daughter of Wulf's Challenger 6044Y out of EAFM Cookie.

Cane Ridge Polled Genie, a 4/23/93 daughter of Wulf's Homerun 9226A out of Cane Ridge Temptress 404W, was named reserve champion female in Division I. Cane Ridge Cattle Company of Paris, Ky. and Yackley-Sugar Maple Leaf Limousin of Onida, S.D. and Millbrook, N.Y. were the exhibitors.

Magness Land and Cattle of Platteville, Colo. had the Division II champion female with MAGS Black and Satin, an 11/6/92 daughter of PLLP Polled Webster 30X out of WLCC Xpose 41X.

For reserve champion honors in Division II the judges went with CLLL Touch of Satin, a 9/20/92 daughter of LKCC Tomahawk's Touchdown out of Wulf's Black Satin. Minerich Land and Cattle Company of Richmond, Ky. was the exhibitor.

Dorminy Brothers Land and Cattle Company of Fitzgerald, Ga. teamed up with Express Limousin Ranches of Yukon, Okla. to show the reserve champion female in Division III. DBRO Blackberry Magic 30B is a 7/15/92 daughter of WLCC Mowtown Magic 11X out of OLC Blackberry Punch.

OAKM Lady Michelle 825B, a 1/21/92 TEXS Ranger Ted daughter out of TEXS Star Music was named Division IV champion female. Owners are Sullivan Limousin, Express Limousin Ranches and Shane Lindsey of Colfax, Iowa.

Minerich Land and Cattle Company rounded out the female show with the reserve champion in Division IV, OAKM Lady Paulette 814B, a 1/16/92 Harvest Olympus daughter out of OAKM Miss Prissy 285V.

In the bull show, the Minerich firm teamed up with CMC Cattle and Land Company of McDonough, Georgia to show the Division I champion, YKCC Polled Blueprint 314, a 3/23/93 son of YKCC Polled Cash 558Y out of YKCL Miss Mallory 127U.

The Polled Arrow Group of Wall Lake, Iowa led out the reserve champion bull in Division I with YKCC Polled Arrow 200C, a 3/31/93 son of YKCC Top Line 180X out of YKCC Vintage Wine 406X.

JCL Black Out, a 9/15/92 son of LKCC Tomahawk's Touchdown out of JCL Madeline was named champion bull in Division II for JCL Cattle Company and Deer Valley Farm of Fayetteville, Tenn.

Keeler Limousin of Fairfax, Oklahoma had the reserve champion bull in Division II with TRAK Polled Buster, an 11/22/92 son of PLLP Polled Webster 30X out of CLLL Jasmine.

In Division IV, Magness Land and Cattle teamed up with Ramos Limousin of Chiahuahua, Mexico to show the champion bull with MAGS Bojangles, a 1/9/92 WLCC Turbo son out of MK Upsy In Command.

The reserve champion bull in Division IV was Blazer SLBO 512B, a 2/21/92 son of LML Patriot's Missile 960X out of Heidi BUIT 12T. Shane Lindsey and Bur Oak Limousin of Colfax, Iowa were the exhibitors.

Minerich Land and Cattle Company exhibited the best five head in group competition.

Magness Land and Cattle was named the premier breeder and premier exhibitor of the show.

Jim Wulf of Morris, Minnesota was named Limousin's Herdsman of the Year at the show.

National All-Jersey Names Assistant General Manager

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Michael J. Brown has been named executive assistant and assistant general manager for National All-Jersey Inc. (NAJ), Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Brown is to oversee day-to-day operations of the milk marketing organization which has marketing programs in almost every state. He will direct continuing efforts by National All-Jersey to promote implementation of multiple component pricing in the federal order system.

In addition, Brown is to coordinate NAJ staff efforts to develop equitable markets for Jersey milk producers, and provide leadership in encouraging research and education in milk manufacturing and marketing.

According to NAJ Executive Secretary and Chief Executive Officer Calvin Covington, Brown is uniquely qualified for his new responsibilities.

"In his previous positions, Mike developed contacts with key personnel in the industry, from policymakers in Washington, to dairy plant managers, cheesemakers, and producers from Maine to California," said Covington.

As director of economic research for AG*NOMICS Research, New Brighton, Minn., Brown specialized in economic analysis and dairy forecasting.

Brown served four years (1987-1991) as director of member services and economist with the National Milk Producers Federation in Arlington, Va. In addition to providing communication and member services, he developed a dairy statistical database and issued reports on farm costs/returns, industry impact studies, and market outlooks.

"Jersey producers will be well served by Mike's combined knowledge of the production side and grasp of dairy economics and regulatory policy," Covington said.

Brown earned a bachelor's degree in dairy science, summa cum laude, from Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Virginia.

Performance Records Are Useful

John W. Comerford
Beef Extension Specialist

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania beef producers tend to be small and part-time operators. Many read and hear about tools for genetic improvement in a cow herd, but consider them to be stuff for "the big guys out West." After all, you can get a whole pageful of numbers describing actual weights, ratios, and Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) on a single bull. Do all the facts and figures mean anything? How much are they really worth? Some striking new Pennsylvania answers are just in. But first, some background.

The bull is targeted for more intensive selection than the females in a herd, first because he represents half of the whole herd's genetic potential for growth and performance in a calf crop. The true economic potential of a good herd of cows may never be realized if they produce calves sired by inferior bulls that don't have the genetic potential to transmit growth ability.

Second, when producers are keeping heifer replacements from the bulls they select, future production in the herd can be either enhanced or stymied for years to come. The following table illustrates the impact that sire selection has on succeeding generations in a cow herd.

TABLE 1. The genetic influence of a bull in a herd for 10 generations

	Genetic contribution of a herdsire[1]
	% calf crop	% cow herd	% total
Year 1	50	0	50
Year 2	50	0	50
Year 3	50	10	60
Year 4	50	20	70
Year 5	0	30	30
Year 6	0	40	40
Year 7	0	32	32
Year 10	0	12.8	12.8

[1]Based on a 20% replacement rate from a bull used for four breeding seasons.

A lot of research indicates that performance records are useful and that their use is profitable. Three examples are:

* A Georgia study evaluated the response over several years to selection for high yearling weight in Hereford cattle. Calves sired by the bulls with the highest yearling weight EPDs in the breed were compared with those from an unselected control herd. The results after five years were that calves from selected bulls were 68 lb. heavier at weaning, 95 lb. heavier as yearlings.

* Another Georgia study, this time with Angus cattle, asked what happens when you use EPDs to select for more than one trait at a time. Two traits were under selection: high yearling weight and low birth weight, which are known to be antagonistic to each other. The results showed that, in this case, you really can "eat your cake and still have your cake", because birth weight in the calves was kept below average while yearling weight was increased.

* The milk EPD has been poorly understood by producers because it describes milk production potential but is expressed, not in terms of milk yield, but rather in pounds of calf weaning weight. A South Dakota study found that selection for increased milk production potential through use of the milk EPD did indeed result in higher milk yield as well as in higher weaning weight. The average response was about a 1-percent increase in total milk yield over the lactation for each 1 kg milk EPD of the sire.

Beef producers, typical of all production agriculture, are independent thinkers who sometimes view controlled research with skepticism. "Our producers often want to know why results in Georgia or South Dakota should matter to them," says John Comerford, Penn State beef extension specialist. "So we tried to design a program that would prove the value of genetic improvement in a next-door approach."

Comerford, along with Penn State colleagues Erskine Cash and Lowell Wilson, conducted a demonstration project that tested the production and economic effects of sire selection in Pennsylvania beef herds.

"We wanted to identify herds that were typical of our region: part-time producers with 50- to 150-cow herds used as a secondary source of family income," says Comerford. "We were looking for herds that were being properly managed, but simply were not using all available tools for genetic improvement."

With the help of county extension agents Bill Kelly and Mary Shick, two such herds were identified in Westmoreland and Washington Counties.

The next step was securing bulls of known genetic value to compare on these farms. "Our purebred breeders have really been helpful," Comerford says. "We had no trouble finding people willing to donate the use of a bull for the program." Two bulls were selected for placement on the demonstration farms, but an injury to one of them left only the Washington County herd of Jake and Marian Campbell to complete the project.

The bull used was a two-year-old Polled Hereford donated by Paul and Bette Slayton of Bedford, Pennsylvania. His EPDs were well above average for the breed: 0.7 for birth weight, 33.0 for weaning weight, 11.3 for combined maternal, and 55.8 for yearling weight.

"This bull was being compared with two Polled Hereford bulls the Campbells had purchased locally, and visually there was little difference between them," says Wilson. "But with no performance records for the local bulls to indicate their potential value as sires, we felt confident the Slayton bull would be the top performance sire. The proof would be when the calves crossed the scales."

Extension agent Mary Shick monitored the progress at the Campbell farm. The bulls were confined to a 90-day breeding season, June 1 through August 31. The breeding herd was sorted into three groups with 30 cows allotted to the Slayton bull, 28 to one of the Campbell bulls, and 21 to the younger Campbell bull. The cows were sorted randomly, with all age classes represented in each breeding group. All cows were managed as a single group after the breeding season. All exposed females were palpated on December 4, 1992, and open cows were culled. Cows began calving on February 25, 1993, and the last calf was born on May 20. No calving difficulties were encountered. The following table summarizes the results.

What a difference a bull makes! Using the weaning rate and average weaning weights, the calves from the selected bull returned 67 lb. more calf per cow than the other two bulls. What value is there in using the tools available for genetic improvement in the beef business? In this case (using an average price of $82/cwt for feeder calves), it was about $55 per calf, thus $1,320 for 24 calves!

We can realistically answer the question, "How much is a bull worth?" This selected bull was worth $1,320 more than the others in this single calving season. So if he were used for four years on just 30 cows each year, he would be worth $5,280 more in his lifetime.

But that isn't the end of the story. The Campbells have about a dozen heifers out of the Slayton bull that they will keep for replacements, and these females' genetics for superior performance will be passed on to the next generations.

"Of course, we can't always expect to add over $50 per calf from the selection of a bull," says Comerford. "Many things influence production—health, nutrition, and so on. But when we have managers as good as Jake and Marian Campbell, we will see the true value of genetic improvement since there are few management impediments to these calves' fully expressing their genetic potential."

The take-home lesson for a good beef producer: That $800 bull with no performance records that we bought last year may be the most expensive mistake we've ever made. Several tools are available for cattlemen to help them select bulls. Until we have this information and make use of it, we're simply speculating on the outcome of a breeding program. With the cost of raising cattle being what it is these days, that's a pretty big risk to take.

Wheat Farmers Concerned About Imports

DENVER, Colo. — Farmers from Montana, Minnesota, North Dakota, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and South Dakota relayed their frustrations with the excessive amount of wheat being imported into the United States from Canada.

The farmers told Ron Blackley, U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Secretary Mike Espy's chief of staff, that the flood of Canadian grain is ruining their market and making it difficult to sell their 1993 wheat and barley crops. The farmers spoke with Blackley Feb. 1 on a conference call arranged by the National Farmers Union (NFU).

Farmers from Shelby and Conrad, Mont. for several weeks have blocked Canadian grain trucks from unloading at local elevators. North Dakota farmers joined the protest Feb. 3 by holding a demonstration in the port of entry town of Dunseith, N.D., aimed at highlighting the gravity of the situation.

"Producers are having to deal with the immediate effect of lower commodity prices, the inability to sell their grain because of congestion at local elevators and a lack of railroad transportation, the loss of production contracts to Canada and a myriad of other problems," said Leland Swenson, president of NFU. "The level of frustration increases dramatically when possible situations get bogged down in studies and reviews."

Specific points raised by the producers during the conference call include:

- The glut of Canadian grain has depressed cash market prices. In many cases, local prices are 30 cents a bushel below the county target price.
- Malting barley contracts for U.S. producers have not been renewed, but have been given to Canadian producers in order that manufacturers can take advantage of the Canadian government's transportation subsidies and the relatively cheap Canadian dollar.
- Canadian imports have a major impact on U.S. producer prices, as evidenced by the fact that wheat prices on the Minneapolis Exchange dropped 33 cents over the two weeks following the administration's Jan. 15 deadline to impose Section 22 volume restrictions on Canadian grain imports.
- Local farmers are unable to sell their grain to local elevators because they are full, and the capacity of the railroad system to move this volume of grain is inadequate.
- The decline in farm income is being felt in the nation's economy, affecting local businesses, state tax bases and driving up the cost of farm programs during a time when the U.S. government is under tremendous pressure to reduce its spending.

The producers also requested that the administration:

- Provide documentation that imported grain is being properly inspected. Farmers are concerned about inadequate inspection of Canadian grain, which could result in chemicals allowed in Canada but banned in the U.S. entering the American food supply.
- Provide documentation from USDA that Canadian grain is not being blended with U.S. grain and then exported under the Export Enhancement Program. Producers say that the excessive level of Canadian imports is costly to the U.S. government and ultimately to U.S. taxpayers because excess product must be exported.

"Mr. Blackley listened, took extensive notes and expressed his appreciation to the producers for their input, pledging to visit with Secretary Espy and report back to them," said Swenson. "Now we anxiously await their reply."

Imports of Canadian wheat have tripled since implementation of the U.S. Canada Free Trade Agreement. Imports of beef and veal have tripled, imports of peanut butter and peanut paste have increased by more than 500 percent, and sugar-containing product imports have shot up by more than 3,000 percent.

Common Sense.

When Jim and Sandy Bailey of Spring Grove, PA, built their first 85,000 bird layer house in 1981, they wisely chose Big Dutchman and Hershey Equipment. Through the years, their records ranked among the best in the industry.

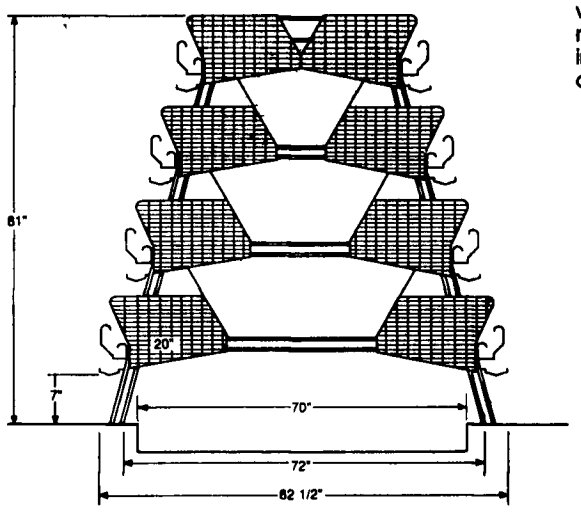
PROFIT-TIER 420

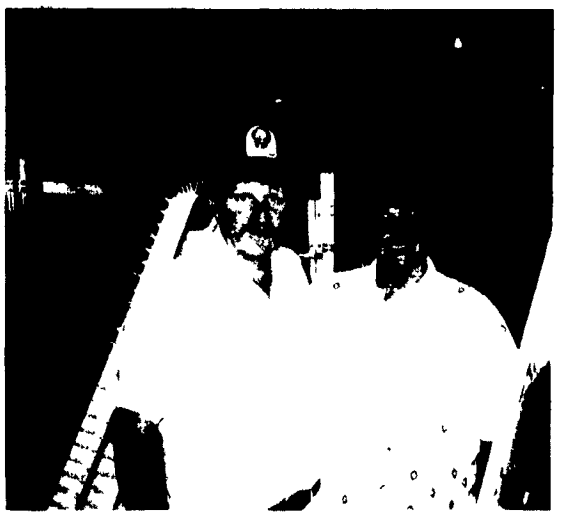
Big Dutchman offers the important features that make a cage system work better and last longer.

Big Dutchman Cages, Feeders and Egg Collectors The Perfectly Suited Systems

Reliable, Safe Egg Collection and Handling from Cage to Packing Room

Recently, Jim and Sandy decided to expand their egg laying operation by 125,000 Birds. They knew Big Dutchman was the only way to go! Years of dependable service and results from the Big Dutchman chain feeder. An egg collecting system that gently handles the eggs for fewer cracks. A cage design proven throughout the industry. BIG DUTCHMAN.





"Common sense told us we've come this far by making smart decisions. We were not going to change now. The Big Dutchman chain feeder gives us the reliability and results to keep a step ahead."

Franklin County Winners At Dairy Day

What will this year's milk price be?

That was the question asked of farmers at the recently held 1994 Franklin County Dairy Day.

Last year, that same question was asked. For Lester Wingert and Ronald Shadle, the answer was simple, $12.98/cwt. For their correct prediction they split $100 cash from York Farm Credit, ACA.

Ardell Eby and Jerry Yeager were also winners of $100 cash prizes sponsored by York Farm Credit.

The grand prize winner was Clement Haldeman. He received a $200 discount certificate toward the purchase of a York Farm Credit Financial Management Service Package.

Bair Honored

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Robert A. Bair, right, auctioneer from Wrightsville, is recognized by Pennsylvania Auctioneer State President Sherman Hostetter Jr. with second place honors in the 1993/1994 Audio Auction Advertising Contest at the 46th Annual State Auctioneer Convention.

Bair's radio advertisement for sale of real estate and personal property was judged for excellence in design, effective salesmanship, and overall production quality.

A professional auctioneer since 1980, Bair serves the York/Lancaster County area with an office at 343 North Second Street, Columbia, PA 17512. He is a member of the Pennsylvania and National Auctioneer associations.

Osborne Becomes Territory Manager

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Irene Benner Osborne has been promoted to Telmark territory manager of south central Pennsylvania, northern Maryland, and eastern West Virginia.

Osborne, a Pennsylvania native, is a dairy science graduate of Virginia Polytechnical Institute who was raised on her family's Pennsylvania dairy garm (Santee-Acres) in Perry County.

Osborne received the honor of being named a National Distinguished Junior Holstein member by the National Holstein Association in 1988. She also captured many honors while exhibiting her Santee-Acres bred dairy cattle.

Irene Benner Osborne

While attending Virginia Tech, Osborne was on the Virginia Tech Dairy Judging Team that placed first at the All-American contest. She was also an active member of the nationally recognized Virginia Tech Dairy Club, holding several offices and chairmanships.

Osborne is active in Pennsylvania's dairy industry. She owns fifty-five (55) registered Holsteins and offers financing for dairy buildings and equipment through Telmark Inc. lease financing.

Precision Farming Group Expands Interests

MOLINE, ILL. — Deere Precision Farming Group, established by Deere & Company in August to lead and coordinate the development of an integrated John Deere precision farming system, was recently expanded with Deere & Company's acquisition of a minority interest in three Illinois companies. Terms of the agreement were not announced.

The companies, owned by Ron and Ann Olson of Frankfort, Ill., include Top-Soil Testing Service Company, Applications Mapping, Inc. (AMI), and American Laboratory for Environmental Excellence.

Top-Soil provides soil testing, plant tissue analysis, crop scouting, crop management and environmental consulting services; AMI develops and sells software and provides technology transfer expertise to implement site-specific technologies in farming; and American Lab provides industrial hygiene services, lab services and environmental assessments.

The minority investment in the three companies will allow Deere to expand its research into the integration of precision farming technology into Deere equipment.

Woods Equipment Names National Sales Director

OREGON, Ill. — Woods Equipment Company has appointed Steve Farmer, 58, to director of national sales, with responsibility for the company's network of approximately 3,800 independent farm equipment dealers and its entire dealer sales organization. The position reports directly to Woods President and Chief Executive Officer Tom Laird.

"Steve brings a perfectly balanced background for the position including 18 years of experience owning and running a farm equipment dealership and another 11 years as a member of the Woods team," said Laird. "His entire career has been spent working both sides of the supplier-dealer relationship, making him uniquely qualified to assume this important responsibility at Woods."

Farmer's background includes three years in field sales management for the former International Harvester in the mid- to late-1960s, 18 years owning and running successful farm equipment dealerships, and 11 years with Woods Equipment Company, most recently as regional manager for sales in its Southern Region.

Ron Tiller, a Woods district manager working under Farmer, will assume Farmer's responsibilities as regional manager for the southern region.

Pfizer Names Public Affairs Director

LEE's SUMMIT, Mo. — Pfizer's North American Animal Health Division has announced the appointment of Karen DeQuasie as director of public affairs. DeQuasie will report to the vice president, general manager and have overall responsibility for the division's public affairs function.

Prior to joining Pfizer, DeQuasie was an account supervisor with McCormick Advertising in Kansas City, Mo., with primary responsibility for development and implementation of communications programs for several major animal health accounts.

Previously, she obtained significant public relations experience via assignments of increasing responsibility at Cattle Marketeing Information Service, Denver, Colo.; Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Omaha, Neb.; and Warren Anderson Advertising, Davenport, Iowa.

Appraiser Joins York Farm Credit

YORK (York Co.) — York Farm Credit, ACA announces that Merril Brofee joined the staff of its appraisal department recently.

Although he works out of the York office, Brofee will eventually be headquartered in the Carlisle branch so that he may effectively serve members in Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, and Perry counties.

Brofee earned his masters of education in agriculture from the Pennsylvania State University and was previously employed by Homestead Federal Savings Association. He is a native of Perry County, where he was a partner in Nekoda View Farms.

Rohm And Haas Expands Ag Business

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Rohm and Haas Company Vice President John F. Talucci announced the signing of a letter of intent for Rohm and Haas to purchase from Monsanto Company its worldwide pyridine family of chemistry, a new fungicide, and certain assets related to these businesses.

The agreement includes Dithiopyr herbicide sold under the trade name Dimension and Thiazopyr herbicide sold under the trade name Visor.

Dimension herbicide is sold in the United States, Canada, Japan and Australia for turf applications. Visor herbicide is registered for sale in Spain for orchards and olive groves and in South Africa for tree fruit and forestry.

Funk's 4393 IMR Offers Pursuit Resistance

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Hoffman Seeds is offering farmers Funk's G® brand 4393 IMR, an Imidazolinone-resistant (IMR) version of 4393. It is labeled for direct application of Pursuit and provides protection from carry-over of other Imidazolinone herbicides.

Ciba Seeds, which produces Funk's hybrids, obtained the license for IMR technology from American Cyanamid.

4393 IMR adapts to a wide variety of soils types and performs well even under drought stress. A 105-day hybrid, it also responds well to high management practices.

For more information about 4393 IMR, call Hoffman Seeds, (800) 776-7929.

THE FORGOTTEN RESOURCES

Robert S. Hansen
County Forester Towanda

Most often when we talk about forest resources, two resources seem to stand out in our minds. These resources are the trees (timber) and wildlife.

In most cases the other resources that can be found in a forest environment are ignored. The ignoring of these other resources is generally not a conscious effort but more of just forgetfulness and not realizing that these resources are there.

What are some of these forgotten resources? One is the water resource found in the woods. The streams and rivers that may flow through your woods are generally not forgotten, especially if they flow all year round. Other water resources exist, however. There may be streams that may only flow part of the year, during the spring runoff or during heavy rains. For this reason they are important. Much erosion can occur during the spring runoff season or during heavy rains.

It is important to protect these stream channels. A thoughtless act can increase the instability of these channels and the direct result can be the increase in the amount of erosion during a storm. This can lead to an increase in sedimentation of a trout stream for example.

Vernal ponds (ponds that only exist during the spring) can be important water sources for wildlife and habitat for a variety of insects and amphibians. Wetlands are also a valuable source of wildlife habitat as well as serving as natural flood control devices. Springs and seeps are also valuable water resources. They are important water sources for wildlife. Protecting these seeps is important. It doesn't really take much activity to damage this resource.

The riparian vegetation zones found along streams, lakes, and ponds are other valuable forest resources. These zones are valuable wildlife habitat and play an important role in protecting streams and lakes from erosion and sedimentation. Riparian vegetation controls, to a large extent, the temperature of these waters. Extreme fluctuations in water temperatures limit the variety and number of fish and insect species found in streams and lakes. Trees are also able to screen out a large proportion of nutrients before they reach streams and ponds. Cattle should be excluded from these areas and timber should not be harvested close to these areas.

More information on riparian vegetation management and care can be found in the following publications: "Woodlot Management, Water Quality, The Law, and You" by the Endless Mountains R C & D Council, Riparian Forest Buffers NA-PR-07-91 by the US.D.A. Forest Service, Northeastern Area; and Stream BAnk Fencing Extension Circular 397 by Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences.

Nongame wildlife species such as owls, song birds, and chipmunks are often overlooked. They are often not as spectacular as many of the game species, but many individuals very much enjoy seeing these animals in the woods. To these people they are just as important as a deer or grouse. Managing for game species can sometimes be detrimental to the habitat of non-game species. This is another aspect to consider during forest management activities.

Another resource that is often overlooked, until it is gone, is the visual resource itself. This can be a difficult resource to identify because we all have different tastes. What is very beautiful in the landscape to one person is not even noticed by others.

Sometimes the management of the timber resource will temporarily damage the visual resource. However, this damage can be dimished and, keep in mind that when timber is harvested properly, the visual resource has the ability to recover relatively quickly.

Other activities can essentially destroy parts of the visual resource. As an example, when you walk the woods of northeastern Pennsylvania you wil often come across old stone walls. To many individuals these walls are important to the charm of the Northeast. Removing these stone walls can damage the visual resource. Again, this depends to a large part on your personal perspective.

There may be areas with special wildflowers, unique trees or tree species, and areas with special meaning to the landowner found in the woodlot. A forest landowner has the ability to protect these areas if he or she desires.

What is difficult for woodland owners is that being a forest steward requires thought about how your actions affect not just the resource you are most interested in, but how your actions affect all of these important, but often forgotten, forest resources. Your forest stewardship plan should address all of these resources to some extent and can be a helpful guide in decision making. The Stewardship Incentive Program also provides cost-share assistance in addressing the management of these other resources.

It is not easy being a steward, but it can be very rewarding when you see a job well done!

FOREST STEWARSHIP VIP

George Hurd
Franklin Co. Agent

There is something new and innovative happening in the woods of southcentral Pennsylvania. It's called the Forest Stewardship Volunteer Initiative Project, or VIP for short.

The purpose of the VIP is to train volunteer woodland owners in the principles of forest stewardship so that they will not only better manage their own forestlands, but motivate other woodland owners to become actively involved in the future of Pennsylvania's forest resources.

The project is sponsored by Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, School of Forest Resources, the Pennsylvania DER, Bureau of Forestry, and the Coverts Prograom of The Ruffed Grouse Society.

Woodland owners that are selected to be a Stewardship VIP will be an important link in the nationwide stewardship effort to promote proper forest and wildlife management by private forest landowners.

Stewardship VIPs will receive approximately 40 hours of classroom and field training in forest ecology, the concepts of biodiversity, silviculture, wildlife science, environmental resource management and other subjects related to stewardship. In exchange, VIPs agree to invest a like amount of their time relaying what they've learned to motivate forest landowners in their communities.

What type of individuals are we looking for? First of all, you should be a forest landowner who is active or has the desire to become more active in forest management. Outstanding candidates who are not currently landowners will also be considered. We are looking for concerned local residents who are considered by their peers to be responsible members of the community.

Equally important, the appropriate participant must be interested in forestry, able to articulate well-informed opinions, and must have the time to contribute towards community-sharing activities.

If you are interested in more information or an application, contact George Hurd at the Penn State Franklin County Cooperative Extension Office, (717) 263-9226. Deadline for selection of this year's Stewardship VIPs is Friday, March 25.

BSM

IN STOCK!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials, this crate is designed to reduce crushing with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars make for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminate the sow from carelessly dropping on the piglets. This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

NEW For 1994!

History Repeats Itself

"It's easy to improve on perfection when you start with the best."

In 1968, when Kuhn introduced its first disc mower, the GMD 4, it started a revolution in the way grass was cut. It also started Kuhn on the road to over 25 years of unprecedented leadership in haymaking equipment.

Now history repeats itself with the introduction of the all new line of GMD "100 Series" Disc Mowers. Available in working widths of 6'7", 7'10" and 9'2" There's a Kuhn GMD Disc Mower that will fit your operation.

The heart of the new GMD "100 Series" is the newly designed cutter bar which makes for better overall performance, a more uniform cut and easier maintenance.

It's easy to improve on perfection when you start with the best, and that's just what Kuhn has done with the new GMD "100 Series" lineup. See your Kuhn dealer and order yours today. But don't delay, there's a limited supply of new GMD "100 Series" Disc Mowers and they'll sell fast.

COMPARISONS BETWEEN DIFFERENT METHODS OF INDUCED MOLTING AND THEIR INFLUENCE ON THE SECOND CYCLE PERFORMANCES

Dr. Magdi Mashaly
Mohammed Alodan
And Dr. Abdulrahman Atta
Department Of Poultry Sciences

Induced molting is a common management practice in the egg industry.

There are different reasons behind making the decision to induce molting, one of which is to improve egg quality. Economic considerations such as the anticipation of high egg prices is definitely another important reason to induce molting.

There are different methods that are used to artificially induce molting; however, all are aimed at giving the flock a rest at the end of a period of egg production so that it may perform more efficiently during a second cycle.

The most common procedure, which is called "conventional," provides no food or water for two days and is followed by providing water and 45 grams of feed/hen every other day for a period of one week.

Oyster shell is provided on a continuous basis throughout the nine days. From days 10-60, water is provided continuously and each hen receives 90 grams of feed. During the 60-day period, the light received is reduced from 16 to 8 hours/day. Following the 60 days, the hens are put back on full-feed layer ration and light received is back to 16 hours/day.

Another method used to induce molting is called "California" and incorporates a longer period of complete feed withdrawal (10 days) followed by nothing but cracked corn for 18 days. Water and oyster shell are provided for the total 28 days. As in the conventional method, in the California program, light is reduced from 16 to 8 hours/day throughout the 28-day period. Following the 28-day period, the hens receive 16 hours of light and are put back on full-feed layer ration.

The third method to induce molting is to use zinc at 20,000 ppm for 5 days and then back on full-feed layer ration.

In our laboratory, we conducted an experiment to study the difference in the effects of the above mentioned methods of induced molting on subsequent performance and on the immune response. White Leghorn hens were used following 12 months of production. Hens were divided randomly into four groups and the three methods of induced molting were applied to the first three groups. The fourth group was not treated and served as control. Body weights, egg production, egg quality, and immune responses were measured at different time periods.

We found that relative to control hens, body weights of hens in the California program were reduced the most and hens in the conventional group were reduced the least during the treatment periods. At peak egg production, body weight of hens in all groups were similar. Egg production and interior egg quality were better in the conventional group than in the other three groups.

However, eggshell weight was higher in the California group than in the other three groups. In conclusion, it seems that general performance of hens in the conventional group is better than the other induced molting groups. Data on the immune responses will be reported at a later date.

Nutrient Management Exam Set

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Department of Agriculture Secretary Robert L. Walker announced that the first Nutrient Management Certification Examination for 1994 is scheduled for Thursday, March 10 at MDA's headquarters building in Annapolis.

The exam is open to qualified individuals from both the private and public sector who provide farmers with state-approved nutrient management recommendations, or professionals who provide technical assistance or develop plans for waste management systems and utilization of organic wastes.

Interested persons should submit a completed application along with a $50 fee to MDA by February 25. (Personnel from government agencies are exempted from the $50 payment requirement.) Additional information and application forms may be obtained by calling the Maryland Nutrient Management Program at (410) 841-5863. A list of recommended study materials will be supplied to all qualifying applicants.

For more information on Maryland's Nutrient Management Program, call (410) 841-5863.

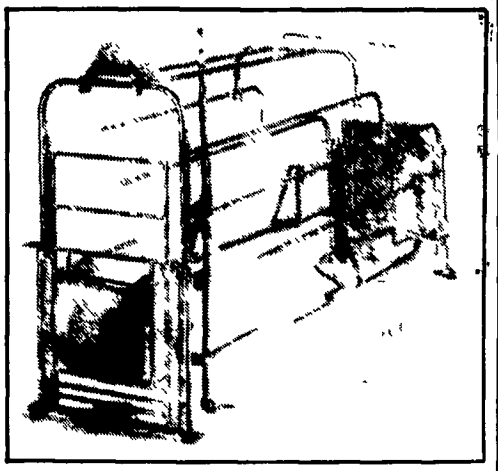
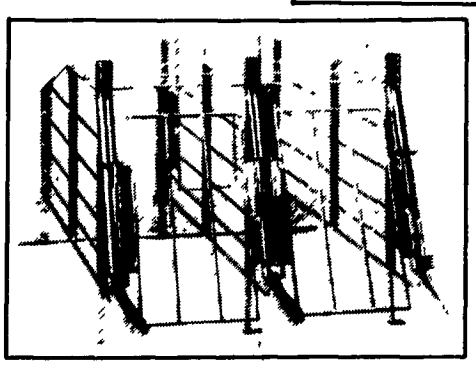
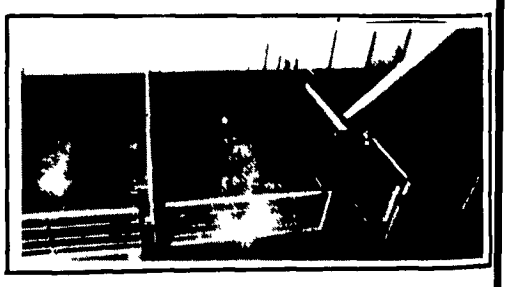
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"
Developed through testing in our research farms the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay one, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity flipgrail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.





CONFINEMENT STALL
Developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x 86")

NURSERY PENNING
Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminates corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.



FINISHING PENNING
Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a mini[illegible] of waste.

Soil Compaction Worth Preventing

ROBERT LEIBY
DAVID DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Extension Agents

Soil compaction is defined as a process of rearranging soil particles to decrease pore space and increase bulk density (weight per unit of volume).

An ideal soil might have 50 percent pore space. Compaction reduces the movement of gases and water in the soil, increases soil strength, and reduces crop yields significantly.

Soil oxygen is essential for seed germination, root development, nutrient uptake, and soil microb activity. Restricted water movement prevents beneficial drainage when soils are wet and limits the availability of water to roots when soils are dry. The increased soil strength caused by compaction directly blocks root growth.

Plants growing in compacted soils are slow to emerge. Stand and plant size are variable. Leaves may be off-color due to nutrient deficiency. Roots are shallow and malformed. Plants are especially susceptible to moisture stress (from either too much or too little water).

Compaction symptoms that may be observed in soil include crusting and cracking of soil surfaces, excessive erosion, ruts and standing water, higher power requirements for tillage, and only partial decomposition of crop residues.

Because water lubricates soil particles, wet soils compact more readily than dry soils. Fine-textured soils and soils with variable particle sizes compact more easily than uniformly coarse textured soils. Organic matter helps prevent soil compaction and reduces bulk density.

Freezing/thawing and wetting drying help to correct compaction in surface soil, but deep compaction is difficult to treat. Mechanical subsoiling gets limited and/or temporary results. The best approach is to minimize compaction by the following means:

- Reduce tillage. Consider using minimum tillage or no-till planting practices.
- Don't till or move equipment (or animals) on wet soils. The drier, the better. If its' too wet to till, it's also too wet to spread manure.
- Reduce traffic on fields. Aerial applications or wider equipment could help.
- Reduce weight of tractors and implements. However, remember that excessive tire slippage also causes compaction. Tandem wheels can distribute weight and reduce compaction.
- Increase soil organic matter. Use cover crops, manure, crop residue, mushroom compost, deep-rooted forage crops, and a rotation cropping system.
- Improve both surface and subsurface drainage when appropriate.

Most of the previous observations and guidelines relating to soil compaction were gleaned from a presentation by Doug Beegle, Penn State agronomist, at our recent Crops Days.

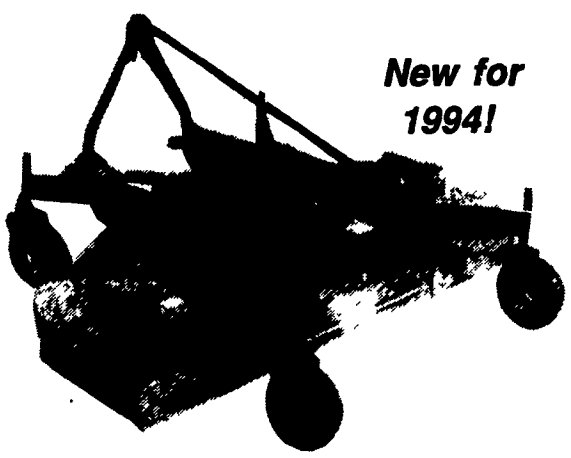
ATH-900 SERIES
FINISHING MOWERS



Designed for use by commercial operators and owners of homes with large lawns to maintain, Bush Hog's ATH-900 Finishing Mower features a full 90-inch cutting width.

The unique tunnel design of the ATH-900 allows you to mow in heavier, thicker conditions. And the special design of the deck eliminates "dead spots." Floating top and lower linkage work to prevent the scalping problems often encountered when mowing on uneven terrain. And the four pneumatic tires are standard equpiment to help reduce the shock loads of rugged cutting requirements.

Maintenance is easy, with quick access to all grease zerts.

BUSH HOG®
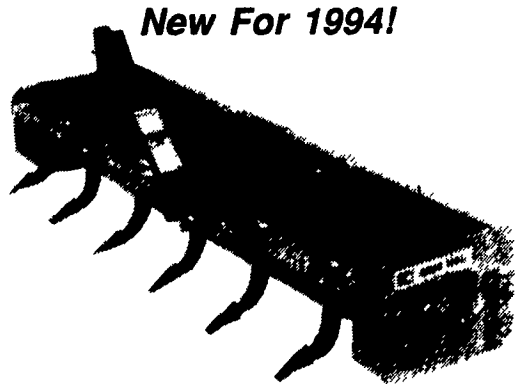
BOX BLADES



Four models designed for a wide variety of jobs around the farm, and applicable for landscaping and construction chores.

• Choice of widths - 48" to 84" • Two cutting edges work in forward or reverse • Mounts to a wide range of tractors, maximum of 40 HP • Scarifier teeth are standard equipment • Heavy reinforced A-frame • Excellent for grading, backfilling, leveling topsoil and gravel

BUSH HOG®
LANDSCAPE RAKES

Here's your best choice in a dependable tool that's ideal for seedbed preparation, landscaping, spreading gravel or topsoil and removing rocks and debris from fields and farmyards. Bush Hog's Landscape Rakes are recommended for tractors with a maximum 35 HP, and are available in 5, 6, or 7-foot widths. High carbon spring steel tines are spaced at 1" intervals, for more thorough leveling or rock removal. These rakes pivot a full 360 degrees, a feature that assures a more versatile operation. And the pivot pin is 1¼" solid steel- for greater durability.

The Genetics Of Carcass Grade
John W. Comerford
Assoc. Professor Dairy And Animal Science
Penn State

The conventional wisdom in the cattle feeding business has been that, if you feed cattle the right feed for a long-enough period of time, you can eventually get them to grade Choice. While this method has resulted in plenty of Choice cattle, it also has created plenty of fat in cattle. And fat costs the industry money — more than over $100 per carcass — according to the National Beef Quality Audit. Is there a better way?

We have known for some time that fat thickness in a carcass is not highly correlated genetically with marbling score (intramuscular fat in the ribeye that largely determines quality grade). Therefore, we know it is possible to select cattle for marbling score without also making them fatter. The problem has been that the cattle were already dead when the marbling was measured, and there was little identification to trace the parentage for genetic evaluation.

Several breed associations, notably the American Angus Association, have tried to fix the problem by developing EPDs (expected progeny differences) for marbling score in bulls. It is now possible to buy bulls with the genetic ability to transmit marbling to their offspring.

A recent study at the University of Nebraska (Vieselmeyer et. al) has proven the value of the marbling EPD. In this trial, crossbred cows were mated to either high- or low-marbling EPD bulls. Results indicated birth weight, weaning weight, and yearling weight differences were accounted for by the differences in the EPDs for these traits among bulls.

Therefore, selection for marbling score did not affect these traits. However, 77 percent of steer calves and 72 percent of heifer calves from high-marbling bulls reached Choice grade after a prescribed feeding period, compared to 47 percent of both steers and heifers from low-marbling bulls fed for the same amount of time. Further, fat thickness was not different among these groups.

Genetic selection has improved the ability of the breeder to change traits that are most economically important. Quality grade can now be added to the list.

Cattleman Survey For Pennsylvania
John W. Comerford
Assoc. Professor Dairy And Animal Science
Penn State

A recently completed survey of Pennsylvania beef, dairy, and veal producers has highlighted important trends in the state's cattle industry.

Respondents were randomly selected from a list of more than 12,000 names and asked to provide information about possible expansion of their cattle enterprise, evaluate possible roadblocks to that expansion, and indicate if they felt they had access to the information and technology needed to remain competitive. The answers provide an important view of the cattle business.

A high percentage of cattle owners, primarily the under-40 group, anticipate expanding their enterprises in the next few years. Answers on many topics from this age group were consistently different from those in the 40-60 and over-60 age groups. These topics included how they access information, who they consider to be the best sources of information, and their fear of regulations that will affect their ability to expand herds in the future.

Information provided by those who listed beef as their major enterprise provided both good and bad news for the industry. First, the notion that beef breeders in Pennsylvania are primarily hobbyists without a profit incentive was thoroughly dispelled. More than 90 percent of the respondents indicated they depend on beef production as either a primary or secondary source of family income. About one-third of all farmers in the survey owned beef cattle and, roughly, two-thirds owned dairy cattle.

The disturbing news indicated a clear trend in the age of beef producers in the state. Fewer than 20 percent of beef producers listed their age as under 40, the opposite that shown for those primarily in dairy. This is a signal to the industry that methods must be found and implemented that will allow entry of younger cattle producers into the beef business if it is to remain consistent and viable over the next 10 years.

Copies of the survey are available at $2 per copy from John Comerford. The Pennsylvania State University, 324 William L. Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802.

BSE Issue In The Spotlight
William R. Henning
Assoc. Professor
Animal Services
Penn State

The topic of bovine spongioform encephalpathy (BSE) has worked its way back into the news this fall.

Several of the trade magazines have published reports and articles about the disease. The most balanced, easiest to read report on the subject was published in the August 25 issue of Hoard's Dairyman.

Press coverage reveals a great deal of uncertainty, scientifically speaking, about BSE. Some reporters are trying to make it a consumer issue.

The University of Wisconsin held a symposium in September, which brought together experts to assess the status of BSE in this country. The USDA, through the Animal and Plant Inspection Service, has been tracking the disease world-wide for several years. One USDA scientist described BSE status in the U.S. as "circumstantial evidence of a hypothetical disease."

To date, these are the facts in the U.S.

- There is no known incidence of BSE in this country.
- No medical evidence suggests that BSE presents a human health risk.
- The USDA conducts ongoing epidemiological surveillance and research for BSE.
- The U.S. does not import live cattle, beef, or beef products from Great Britain.

Since the conference in Wisconsin, however, the first case has been confirmed in North America. The animal diagnosed was a six-year-old cow imported from the U.K. as a 5-1/2 month old calf in 1987. While this finding is significant, it is not a crisis.

First, all scientific evidence shows that lateral transmission (animal-to-animal) does not occur. The USDA and Ag Canada are tracking the offspring from the cattle that were imported from Great Britain to the U.S. or Canada prior to the 1989 moratorium. Hence, the entire at risk population is known and accounted for by the USDA and Ag Canada.

NAFTA And The Meat Industry
William R. Henning
Assoc. Professor
Animal Sciences

The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) has been signed into law!

Most experts believe it will be good for agriculture in both the short and long run. The American Meat Institute says, "each of the five volumes was as large as a phone book and written with the legal profession's usual clarity."

So it appears that the vote was taken more on emotion and speculation than on substance.

NAFTA appears good in all respects for the meat and poultry industries. Mexico has been a growing market for US meat products, and will probably become even better as Mexico's economy improves. Last year, the U.S. exported $448 million in meat products (13 percent of our total exports) and imported Mexican meat products worth $1.8 million (0.7 percent of our total imports).

It appears that beef will be helped the most by NAFTA. Mexico recently imposed tariffs on beef — 15 percent on live slaughter cattle, 20 percent on fresh beef, and 25 percent on frozen. These tariffs cost the U.S. beef industry an estimated $95 million in 1993. Tariffs on beef will be rescinded immediately, with the exception of a 20 percent tariff on beef variety meats, to be phased out over the next 10 years. Coming the other way, U.S. tariffs of two cents per pound on Mexican beef and one cent per pound on live cattle will be eliminated immediately.

The picture is not so bright for pork. Mexico will establish a special safeguard tariff rate quota on fresh and frozen pork of 68,500 metric tons. Mexico's current tariff of 20 percent on these products will be reduced by 2 percent per year over the next 10 years, while the quota will be increased by 3 percent per year, compounded. Pork cuts going to Mexico in quantities over the quota level will be subject to a snap-back 20 percent tariff for the next nine years. After the tenth year, there will be no quotas.

Other tariffs on pork are 20 percent for processed, 15 percent for pork sausage, 20 percent for fresh pork variety (10 percent if frozen). Since we currently import no pork from Mexico due to hog cholera, there are no tariffs on Mexican pork. This import ban will not change under NAFTA.

Other meat items affected:

- The current 10 percent tariff on lamb shipped from U.S. to Mexico will be phased out over 10 years.
- U.S. duties of 1.5 cents per pound on mutton and .5 cents per pound on lamb will be dropped immediately.
- Exporters will no longer have to pay a 10 percent tariff on hides and skins shipped to Mexico.
- Poultry exporters are currently subject to licensing restraints and a 10 percent tariff. These would both be converted to a quota system, then reduced, and eliminated after 10 years.
- Mexican poultry items shipped to the U.S. will be free of the current 4 percent to 15 percent tariff.

Packers believe there is pent-up demand for U.S. beef in Mexico. Beef prices are currently very high in Mexico, so U.S. exporters should be competitive price-wise.

Most experts expect beef sales to exceed the pretariff levels. The industry is excited since it's a particularly valuable market which provides an outlet for lower priced beef which, in a sense, complements the domestic market.

Closely-Trimmed Box Beef
William R. Henning
Associate Professor
Animal Sciences
Penn State

The amount of closely-trimmed boxed beef continues to grow. Retailers who have tried closely trimmed product and done cutting tests are very happy with the results. Retailers who haven't done their homework are put off by the higher prices charged for the product.

An industry consensus projects that, by the end of 1993, 30 percent of boxed beef trade will be in the form of closely trimmed products. Some individual packers anticipate selling 40 percent of their beef closely trimmed by June 1994. All three major beef packers have programs in place (Excel (Smart Choice); IBP (User Friendly); Monfort (Super Lite Trim).

At this point, Monfort is the only company trimming the fat off hot (prior to chilling, while the carcass is still warm). Excel and IBP are both still trimming chilled carcasses. The hot fat trimming presents some problems in pricing the beef on the rail, but plants currently hot-fat trimming are not buying grade and yield.

In plants which are not trimming 100 percent of their production, the trimmer cattle are going into the closely trimmed program, as packer economics prevail. That is, Yield Grade 3's are stil the industry standard, so there is no reason to trim 3's when you can trim 1's and 2's and send less fat to rendering.

The economics have not quite been positive for the packer. Obviously, there are differences in how closely the carcasses are trimmed, which affects yields and costs. All are trimming to 1/4 inch or less and, in at least one case, to 1/8 inch.

The benefits are obvious: more efficient labor utilization at the packing plant versus the retail store, more value of the fat at the packing plant (in some cases five to ten times more value), and lower freight costs because less fat is being shipped.

Expect increased use of closely trimming of boxed beef. Packers are getting some good lessons on the value of cattle and are beginning to realize the importance of muscling once the fat is trimmed off. Pennsylvania packers are looking closely at the process, but have not yet implemented a close-trimming program.

Pesticide Applicator Exam Set

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Carroll County Extension Service will be sponsoring a private pesticide applicator certification exam on Wednesday, March 2, from 1 p.m.-3 p.m. or from 7 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Carroll County Extension Service office building.

The exam is open to anyone who wishes to become certified to apply restricted use pesticides.

There will be a training session for the exam on Wednesday, February 23, from 1 p.m.-3 p.m. or from 7 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Carroll County Extension office building. The training session is optional; however, the material on the exam will be covered during these sessions and it is recommended that you attend. Stop by the extension office before the training session to pick up the study books and register for the exam. If you have any questions, call (410) 848-4611 or (410) 875-2801.

Payment Forgiveness In Effect

LIONVILLE (Chester Co.) — "Corn and sorghum producers with 1993 disaster losses are reminded they must request disaster assistance by March 4 to be eligible for possible forgiveness of advance deficiency overpayments," said Grant Buntrock, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agridultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

"Even if the disaster loss was not large enough to qualify for disaster paymnet, it may mean eligibility for some advance deficiency overpayment forgiveness," Buntrock said.

"Final deficiency payments will not be calculated until early March, but it is almost certain, given current prices, that the final payment will be less than the advance payment. To be elibible for forgiveness of any overpayment, the producer must request disaster aid at the local ASCA Office," Buntrock said.

Harpster Retires From B&B Club

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — After 13 years as adviser to Penn State's Block and Bridle Club (B & B) Club, Harold Harpster has decided to step down.

Harpster, associate professor of animal science, helps recruit new students to Penn State, assists in counseling new students every summer, advises student interns, and has served on the undergraduate program and student scholarship committees in the department of dairy and animal science.

With so many demands on his time, he reluctantly resigned as B & B adviser. "It's time for new leadership," he said. "New ideas and change will keep the club strong and healthy."

When he took over club leadership in 1980, Harpster set a goal to help increase national recognition for Penn State's chapter of B & B. Since that time, the club has consistently placed near the top in various areas of regional and national competition.

Last spring, Harpster coached four B & B members to victory in the National Beef Quiz Bowl competition at the National Cattlemen's Association Convention in Phoenix. Penn State won over Oklahoma State, Washington State, and the University of Missouri. The team captured top honors after answering questions on genetics, breeding, nutrition, management, marketing, and physiology.

Regionally, Harpster coaches many teams to victory in annual competition sponsored by the Northeast Student Affiliate of American Society of Animal Science and American Dairy Science Association (NESA). For three consecutive years, from 1984 to 1987, the club received first place overall honors in all three area of NESA's competition, including judging, a quiz bowl contest, and a technical paper presentation contest. The Northeast Student Affiliate consists of eight member schools.

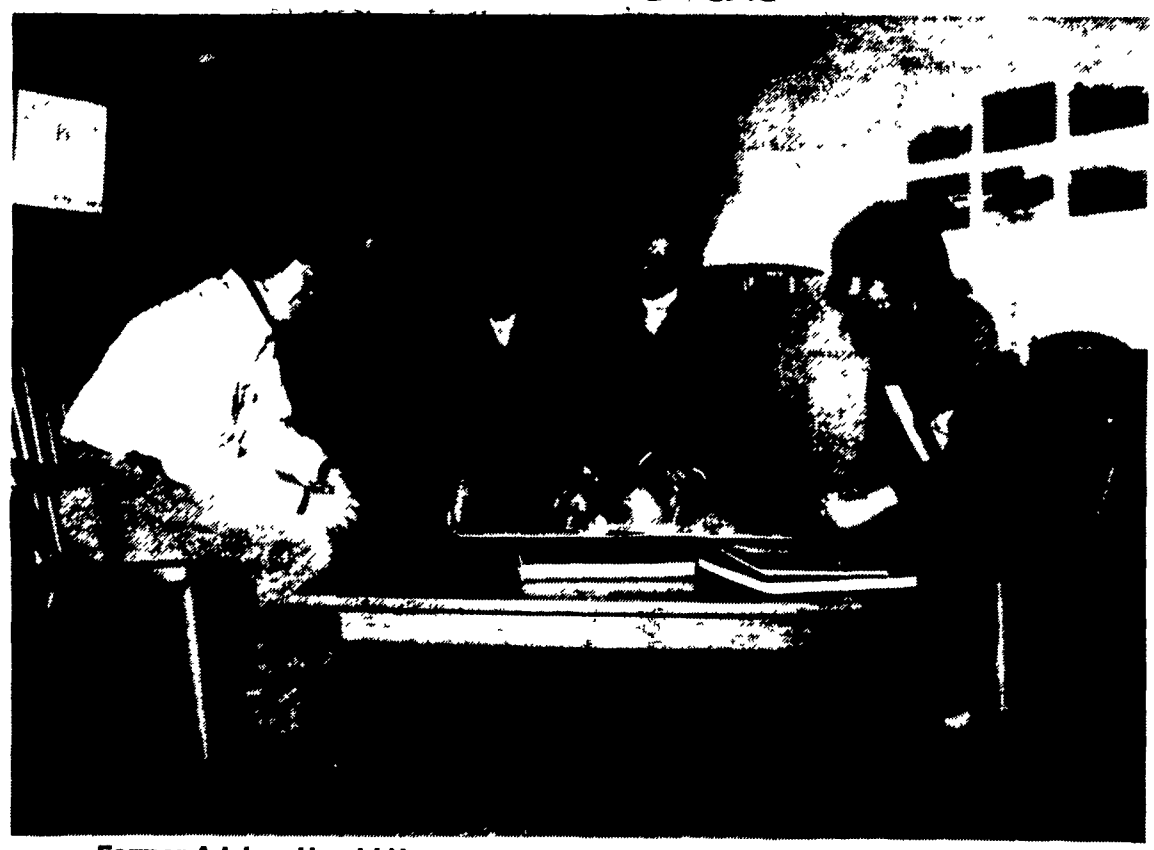
Penn State's B & B chapter has fared just as well as the national Block and Bridle Club convention under Harpster's leadership. Since the early 1980s, the club has received numerous first, second, and third place honors for its scrapbooks and published yearbooks and for its many activities.

The students thanked Harpster for his leadership and friendship by selecting him as the Little International Dedicatee in 1984 and again in 1992. They describe "Doc," as they affectionately call him, as a patient and helpful adviser, a great friend, and a person they all look up to. Harpster worked closely with club members, attending bimonthly meetings, traveling with the group to out-of-state functions, and shepherding the many club activities throughout the year.

"Doc has put a lot of time and a lot of heart into B & B over the last 13 years," said Michele Ruffing, the club's corresponding secretary. "He has been a strong supporter and a good listener for all its members."

"Watching students develop leadership skills, make industry contacts, and successfully enter a competitive job market are the most satisfying aspects of my work," said Harpster, who received the College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society's "Excellence in Academic Advising Award" in 1992. The award recognizes faculty with outstanding skills in academic advising, assisting students with goal setting, career planing, and personal counseling. Friend and colleague Erskine Cash, professor of animal science, said, "Few advisers devote more time to students."

Associate Professor Ronald Kensinger and Assistant Professor Edward Mills have joined instructor and former B & B member Keith Bryan as co-adviser to Block and Bridle. Bryan had been co-adviser with Harpster since 1991.



Former Adviser Harold Harpster, center, shares Block and Bridle Club memories with club members Sarah Johnson, Gary Schick, Liz Preston, and Heather Lagoda, who is a graduate student in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science.

Kensinger is excited about this new responsibility and hopes to provide incentive for better academic performance among club members.

'Mills said, "There is no way any of us will replace 'Doc.' We just don't have his wealth of experience."

A Pennsylvania Furnace native, Harpster received his undergraduate degree in animal industries in 1971 from Penn State, where he was involved in the meats and livestock judging teams and B & B, "I had the good fortune to belong to the Block and Bridle Club when Professor Glenn Kean was faculty advisor. He had a total commitment to the club and students in general. If I've had any success as a club advisor, it's largely due to the excellent role model I had in Glenn Kean."

After receiving his master's degree in animal nutrition in 1973, Harpster worked at the Penn State as a research assistant for two years before going on to earn his doctorate in ruminant nutrition at Michigan State University in 1978.

In addition to his many other activities, Harpster teaches undergraduate and graduate animal nutrition courses. His research interests include forage and by-product feed utilization and factors influencing growth and body composition in ruminants. His work has taken him to Ireland, New Zealand, and several countries in Africa.

Harpster is a member of the American Society of Animal Science, Penn State Stockmen's Club, Pennsylvania Livestock Association, Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society, and honorary societies Phi Sigma, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi, and Gamma Sigma Delta.

YOU JUST CAN'T MATCH OUR MIX

TMR Ruffage Master

These new Oswalt® four auger Model 200/250 mixers are designed to process and mix all feeds, including baled hay, into a fully-blended TMR...better than anyone!

The aggressive, notched, 20"-diameter, full-pitch, four auger mixing pattern, dual shear shelf design and exclusive, self-lubricating Tuff-Glide® liners help feed materials flow more freely, reducing horsepower requirements and virtually eliminating material hang-ups and dead spots.

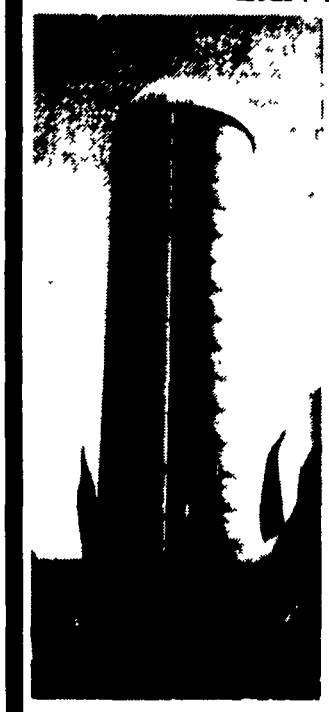
PLAN NOW FOR 1994!



"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

When Planning Your Forage Programs, Remember That Your Main Objective Is To Store The Plant And Remove It From Storage In As Good Condition As Possible. The Upright Silo Has Never Been Equalled In Its Ability To Do This.

On Most Dairy Farms, Forage Quality Is The Single Most Important Factor Relating To Profit.

Poured Concrete Silos Consistently Out-Perform All Other Methods Of Storing And Preserving The Total Digestible Nutrients In Forage Crops.

"Nobody Protects Forage Quality Like We Do...Nobody!"
No Used Silos!
No Rebuilt Silos!
No Preowned Silos!
"All New For You!!"

The Best of the Best

The Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality coating represents the best of the best in the Wheeling Corrugating line of premium galvanized roofing and siding. Every panel that carries the 2 ounce coating assures you are getting the toughest, the most durable, the most corrosion resistant galvanized sheet available in today's marketplace.

2oz. Seal of Quality Wheeling

Genuine Old-Time Quality
Every Wheeling 2 oz sheet is manufactured from heavy gauge steel, topped with an extra thick zinc coating, and formed into profiles that contribute strength and good looks Build with a Wheeling 2 oz sheet and you'll be working with the kind of durability and dependability that's been a standard in the industry for almost 100 years

The Proof is in the Process
The performance behind the Wheeling 2 oz Seal of Quality is possible because of Wheeling's patented Cook Norteman manufacturing process This technology allows a more consistent quality product, and a more uniform coating with unsurpassed zinc adhesion The process takes more handling and more time, but the end result is a super premium panel that has its own limited 20 year performance warranty

Dimensions and Specifications
If your building plans call for roofing and siding materials with exceptional corrosion resistance minimum upkeep and old time toughness you ll want to check the specs of Wheeling 2 oz Seal of Quality galvanized

CORN & SOYBEAN OILS - For Animals

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Registered Highland Cattle
- Discover the breed that still retains special traits acquired from its ancestors of Scotland.
- Great foragers, clearing most pest plants common to poor pastures
- Thrive in cold, damp climates
- Produce excellent lean beef in adverse conditions where other cattle would fail
- Docile and Hearty
- Calve easily due to small birth weights—something of interest to dairy people for servicing first-calf heifers
- Brucellosis, TB, BVD free herd and inoculated against rabies

FINALLY!!
Technology offers a solution to our insulation needs! Developed by NASA and guaranteed for life!

THERMO-BLOCK 360 (DOUBLE BUBBLE) INSULATION WAS SPECIFICALLY DESIGNED FOR THE EXTREME CONDITIONS CAUSED BY CONDENSATION, HIGH HUMIDITY, RODENTS, BIRDS, INSECTS AND DOES NOT DEGENERATE LIKE OTHER TYPES OF INSULATION!

PERFECT FOR ALL AGRICULTURAL APPLICATIONS, LIKE...POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK BUILDINGS, METAL BUILDINGS, HOG FARMS, HORSE BARNS, COLD STORAGE ROOMS, WORK SHOPS, BASEMENTS, CRAWL SPACES AND SO MANY MORE!!!

The other types of insulation were not designed for agricultural or commercial out buildings. They simply do not work. Moisture, condensation, rodents, birds, bugs, ammonia, animal waste destroy other insulation, BUT NOT THERMO-BLOCK 360!

THERMO-BLOCK 360 SAVES TIME AND MONEY!
FOR A LIMITED TIME WE ARE WHOLESALING RADIANT BARRIER PURE ALUMINUM FOIL INSULATION FOR .23 CENTS PER SQUARE FOOT WITH FREE DELIVERY

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels
- Improved energy density of your rations
- Excellent quality control.
- Exchange programs with feed mills.
- Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- We also buy corn and soybeans

VACUUM HYDRAULIC BRAKES OUR SPECIALTY!
WE HAVE PARTS & SERVICE ALL BRANDS OF STEEL & ALUMINUM TRAILERS

EBY Quality Specs Don't Cost - They Pay!

HERE'S WHY YOU CAN'T AFFORD ANYTHING LESS.

Eby livestock gooseneck trailers make top quality affordable. Both Wrangler and Ruff Neck models feature premium quality components and all-aluminum construction for greater payload efficiency, minimum maintenance and highest resale value.

The economical Wrangler series offers rugged design in lengths from 12' to 24', with a choice of 4 heights. The work horse Ruff Neck series is available in lengths from 20' to 32' and three standard widths, with a full range of custom options (including stainless steel front end).

These trailers are engineered for efficient operation and dependable service. So whatever your agri-transportation needs, Eby equipment satisfies the demands of your business.

OVER 20 YEARS EXPERIENCE IN PENNSYLVANIA FARM SALES

NEW PENNSYLVANIA REALTY has been selling farms and country properties since 1974 and all of our agents have 18 to 22 years of experience. We primarily service Eastern Pennsylvania and are licensed in both Pennsylvania and New Jersey. We sell all types of farms including dairy farms, beef farms, horse farms, Christmas tree farms, and country estates, as well as land for development.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERIENCE

We at New Pennsylvania not only have many years of Real Estate experience, but everyone at New Pennsylvania has agricultural experience and we all own farms. We feel this experience is a must in evaluating farm properties as well as relating to sellers and buyers. We also keep informed as to the best methods of financing.

PROFESSIONALISM*EXPERIENCE*PERFORMANCE

We work hard to get the job done. We provide buyers with full information on a property to enable them to make informed decisions. We prepare detailed brochures and have professional photographs taken including aerials. This comprehensive approach and our national advertising campaign has enabled us to sell farms to all types of buyers from Agri-Business to Stock Brokers from New York City.

BOVINE CONNECTIONS

Lowell L. Wilson
Professor Of Animal Science

The "bovine industries" — beef cattle, dairy cattle, and veal calves — are particularly segmented. In the beef cattle industry alone there are cow-calf, grower, and feedlot segments. Each segment must be concerned not only about its own economic viability, but in the context of all segments.

When we specialize in one segment of an industry, we may lose sight of its relationships with other segments. Cow-calf producers want high prices for feeder cattle, but a major determinant of profit for the cattle feeder is the cost of feeder cattle.

Every industry segment must be profitable if any is to thrive. Profitability of each segment ultimately depends on the price the consumer pays for beef, which in turn is determined to some extent by cattle numbers and the amount of beef on the market.

Such interdependence is not unique to the traditional beef industry. There is interdependence among the three major "bovine industries" — beef cattle, dairy cattle, and veal calves — as well. Granted, the veal industry is smaller in dollar value than either the beef or the dairy. But the relationships among the three industries make veal important to the other two.

Criticism By Activists

Animal activists have attacked the beef, dairy, and veal industries, respectively, at different times and with different criticisms.

The beef cattle industry was first. As early as the 1960s, it was accused of being a wasteful user of grains. It was alleged that the nutritional status of people in developing countries could be markedly improved by feeding grains directly to them instead of to cattle.

Renewed attacks on the beef industry, based on bad science or no science, came in the late 1980s. The dairy industry was not the target of activism until the early 1990s. Cow and calf care, infrequent practices (such as tail bobbing), antibiotic residues, nonambulatory cows, and BST formed the bases for these attacks.

The special-fed veal industry has been targeted by activists since the late 1970s and still is the most frequently attacked. Primary points of contention are individual stall rearing systems, blood hemoglobin concentration, and abuse of medicines.

The arguments against special-fed veal production systems have been more frequent and diligent — and probably more effective — than those aimed at any other segment of animal agriculture. If an industry is using production or processing practices that do not properly consider animal well-being or food product safety, then it should be appropriately changed or stopped.

Unfortunately, no animal industry has comprehensively researched new or existing systems to challenge the activists' contentions.

Effects Of Veal On Beef

In 1992-1993, about 800,000 special-fed veal calves, 160,000 "other" calves (mostly dairy-type), and 400,000 bob veal calves were processed.

Animal activists have relentlessly pressured the veal industry. But what would happen if no calves were used for veal of any kind, and all of these 1,360,000 calves were raised to 1,250 pounds?

Assuming these calf-slaughter figures — a 1,250-pound slaughter weight, 60 percent dress, and 750-pound carcass — a total of 531,675 tons of additional carcass beef would be produced each year.

How many beef cows would be required to produce 531,675 tons of carcass beef? To arrive at this estimate, first assume an 85 percent calving rate, 10 percent of the heifers kept as replacements, and fed heifers marketed at 1,100 pounds, which results in an average of 543 pounds of carcass produced annually per beef cow. (The National Cattlemen's Association estimates 537 pounds.) Using the 543-pound estimate, then 1,958,287 cows would be required to produce the 531,675 tons of carcass beef that would result from feeding all the calves now going the bob, special-fed, or "other" veal route to 1,250 pounds instead.

This is not a criticism of the beef industry's efficiency. A large portion of land used by the nation's cow herd has few or no alternative uses, and by-products from many agricultural and nonagricultural industries are recycled through beef cattle. Also, unlike veal and dairy, beef cattle are a low-labor enterprise.

Expansion Of Dairy-Beef Feeding

One reason for the recent decrease in special-fed veal production and increase in the price for dairy bull calves has been the expansion of dairy-beef feeding.

Calves now sell for four times the price they commanded 15 years ago. Buyer competition for calves at three to 10 days of age has placed pressure on special-fed veal producers, but it has been beneficial to the dairy industry.

The dairy-beef carcass fits a low-fat, relatively high-quality marketing niche, assuming high-grain feeding. The availability of dairy-beef feeders has helped cattle feeders, especially in periods of decreased feeder cattle numbers. However, dairy-beef steers compete with feeder calves produced in beef herds.

As beef cow numbers increase and more feeder cattle are available, prices for beef calves will go down, providing more effective competition for dairy-beef steers. Additionally, finishing systems for beef breeds can use less grain and more forage, while dairy-beef systems rely on high-grain systems. Therefore, grain price may influence the profitability of dairy-beef feeding more than that of feeding cattle of beef type.

Whether or not special-fed veal producers can successfully compete with dairy-beef feeders for calves will depend on the relative profitability of the two enterprises.

Beef and veal usually don't compete directly in retail markets, thus retail prices of beef and veal in the meat case are not closely related. The USDA's estimate of 400,000 bob veal calves slaughtered annually can be questioned by those knowledgeable about veal and dairy-beef feeding systems. In many areas, 5 percent or less of the bull calves go for bob veal; the rest are returned from markets to farms for feeding in one way or another. Many of these calves are not up to conventional standards for health or quality to be profitable for special-fed veal growers or dairy-beef feeders. With more appropriate care at certain dairy farms, perhaps more of these calves could be profitably used.

Effect Of Veal On Dairy

Although there is a clear difference between bob veal and special-fed veal meat, the price for bob veal depends on the success of special-fed veal.

In many markets, veal is veal, whether it comes from bob calves or special-fed calves. When veal is rejected by the consumer, part of the dairyman's income from bob veal also is reduced.

The value to the dairy industry of bob calves plus that of those going into special-fed veal feedings totals about $180 million. (This does not include the value of other calves.)

In 1989, Penn State's John Malone and Lou Moore estimated that each year, $170 million in dairy products and by-products were used in veal diets in Pennsylvania.

Most veal feed manufacturers add or subtract dairy products and by-products from veal diets as commodity prices change. If we assume by now this has decreased to $150 million, the veal industry annually returns at least $330 million to Pennsylvania's dairy industry — $180 million for calves plus $150 million for dairy products and by-products.

Milk price has not kept up with inflation or production cost increases. However, prices for cull cows and bull calves have more than kept pace with inflation and have outstripped any long-term increase in milk price. Of course, cow and calf income is roughly 10 percent of the dairyman's total income, but it nevertheless has increased steadily over the past 15 years, and this has at least partially compensated for the static milk price. State and national beef and veal check-off programs deserve credit for increasing demand for these by-products of the dairy industry.

It really has drawn the three industries — beef, dairy, and veal — together to address promotion, marketing, image, and researchable problems. Each time a bovine animal is sold, either between producers or at markets (auctions, buying stations, or packers), $1 per head is assessed by state beef councils. Half is forwarded to the National Beef Promotion and Research Board to fund national programs; half stays in the state.

The Pennsylvania Beef Council is the collection and program agency in the commonwealth. The dollars generated have supported many important programs that have helped determine the future of each of the three segments of Pennsylvania's bovine industries.

A second example is the dairy/veal industry task force, which has addressed health and quality of dairy calves. This problem is very important to both the veal industry and the dairy-beef industry, and it can be an image and profit concern for the dairy industry as well.

Dairy cattle care guidelines, to be released early this year as an addendum to the milk/dairy-beef quality assurance program, should improve the quality, health, and performance of all dairy calves, whether they stay on the dairy farm as cow replacements or enter other feeding systems (the bull calves).

Addressing this problem also have been several progressive auction markets, calf brokers, and truckers. But more needs to be done.

Another example is closer communication and cooperation among researchers, extension, and technical service persons at universities and in industry.

More of us who have been strictly beef- or dairy-oriented are now conducting research and extension programs that more adequately consider the entire bovine industry instead of beef, dairy, or veal alone.

Perhaps these advancements have been late in coming. But they are here to stay, and they will make things better for the animals as well as those of us who care for and make our living from them.

Region Has Threatened Areas

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — In an article of the November-December issue of the Journal of Soil and Water Conservation, the American Farmland Trust (AFT) has released a list of the 12 most threatened agricultural areas in the United States.

Included in this list are the Shenandoah and Cumberland Valleys of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, said John R. Akers, district conservationist with the Franklin County office of the USDA Soil Conservation Service and a member of the Soil and Water Conservation Society.

"The areas were selected because of their importance as food-producing areas and because of the threat of population growth and urban sprawl. AFT reported that while the areas amounted to only five percent of all agricultural land in the United States, they represented 17 percent of total agricultural sales, 67 percent of fruit production, 55 percent of vegetable production, and 24 percent of dairy products.

"The areas most threatened faced a population growth of 21 percent from 1980 to 1990, twice the national average. Forty percent of the entire country's population increase was in the 12 acres. As population grew, farmland in these areas decreased by more than three million acres from 1978 to 1987, 40 percent greater than other areas. AFT said that while not all of the loss can be attributed to population growth, it is still likely to be a permanent conversion and loss."

These trends are evident in Franklin County, said Akers, as we see blocks of farmland being converted to housing and other urban development. There continues to be a need to plan our land use so that we do not infringe on our best and most productive farmland.

The Soil Conservation Service office in Chambersburg has soils information to help people determine where the best and most productive farmland soils are in Franklin County.

LIONVILLE (Chester Co.) — Hollis D. Baker, county executive director of the Chester/Delaware County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said farmers should be especially mindful this year of the flexible features of farm programs as they make their spring planting decisions.

"There is wide latitude for farmers in current programs, including recently-authorized permission to plant soybeans or other oilseeds on "optional" flexible acreage. Production from this acreage, equal to 10 percent of a farm's base acreage, is eligible for price support loans."

Baker said a total of 25 percent of a farm's base acreage can be included in the "flexible" category of the 1994 wheat, feed grains, cotton, and rice price support programs. The first 15 percent is called "normal flexible acreage" and no payments can be earned from its production whether it is "flexed" to another crop or planted to the crop from which its base is derived. The remaining 10 percent is referred to as "optional flexible acreage."

USDA's recent decision to authorize soybean plantings on this acreage came about because of the projection that soybean prices would be higher than 105 percent of the $4.92-per-bushel 1994 loan rate.

"The full list of crops which may be planted on flex acreage will be available at our office well before signup," Baker said.

Maryland DHIA Report For January 1994

The January 1994 Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd. To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of 3.5 percent fat corrected milk per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top eight herds for Ayrshires.

Producers Need To Amend Charter, Says Pork President

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster and Chester Pork producers need to consider amendments to the bylaws contained in the Lan-Chester Swine Producers' Association charter to get a more active voice on the state and national level, according to Ron Butt, association president.

Butt spoke at the association's annual meeting at Yoder's Restaurant last week.

He told the 100 farmers and agribusiness representatives present that some of the bylaws of the charter, which was written in 1957 and last amended in 1977, are "specific, some vague, some much outdated."

Since the checkoff went from voluntary to mandatory five years ago, more services are being undertaken at a national level. More local representation is needed according to Butt. "It's time for the people to take interest and make their voices heard," he said. "It appears the day is coming where you won't have that option anymore."

Abe Fisher, president of the state pork producers association, pointed out that input is needed from the county level as to how state funds will be spent.

Also, he asked members to attend the upcoming Nutrient Management For Pennsylvania Pork Producers Seminar scheduled March 2 at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

At the meeting, four new directors were elected: Brent Hershey, Mount Joy, president of Hershey Ag; Jackie Holzel, Elizabethtown, administrative assistant at Wenger's Feed Mill; Jerry Hostetter, Denver, owner of Swatara Swine; and Nelson Shaiebly, Washington Boro, who operates a sow herd and hog hauling business.

Ag Industry Leaders Welcome National FFA Officers

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The 1994 national FFA officers will visit with agricultural business leaders across the country during a series of upcoming business and industry visits.

The six officers, accompanied by representatives of the National FFA Foundation, will travel Feb. 27 through March 12 in Arkansas, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, and Wisconsin.

"These tours make it possible to introduce the agribusiness leaders of the future to those who are at the helm today," said Dr. Larry Case, national FFA adviser and coordinator of agricultural and rural education, U.S. Department of Education. "The officers learn firsthand the latest developments in agribusiness. At the same time, industry leaders get an update on how agricultural education and FFA is changing to involve more and more young people in the agricultural industry."

The group will begin its tour in Kalamazoo, Michigan, by meeting with Ron Davis, president and chief executive officer of Biggs/-Gilmore Communications. Davis serves as the 1994 chairman of the National FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board.

After meeting with Davis, the FFA representatives will divide into three teams to visit a variety of businesses and learn more about the industry of agriculture and the economic factors affecting it.

Curtis Childers, national FFA president for Glen Rose, Texas, said, "The National FFA Organization receives strong support from sponsors each year. They make important suggestions to our leaders in order to plan for the future needs of the industry. We are grateful for the efforts of industry leaders such as Mr. Davis who invest generously of their time and talent on behalf of the FFA."

Along with Childers, the tour will include Andrew McCrea, national secretary from Maysville, Mo.; Steven Mitchell, southern region vice president from Pineville, Ark.; Raquel Lacey, central region vice president from Nokomis, Ill.; Tyler Grandil, western region vice president from Gilbert, Ariz.; and Liam Brody, eastern region vice president from Greenville. N.Y.

The U.S. tour follows the national officer team's return from a two-week visit to Japan sponsored by Mitsui and Co. as a special project of the National FFA Foundation. The tour to Japan provides the officers with a better understanding of international trade relations and its importance to American agriculture.

Plant Mating Mystery Solved

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A gene long suspected of controlling the self-incompatibility mating system in plants has finally been caught in the act by a team of Penn State biologists.

Led by Teh-hui Kao, associate professor of biochemistry and molecular biology, the team is the first to show directly that this gene determines whether a plant is able to fertilize itself.

For more than 130 years, since Darwin observed that some plants can fertilize themselves with their own pollen while others cannot, scientists have been trying to understand exactly what controls this aspect of plant mating. Now, in a paper published in the Feb. 10 issue of the journal Nature, the Penn State biologists have provided the first direct evidence confirming a theory of genetic self-incompatibility that is the foundation for years of research in plant genetics.

The cornerstone of this theory is the self-incompatibility gene, or "S gene." According to the theory, a plant that cannot fertilize itself has an S gene that is "turned on," enabling it to produce in its pistil a protein that recognizes and rejects its own pollen. If a plant's S gene is "turned off," it does not produce the S protein, so it is able to fertilize itself.

"A protein identified in the early 1980s seemed to be the predicted S protein," said Kao, "but our strongest clues until now were only from indirect evidence."

By harnessing standard genetic-engineering techniques, Kao's team was able to neutralize the gene in a group of petunia plants, reversing their inherited inability to fertilize themselves and enabling them to produce seeds. The biologists also inserted the gene into another group of plants, giving them the ability to reject pollen with a specific genetic identity.

The biologists performed two experiments to show that a plant's ability to produce seeds when self pollinated depends on the presence or absence of an active S gene. In the first experiment, they disabled an S gene in a line of self-incompatible plants, then attempted to fertilize them with their own pollen.

"We reasoned that if an S protein is required for self-incompatibility interactions between pistil and pollen then inhibition of its synthesis should lead to the breakdown of self incompatibility," Kao said.

Each plant has two varieties of the S gene, called S alleles, which it inherits from the parent plants. Kao used petunia plants that had alleles called S2 and S3. He used a genetic engineering technique to produce an "antisense" S3 allele whose DNA sequence order is the reverse of a normal S3 allele's. Normal alleles produce RNA in a normal sequence order that makes genetic "sense."

"Antisense RNA is able to block the synthesis of protein from sense RNA in a mysterious way that we do not yet understand," Kao said.

Next, the team, including postdoctoral fellow Hyun-Sook Lee and graduate student Shihshieh Huang, incorporated the antisense S3 allele into a bacterium that they then used to infect the petunia leaves. From these leaves, they grew transgenic plants containing the three alleles, S2, S3 and antisense S3.

"Although this is a standard procedure, it turned out to be the most critical step in this experiment," Kao says. "We struggled for about a year before we were able to successfully grow transgenic petunias."

The team tested these transgenic plants, found they were not producing any S3 protein and attempted to fertilize them with S3 pollen.

"A normal plant with S2 and S3 alleles, when pollinated with S3 pollen, will reject the pollen because the S allele types match. The flower's pistil recognizes the pollen as 'self pollen,' fertilization fails, and the plant does not produce seeds," said the Penn State biologists. "But our transgenic petunias produced the same large number of seeds as you would get from compatible pollination, showing that they had lost the ability to reject self pollen."

Kao says this is the first successful attempt to use the antisense approach in any self-incompatible plant species.

Growers of self-incompatible crops such as apples could benefit from this part of Kao's research, according to George Greene, associate professor of pomology at Penn State.

Because apples are self-incompatible, commercial apple growers typically mix, in a single orchard block, three varieties that they carefully select to provide sources of compatible pollen. Cultivation of a single self-compatible variety would increase efficiency. Greene said by reducing several cultural and harvesting problems.

In their second experiment, Kao's team put an S3 gene into petunias that contained S1 and S2 alleles. A normal plant with S1 and S2 alleles will accept S3 pollen because the S3 allele carried by the pollen is different from the S1 and S2 alleles carried by the flower's pistil. However, Kao's team found that some of the transgenic plants produced no seeds at all when pollinated with S3 pollen.

"The transgenic plants that failed to produce any seeds at all had normal levels of S3 protein for a plant containing an S3 gene, which enabled them to acquire the ability to completely reject S3 pollen," Kai said. "The transgenic plants that produced a few seeds when pollinated with S3 pollen had levels of S3 protein that were much lower than normal, and those transgenic plants producing the most seeds did not have any detectable amount of S3 protein."

He said that this experiment shows that S-protein levels alone control a plant's ability to reject its own pollen — or pollen whose S allele type is identical to one of those contained in the flower's pistil.

"The ability to prevent plants from fertilizing themselves could double the yield and reduce by one-third to two-thirds the labor costs involved in hybrid seed production," said Richard Craig, professor of plant breeding and the Styer Professor of Horticultural Botany at Penn State.

Virtually all commercially important vegetables and many important flowers are produced from F1 hybrid seeds, the result of crossing two purebred plant lines. In order to assure the uniformity of hybrid seeds, growers typically must remove by hand the pollen-producing organs from the seed-producing parent plants, then discard the seed produced by the pollen parents — sacrificing half the seed crop.

"If the plants were 100 percent self-incompatible, you could harvest seed from every plant while using much less costly and more efficient fertilization procedures," Craig said. "In addition, Dr. Kao's work could provide the key to producing hybrids in many crops where this technique previously has been either inefficient or impossible."

"Confirmation that the S gene encodes the key protein in self-recognition comes as a huge relief to scientists who have published analyses based on that assumption," said Andrew Clark, professor of biology at Penn State and an authority on the molecular evolution of S alleles.

Craig said, "Many generations of scientists have devoted their lives to understanding the beautiful system of self-incompatibility in plants. Dr. Kao has added something to this effort that we have been seeking for half a century. His impressively simple and elegant contribution to our understanding of this biological process brings it into the era of modern molicular biology."

Keo said his team's next research goals are to determine whether the S protein, a ribonuclease, digests the pollen's RNA or blocks its growth in some other way and to identify exactly which of the protein's amino acids recognize self-pollen.

"We have not yet captured the holy grail of this field, which is to determine the precise bio-chemical mechanism of self-incompatibility," Kao said, "but this goal is the focus of our work, which looks like it could turn out to be a lifetime project."

This research was supported by grants from the National Science Foundation and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Farmers Win Top Awards In Contest

DEKALB, Ill. — Richard Schmaltz of Doylestown, Pa. won the state first-place award in the National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP) yield and management contest, non-irrigated division. This is his third consecutive win.

R. Gregory Manners of Ringoes, N.J. won the state first-place award in the National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP) yield and management contest, non-irrigated division. This is his third consecutive win.

Also, Schmaltz won the award with DeKalb DK37 sorghum which produced 90.52 bushels per acre. The yield ranked him among DeKalb's 14 national and state first-place winners.

He will be honored along with other state and national winners at the NGSP's annual convention in Nashville, Tenn. DeKalb Plant Genetics also will present him with an award during a special reception.

Manners won the award with DeKalb DK37 sorghum which produced 109.95 bushels per acre. The yield ranked him among DeKalb's 14 national and state first-place winners.

He also will be honored at the NGSP's annual convention in Nashville, Tenn. DeKalb Plant Genetics also will present him with an award during a special reception.

Schmaltz, who has been farming 40 years and has been a DeKalb dealer more than 30 years, grows corn, sorghum, soybeans and wheat on 575 acres. He plants 195 acres of that to sorghum.

Manners, who has been farming 21 years, plants 80 of his 700 acres to sorghum. On the other acreage he grows corn, soybeans, oats, rye, hay, sorghum/Sudangrass. He also raises about 50 head of cattle.

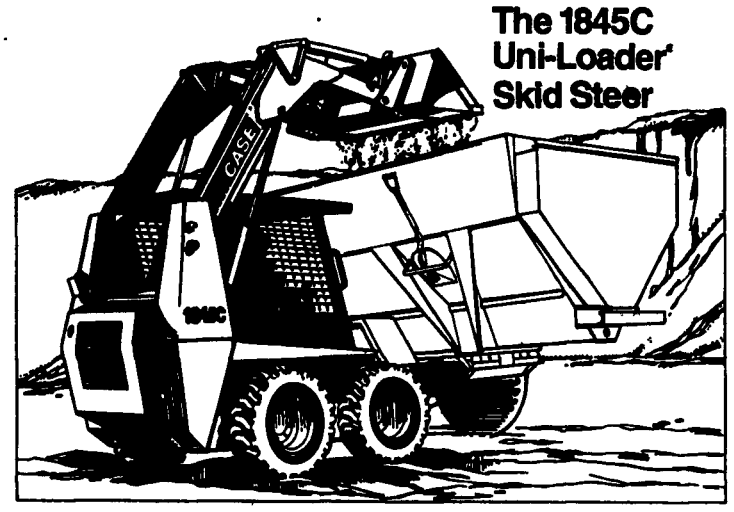
The 1845C Uni-Loader® Skid Steer



Rubber Tracks Give You More Traction And Flotation For Faster Snow Removal

1840/1845C CASE RUBBER-TRACK SKID STEERS IN STOCK

- Better traction
- Improved flotation
- Quiet operation
- Reduced surface damage
- Smoother ride
- Tire protection

case

Work when and where you need them

On more surfaces
Improved flotation lets Case rubber-track skid steers work on soils, sand or gravel and even mud

More comfortably
Rubber tracks provide a smooth ride with less bounce • also less chance of tire punctures

More places
Excellent for working on dirt and concrete lots • rubber tracks cause less ground disturbance • can drive on bedded areas without sinking in

More of the year
Work through wet, muddy conditions typical in spring and fall

The new Case International 3900 flex-wing disk harrow is just what you need for today's high-powered farming. Expect outstanding performance and reliability with:

- Superior gang strength from a massive welded tubular unibody gang frame. For years of trouble-free operation.
- Unique self-leveling spring-loaded hitch that transfers weight between tractor and disk to maintain ground-hugging performance in uneven terrain.
- A new mechanical stop depth control that eliminates variances common with master/slave systems. Plus crank adjustment for easy fine-tuning of front-to-back leveling. Great for uniform incorporation of chemicals and residues.
- Earth Metal® blades for sharp penetration and easy pull that save you fuel. Plus extra durability that means fewer replacements.

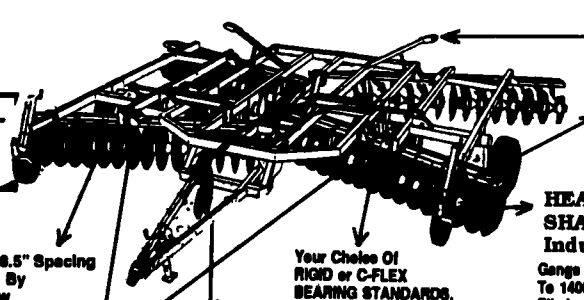
WHY BUY A SUNFLOWER DISC HARROW?

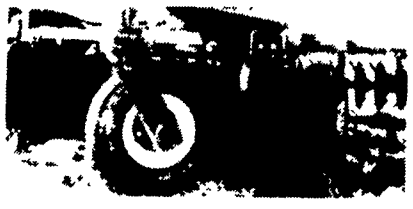
The Reasons Are Obvious! Sizes From 10'-15' And 18'-32' Folding

Check Out The Rest - Then Buy The Best! SUNFLOWER

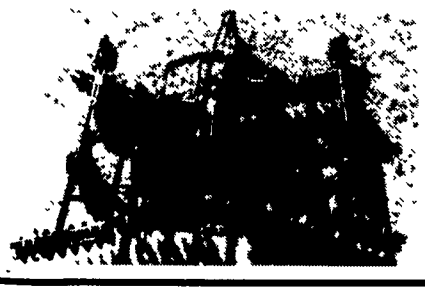


- WING GAUGE WHEELS Eliminate Gouging
- BLADES: ¼ "x22" or ¼ "x24" On 8.5" Spacing 3 Sided Blade Prevents Erosion By Eliminating A Continuous Furrow
- DOUBLE OFFSET DESIGN Provides Maximum Leveling Without A Middle Buster Or Center Teeth
- SELF-LEVELING HITCH Maintains Level Setting Regardless Of Desired Depth Or Tillage Application
- Your Choice Of RIGID or C-FLEX BEARING STANDARDS.
- HEAVIEST AXLE SHAFTS In The Industry - 1¾ " Dia. Gangs Are Hydraulically Torqued To 1400 Lbs. & Spring-Loaded To Eliminate Loosening, Wear And Breakage.
- 3 YEAR WARRANTY On Triple Lip Sealed Trunnion Mounted, Regreasable BEARINGS
- TRANSPORT WIDTH On Wing Units Up To 24'2" Working Width Is A SAFE 12'4" Transport.

The Secret To A Level Field Is The Sunflower GAUGE WHEELS



A trademark on all FLEXIBLE Sunflower Discs is Front-Mounted Gauge Wheels. This Important Feature Prevents the Front Gangs Of The Wing Frame From Gouging, Buckling or Cutting Deeper Than The Other Gangs, Promoting A Level Ridge Or Furrow-Free Field. The Heavy Duty Gauge Wheel Features A 5-Bolt Hub And 8.00x10 Ply Tire & Tube.



DOUBLE OFFSET DESIGN

Eliminates center ridging while cutting the entire width at an even depth. Self-leveling hitch provides fore & aft leveling at any working depth.

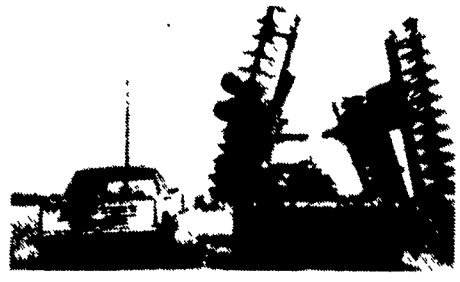
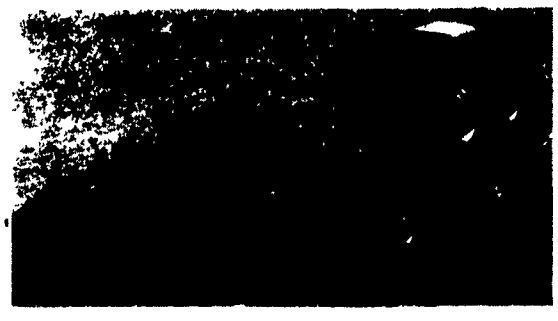
TRANSPORT WIDTH



Go from field working to highway transport in seconds. Transport width on 18'-21'-24' units are only 12'4" barely the width of your dual wheels, leaving plenty of room for traffic to pass Transport height is within legal limits.



SUNFLOWER

Series 6000 LAND FINISHER

The RIGHT combination in one-pass tillage. The New Sunflower 6000 Series Land Finisher performs three operations in one pass. It discs, cultivates, and finishes the seedbed all at once.

Working widths from 13 to 37 feet.

TODAY'S MAHONING OUTDOOR FURNACE WILL HEAT YOUR HOME, BARN, POOL, BUSINESS, GREENHOUSE, & DOMESTIC DRINKING WATER TOO!
WE CAN CUSTOMIZE A UNIT TO FIT YOUR PERSONAL NEEDS!

Safe • Efficient • Durable
Look at what makes the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace a great purchase...
CLEAN. All dirt, dust, fuel and fire is outside No chance of chimney fire or flue fire ELIMINATES AIR POLLUTION IN THE HOME. Smoke, fuel odors and other causes of allergies are outside the home
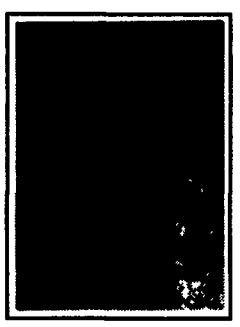
SAFE FOR MOBILE HOMES. Eliminates danger that other furnaces contained in a mobile home can cause
NO DANGER OR EXPLOSION. This is a zero pressure furnace
ENCLOSED COMPONENTS. The circulation pumps and electrical connections are enclosed in an insulated cabinet on the back of the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace.
ADAPTABLE. Install our furnace in any forced air heating or hot water system

All Mahoning Units Come Installed with Grates Including An External Shaker Handle



★The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combustor.★
Mahoning Catalytic Combustor Will Help In the Following Ways:
1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil.
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety.
3. Over all efficiency of 85%, which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat. furnace.
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source.
7. Saves you a lot of money!
8. User friendly, emits no smoke!

All Mahoning Multi-Fuels Can Burn Coal, Wood, Oil, Propane, Natural Gas

Proudly Built in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania

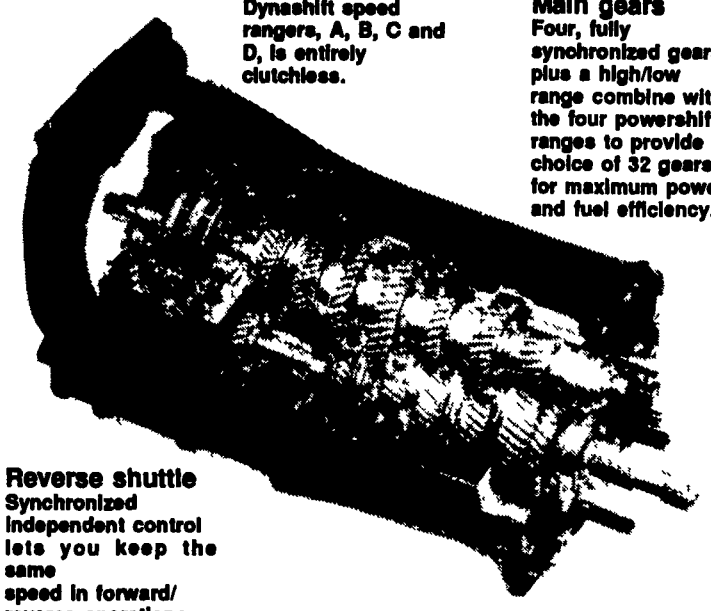
New Dynashift™ gives you the best features of both a manual and power-shift transmission.

Dynashift gives you 32 forward and 32 reverse gears by the unique combination of a 4-speed power-shift with an 8-speed synchronized gearbox and a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle.

MASSEY FERGUSON



Powershift unit
Shifting through four Dynashift speed rangers, A, B, C and D, is entirely clutchless.

Main gears
Four, fully synchronized gears, plus a high/low range combine with the four powershift ranges to provide a choice of 32 gears for maximum power and fuel efficiency.

Reverse shuttle
Synchronized independent control lets you keep the same speed in forward/ reverse operations.

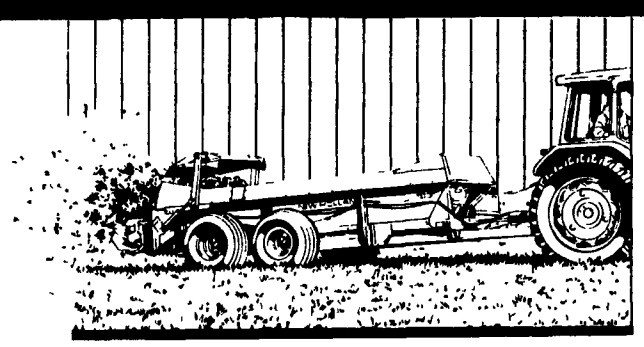
185



NO SPREADER BUILT BETTER

The New Holland Model 185 is built to last.
- Strong, corrosion-resistant steel sides.
- High-density polyethylene (HDPE) floor.
- Lifetime Bonded Protection warranty.

This 287-bushel spreader features oscillating tandem wheels that allow faster ground speeds with less ground compaction. Get fast, smooth unloading at two spreading rates with the standard worm gear drive.

Stop in and see why this is the best-selling spreader in its class.

KLEBER... KLEBER... KLEBER... KLEBER... KLEBER...

AGRICULTURAL RADIALS

KLEBER TIRE CORPORATION: A MICHELIN TIRE CORPORATION DIVISION!!
For years Kleber has been the European leader in agricultural radials, both in original equipment and replacement sales. Now, that same technology is avaialble in the East.

INTRODUCING A NEW FAMILY OF RADIAL FARM TIRES
A front/rear radial tire designed for heavy-high horse power tractors that can improve traction over 15%, while reducing soil compaction! Operating air pressure as low as 8 P.S.I. will dramatically boost your yields.

EXCLUSIVE BENEFITS BY DESIGN
What do we say when our customers ask us for the best farm tire we have? (After all, by now he has tried Goodyear, Firestone, Armstrong...). We have a new answer to that old question: Kleber (Pronounced Claybear) Here's why Kleber, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Michelin Tire Corporation has been making radial farm tires since 1952. In Europe (which is 85% radial), Kleber is number one and michelin is number two in both original equipment and replacement farm tires. The immediate benefits farmers will have are:
1. Tremendous traction-after all, Kleber is a minimum of 28% deeper in non-skid. For example, a Kleber 18.4R38 is 64/32nds vs. 51/32nds on any commodity radial made in the U.S.
2. The exclusively patented innerlug system accelerates cleanout, reduced downtime and supplements traction.
3. The unique carcass and belt configuration allows directional stability on the highway even with center hitch equipment. After all, Kleber is designed for road use. It is, in fact, speed rated at 25 mph.
4 And last, in addition to the normal benefits of radials, Kleber's wear is so extended that we have product on main tractor application with ten years of service in 8,000 hours.

WHY KLEBER RADIAL FARM TIRES?
- Lowest Cost per hour
- Highest traction - wet or dry
- Quietest highway transport
- Smoothest ride - no bounce
- Greatest fuel economy
- Most stable center hitch haul
- Lowest uniform soil compaction
- Fastest wet soil clean out

WHAT ARE THE UNIQUE FEATURES THAT MAKE KLEBER HEAD AND SHOULDER ABOVE THE COMPETITION?
- Dual angle bead configuration to insure no slip rim grip
- Bead/sidewall/belt package that provides on/off highway stability
- Non-stretch belts that reinforce the premium bar depth while protecting the radial carcass from field hazards
- Advanced R-1W bar depth to provide extra traction and low cost/hour usage
- Non-stretch belt/carcass design to minimize soil compaction, eliminate pressure spikes and provide uniform wear pattern
- Total design/build techniques to insure stable no bounce ride with center hitch equipment at 45 KPH
- Noise/vibration engineering to optimize bar contour/spacing
- Close technical ties to all tractor manufacturers in the Western World insuring compatibility
- Extensive front wheel assist OE/replacement knowledge world-wide
- In-house research - development staff

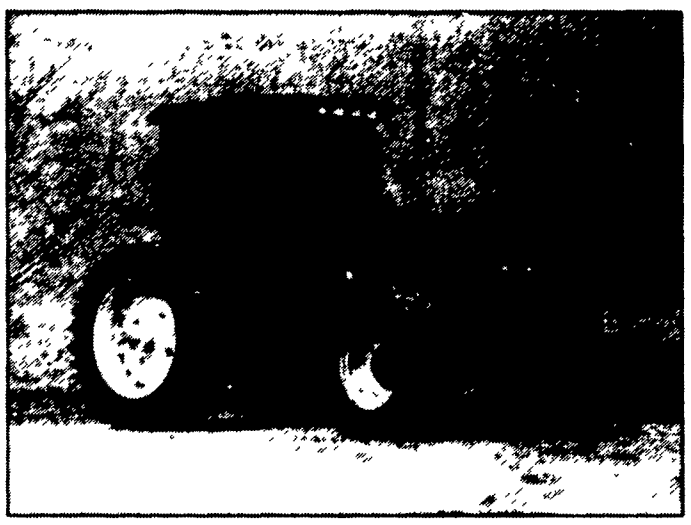
For The Way You Farm Today
Fingertip Powershift Control, Improved Field Visibility and The Most Comfortable Cab Ever



AGCO ALLIS
For the way you farm today

Model 9650
147 PTO HP (109.7 kW)

With their new 18x9 speed full powershift transmissions that electronically control the engagement of massive gears with just the tap of a hand... their cab-forward design that permits a clear, unobstructed view of the field in all directions... and their roomy, comfortable cabs, that feature a unique swivel, air-ride seat and an exclusive seat-mounted control console, the new 9600 Series tractors are clearly ahead of the time.

Every component — from the sleek, sloping hood, to the rugged, cast-iron mainframe to the world-proven air-cooled diesel engines, that require less maintenance — has been designed to match the way you farm today. The result is greater comfort, better performance and improved productivity.

Compare the features and specifications for yourself. Better yet, stop by your AGCO Allis dealer soon and try out one of the 9600 models for yourself. You have to drive it to believe it.

Cattlemen's Queen Nominations: The expanded Cattlemen's Queen program this year is receiving interest from several affiliate cattlemen associations and individuals. The Cattlemen's Queen program is one that was very popular a few years ago, and can help promote the Pennsylvania beef industry in several ways. The Pennsylvania Beef Council cosponsors some of the beef promotional activities of the Queen program, with the Cattlemen's Association and some private donors funding the other activities of the Queen. There's still room for more dedicated candidates who want to learn from the program, but also want to contribute to the betterment of the industry. Nomination material can be obtained from Mrs. Sue Clair, 568 Rock Road, State College, PA 16801 (814/238-1233).

Expo Plans Continue: The educational program will be held on Friday, April 8, and will address some of the more important problems and questions cattlemen have about improving their operations. Preregistration for the educational program, which includes lunch, will be $25; information can be obtained from the Cattlemen's Association office (814/692-4208) or Dr. John Comerford (814/863-3661). The program will emphasize grazing systems, hay and silage conservation methods, breeding improvement, feeding systems for the cow herd and the feedlot, use of growth promotants and complying with nutrient management. There will also be a discussion about a recent study to determine the future of the cattle industry in Pennsylvania and what steps might be taken to expand the industry in Pennsylvania and the Northeast. The annual Cattlemen's Banquet will be held Friday evening, April 8, with the cattle breed sales on Saturday, April 9.

Expo Trade Show Spaces Available: The Expo Trade Show is coming along nicely — but there are still spaces for more commercial trade show exhibitors. Please give Dan Gard (717/653-8719) or Lowell Wilson (814/238-5888) a call for more information.

Youth Activities to be Emphasized: This year's Expo will include the Expo Junior Heifer and Steer Shows — which suddenly has become the largest such Junior event in the Northeast. With extra space available in the Farm Show Complex, and increased premiums for the Junior shows, there should be an ever larger show in the 1994 Expo. The Pennsylvania Junior Cattlemen's Association will hold a pizza party-meeting on Saturday evening, at 7:30 p.m. There will be several special Junior activities, including a Skill-a-thon — which will test the knowledge of Juniors in several different aspects of beef cattle management. Preregistration for the Skill-a-thon — can be through the Cattlemen's Association office (814/692-4208), Gerald and Sue Clair, Co-Advisors of the PJCA (814/238-1233), or from Tammy Balthaser, PA Beef Council (800-572-2020). All Junior Heifer and Steer Shows will be on April 10. Prizes and cash are being solicited for both premiums and awards for the Junior competitive activities.

Beef Output to Increase 3% in 1994: National Cattlemen's Association and Cattle-Fax predict that beef production will increase by about 3% in 1994, which will cause a per-capita increase in consumption by about 1.5 lbs, up from 66 lbs retail weight in 1993. Production of competing meats, especially chicken, will also increase, and pressure on meat and livestock prices will result.

The increased production is brought about by several years of profitability in the cow-calf business; the nation's cow herd is the largest since 1985. Herd expansion is expected to continue for a few years.

Meat Supplies at High Level: Cattle Fax also has been one of several market outlook agencies that point out the rather large supply of beef and other meats, which have decreased profitability from feeding. Compounding the problem (as usually happens in the case of large supplies of meat animals ready for market) is the heavy slaughter weights of fed cattle. Feeding margins are expected to remain narrow or negative into the spring. Most experts agree that keeping current in the marketplace — selling cattle when they are ready from a weight and grade standpoint — will help bring about a profitable feeding margin.

More Beef Promotional Ads on TV: Perhaps it's especially appropriate to have more TV advertising because of the anticipated increase in beef production. The popular "Beef. It's what's for dinner." will focus on children and special occasions for celebrating according to the Beef Industry Council. Focus group interviews show that consumers like the current advertisements, and they get new ideas for beef meals from the ads. Recent surveys indicate that almost 3/4 of all consumers are now aware of the beef ads and that most consumers now intend to eat beef more often than they did previously. The Check-Off-funded promotion, education, and research activities have increased demand for beef. Let's hope that it continues to bring about increased demand since we will have more beef to merchandise over the next few years. Another bright spot, though, is the expected increase in U.S. exports of beef and other meats because of renegotiated tariffs and more favorable trade practices with other countries.

NCA and PCA Membership: The National Cattlemen's Association, in cooperation with Merck AgVet Division, is offering special incentives for cattlemen to join both NCA and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association. A new member joining both NCA and PCA will receive a "bonus" of two 250-ml bottles of IVOMEC Pour-On — a $60 value at retail. The NCA membership must be a $60 full membership. This means that a new member will receive both an NCA and PCA membership for the cost of a PCA membership — $12. In addition to receiving the benefits and all the communications from NCA and PCA, new members will add their support in bringing about changes that continually help the cattle industry.

Beef Industry Long-Range Plan: Over the past six months there's been discussion and planning meetings of the four major beef industry organizations — National Cattlemen's Association, Cattlemen's Beef Board, Beef Industry Council, and the U.S. Meat Export Federation. The "bottom line" is to determine how these four organizations can work together, still accomplishing the charge of each organization, and be more efficient and effective in serving the beef cattle industry. Both the PA Cattlemen's Association and the PA Beef Council have indicated support of this concept, pending further study and detailing of organizational methods.

No Hazardous Residues in Beef: The annual report from USDA on chemical residue monitoring has confirmed that beef is virtually free of violative residues. No violative residues were present in fed steer and heifer beef — which accounts for most of the nation's beef supply — and very limited residue frequencies were found in meat from cows. According to NCA, USDA's monitoring report confirms that Americans need not be concerned about hormone, antibiotic, pesticide, or other possible residue problems with beef.

But — Food Safety will be in the News: According to NCA, the beef industry can expect to see increased media attention about meat inspection and food safety in the next few months. Most of these news stories will emphasize bacterial contamination potential, particularly E. Coli 0157-H7 about one year after the outbreak in the northwest U.S. NCA and other associations have submitted video footage and other information to the news media on how the beef industry is dealing with food safety and inspection. With the increased attention on food safety issues, the Pennsylvania Beef Council is planning a major food safety seminar on April 7 for retailers, food service operators, and county health department officials. The purpose of the seminar is two-fold: 1) to provide accurate background information on various food safety issues, and 2) to offer procedures for maintaining and upgrading sanitation procedures.

Further information regarding the programs of the National or PA Cattlemen's Associations can be obtained from the PA Cattlemen's Association, RD#1, Box 83, Port Matilda, PA 16870 (814/692-4208).

Stretch The Food Web, Feed Byproducts

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Feeding soap to dairy cows? What's next?

The simple days of letting our cows graze natural or planted pastures have been superseded in many places with all kinds of feeding substitutes and byproducts that aren't usually harmful to cows or their milk, meat or longevity.

To the contrary, the high-producing cows of today often benefit from some of these products, because they contain a higher nutrient content than what's available naturally through grazing.

This doesn't mean that grazing is no longer important. Grazing is still the cheapest way to feed many cows, and it supplies the daily essentials of fiber and vitamins for cows and calves, goats and sheep.

But substitute feeds and byproducts are valuable supplements to grazing; they reduce the acreage needed to graze and are sometimes obtainable at bargain prices.

A few years ago, I worked with a dairy herd that had a sweet connection. A major candy manufacturer had an abundance of broken chocolate and candy bars, which one farmer was more than happy to feed to his cows. Nothing went to waste. I also know of a potato chip manufacturer who regularly "recycles" his breakage to a dairy herd. The cows apparently love chips.

Back in the Old Country, we were very much oriented to this kind of recycling. We fed our cows leftover string beans, silage from sweet pea pods and husks from nearby vegetable canning plants.

Each fall we'd harvest sugar beets first for leaf-and-tops silage before gathering the beets themselves.

I also worked on a research project in Delaware which involved using lima bean vines for dairy cattle feeding. The lima bean vines made excellent silage as long as the harvesters didn't pick up too much soil and sand to contaminate it.

In recent years, byproducts suitable for feeding to cows have been brewer's grain, distiller's grain, molasses, beet pulp, oil meals and gluten meals. New additions to this list include bakery byproducts, whey, syrups, soyhulls, tallow, feather meal, blood meal and soaps. More food industry products are sure to follow, because recycling makes economic and sociological sense. It even makes cow sense.

We've known for years that ruminants such as cows, sheep, goats, llamas, camels, reindeer, musk oxen, yaks and buffaloes are unique in their ruminant feed requirements.

They are especially suitable for poor, developing countries.

Because ruminants can thrive on feed that is unsuitable for human consumption, they don't compete in starving countries for human food. Nor do they compete for the money required to import grain for feeding monogastric animals.

The ruminant cow today provides a wonderful way to get rid of tons of byproducts that would otherwise be wasted. At the same time, cows produce excellent quality milk and meat.

Of course, this "recycling" process takes place under careful monitoring and milk and meat testing, so that no undesirable industrial residues and pesticides contaminate the meat and milk products.

So what about soap? Some interesting new research at the University of Nebraska explored this question.

Since soap is a byproduct of the vegetable-oil processing industry (including soybean, cottonseed, peanut, sunflower and canola), it should be a potential dietary fat resource for ruminants.

Recent research has shown that plain fat supplementation is often not as well tolerated by cows as are oils converted to their salts. And that's what soaps are — salts of oils.

Thirty-two Holsteins were fed for 10 weeks four different rations, high starch, 1 percent added calcium salt of fat, 6 percent of a soyhull-soap mix and 12 percent of a soyhull-soap mix.

The soyhull-soap mix had 88 percent dry matter, 10 percent protein, 61 percent neutral detergent fiber and 16 percent fat, and the final rations contained 3.5 percent, 4.6 percent, 4.5 percent and 5.3 percent fat, respectively, fed as total mixed rations with equal levels of protein and energy.

Voluntary feed intake was high on all rations, between 4.4 and 4.7 percent of body weight.

Fat in milk produced was high on all rations, between 3.5 and 3.7 percent; as was milk protein; between 3.0 and 3.2 percent. Cows also remained in good body condition, scoring between 2.5 and 2.7.

Cows fed the 6 percent soyhull-soap mix significantly outproduced all other ration cows, with a 78-pound average for the 10 weeks, compared to 68, 69 and 71 pounds, respectively.

This is especially interesting because the cows on the 1 percent added calcium salt and the cows on the 6 percent soyhull-soap mix had the same ration fat contents of 4.6 and 4.6 percent, respectively. The latter appears to point to the added benefits of the soyhulls to the fat supplementation.

The basic forage component of the total ration, 16 percent alfalfa silage and 34 percent corn silage on a dry basis, was high in forage.

But apparently the soyhulls added to the fat supplementation was beneficial for higher milk production and a profitable way of incorporating fat and additional fiber into the ration of high-producing dairy cows.

Limousin Sale Rockets To $7,280 Average

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Buyers from 12 states and Canada showed their approval of the quality offering in the National Western Limousin Sale January 12 as they powered the sale to a $7,280 average on 34.16 lots.

C.K. "Sonny" Booth and Bruce Brooks were auctioneers for a sale that found the black and polled cattle meeting with the most intensive bidding — 7.5 black and polled lots averaged $14,546.

RLJB Extra Spectacular, a 3/3/93 black polled TEXS Ranger Primo son out of HC Extraordinary HCR 61X commanded a $27,000 bid for three-quarter interest and full possession. The Spectacular Syndicate of the United States and Canada purchased the interest from: Rooney Limousin, Maxwell, Iowa; JD Ranch, Pella, Iowa; and Thunder Farms, Ooltewah, Tenn.

The sale show grand champion, SY Bobbie Jo 326B, drew a final bid of $25,000 from Yackle-Sugar Maple Leaf Limousin of Onida, S.D. and Millbrook, N.Y. The black polled 8/25/92 daughter of LKCC Tomahawk's Touchdown is out of Miss SY Supercharge 327U and was consigned by Amy Brooks of Marietta, Okla. SY Bobbie Jo was also grand champion of the National Western Junior Limousin Show.

Willow Grove Limousin of Lafayette, Colo. stopped the bidding at $18,500 to own half interest in SLVL Black Brandi 13C, a black polled 1/3/93 daughter of NICO Polled Legacy out of SCF Extra Easy 241Y. Sullivan Limousin was the consignor. Black Brandi was reserve champion in Division II of the sale show, behind SY Bobbie Jo.

Johnson's Turkey Creek Ranch of Shawnee, Okla. consigned the highest selling fullblood in the sale. TCR Pharaoh, an 8/25/92 Harvest Olympus son out of SCF Promise Ring 830X brought a $14,100 bid. For the money, Sunset Valley Limousin of Newalla, Okla. picked up three-quarters interest and full possession of the bull.

McCall Farms of Tijeras, N.M. gave $11,100 for three-quarters interest and full possession of CLLL Snipes, a black polled 9/28/92 son of LKCC Tomakawk's Touchdown out of Wulf's Black Satin. Circle L Limousin and Land Company of Wadsworth, Ohio was the consignor.

Express Limousin Ranch gave $10,750 to own CHR Precious Daisy, a polled 2/24/92 daughter of Mr. SY Power Hitter 313X out of BJCO Yellow Daisy that was consigned by Coyote Hills Ranch, Chattanooga, Okla. The female was Division III reserve champion in the sale show.

Edgemont Limousin of Kiowa, Okla. had the Division I champion in the sale show with EDGE Cheyenne, a 3/12/93 black polled daughter of SY Polled 770W out of PMDB Alliance. Stewart and Son of Chikasha, Okla. purchased the female for $5,500.

Division I reserve champion in the sale show was Wulf's Colorful 3007C, a 3/3/93 polled daughter of Wulf's Polled Progress out of MCM Fancy CMH 451A. Minerich Land and Cattle Company of Richmond, Ky. gave $3,900 to own the female.

Rounding out the show winners was Adam Nielson of Arlington, S.D. with the Division III champion and reserve grand champion, ANLR Sweet Success, a 4/1/92 polled daughter of SY Heavy Hitter 313W out of Juel's 546V. Miguel Reece of San Antonio, Texas paid $3,600 for her.

Wayne County Accepts Ag Applications

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The Wayne County Agricultural Land Preservation Program is accepting applications for the purchase of agricultural/conservation easements on Wayne County farms.

The early application deadline was February 1, and the absolute final deadline is July 1. Area farmers interested in this program are strongly encouraged to submit their applications long before the July 1 deadline.

Agricultural easement values are determined by a qualified appraiser hired by the Wayne County Agricultural Land Preservation Board. The easement value is the difference between the current market value of the farm and the farmland or agricultural value of the farm. All of this information is contained within the farm appraisal. After receiving the agricultural/conservation easement, the farm can continue its normal operation as an active farm producing agricultural products and/or commodities.

To be eligible for the Wayne County Agricultural Land Preservation Program, a farm must be enrolled in an Agricultural Security Area, be capable of generating annual gross farm receipts greater than $25,000, have at least 50 percent of its soils in capability class 1 to 4, (as defined by the soil surveys published by the United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service), contain 50 percent harvested cropland, pasture or grazing lands and if harvested cropland, and be capable of producing sustained yields per acre equal to the county average yield per acre for that crop as published by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistical Service (PASS).

Area landowners selling agricultural/conservation easements during the 1991, 1992, and 1993 programs have agreed to perpetual easements.

For additional information and program applications, contact the Wayne County Cooperative Extension, Courthouse, Honesdale, PA 18431, (717) 253-5970 ext 239. An additional contact is Charles F. Fredericks, Jr., program administrator, who can be reached at (717) 798-2449 or at the cooperative extension office.

MAHONING OUTDOOR FURNACES

"The Natural Way To Heat Your Home"

Burns Coal, Wood, Oil or Natural Gas

FUEL USED IN STANDARD UNIT: WOOD & COAL & WOOD BY-PRODUCTS (SAWDUST, PAPER, ETC.) FUEL USED IN MULTI-FUEL MODEL: SAME AS ABOVE INCLUDING OIL, PROPANE, NATURAL GAS

efficiency Rating 83% to 85% - Cut Emissions by 90%
3-Year Warranty Except Electrical Components (1 Year)

PROUDLY BUILT IN CLEARFIELD COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA
100,000 - 500,000 BTU 24" - 60"

★ The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combuster. ★

Mahoning Catalytic Combuster Will Help In The Following Ways:

1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety.
3. Over all efficiency of 85% which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat furnace
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source
7. Saves you a lot of money!

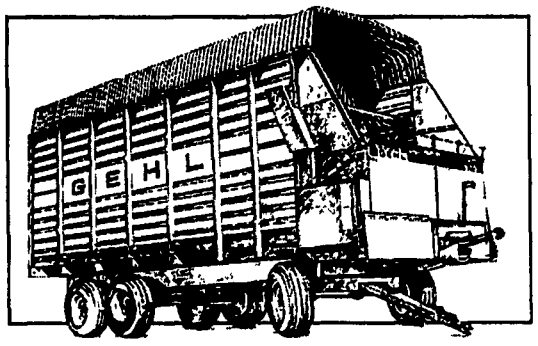
GEHL®

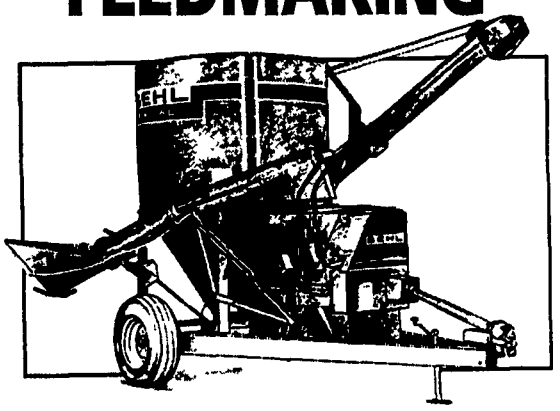
NORTH AMERICA'S #1 FORAGE BOX



Gehl makes the best selling forage box in North America Here's why

- Five sizes deliver the capacity to match your forage harvesting operation
- 10-Year Warranty against rust-through on sides, endgate, stakes and roof
- Wide 23-1/2 inch cross conveyor extends nine inches beyond the box side, for easy positioning to the elower
- Even-Feed third beater has extended tines to break up clumps for smooth crop delivery to the cross conveyor
- Four-speed drive system features #50 roller chain for added durability
- Heavy-duty Gehl running gears match the capacity of Gehl forage boxes

THE #1 NAME IN FEEDMAKING



Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 30 years. Now the new Gehl Roller Mixer combines proven Mix-All features with a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control – Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments.
- Remote controls – Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.

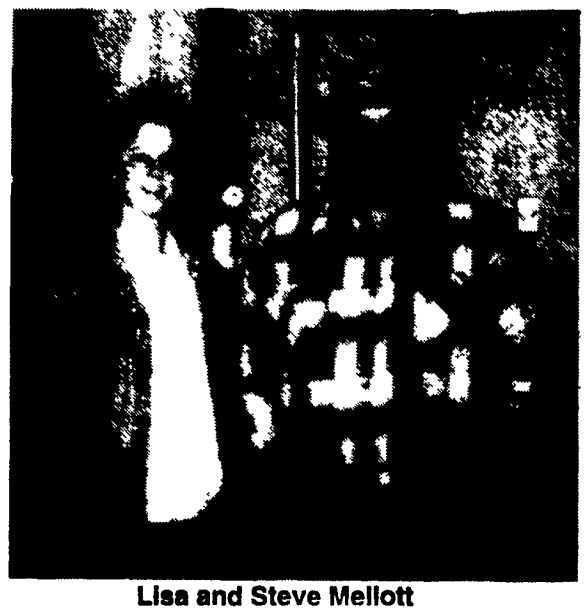
Steve and Lisa Mellott

Mercersburg, PA
Franklin County

The Mellott farm is located in southern Franklin County and is made up of about 450 acres of ground being utilized mainly for corn and alfalfa haylage. Steve and his wife Lisa and their children milk about 100 cows. They also care for about 100 replacements.

Steve feeds a total mixed ration balanced at 60 lbs. of milk which is made up of 60% haylage/40% silage and 20 lbs. of a grain mix. The grain mix contains a Purina® 38% concentrate, shelled corn, Purina® Energy Balancer® an some mineral. All cows above 60 lbs. of milk have access to a computer feeder which contains Purina® SUPER COW 24%.® The average feed rate for all cows is about 5 lbs. of SUPER COW® through the computer.



Lisa and Steve Mellott

Listed below are some of Steve's DHIA records while feeding with the Purina Program:

DATE	COW#	RHA MILK	%FAT	FAT LBS.	%PROTEIN	PROTEIN LBS.
9-82	79.4	17,010	3.8	638	-	-
9-85	99.2	18,646	3.7	685	3.1	575
9-89	122.8	20,191	3.8	759	3.2	645
9-91	123.6	20,754	3.7	771	3.2	672
9-92	130.5	22,636	3.7	839	3.1	722
9-93	127.7	21,414	3.7	783	3.1	658

Steve spends about $1.40/cow/day on milk animals which includes Purina® SUPER COW® and also bunk supplementation.

Thanks Lisa and Steve for feeding Purina®. We wish you continued success in the dairy business.

The Mellotts have fed Purina feeds for many years, and here is what Steve said when asked why:

- I feed Purina because of the consistent results I've gotten over the years.
- I've been to the Purina research farm and have seen how Purina gets its nutritional numbers for dairy cows. I feel when they come out with new products its to help improve my bottom line - not just a marketing gimmick.
- I've had good Purina representatives to work with over the years.
